Two retiring Charlevoix Elementary School teachers, Mrs. Polly Moore (left) and Mrs. Bessie Coleman will retire at the end of the school year. They were honored by their colleagues at a retirement luncheon last week at the school.

Mrs. Moore has taught in Charlevoix for the last 40 years. Before coming to Charlevoix, she taught in Jackson for 34 years. She came north with her husband when he retired from the ministry in the Methodist Church.

THIS BROOD OF 15 baby mallard ducks proved to be a real traffic-stopper outside the Lodge Motel last week. The mother and her chicks were finally escorted down Dixon Ave. to safer surroundings on the Lake Michigan shore. The ducklings were hatched in the shrubbery next to the Lodge chimney.

Bone-Chilling Mysteries Cool You Off on Hot Day

By ELEANOR RATIGAN

This is the time for whodunits. We don't suggest that our patrons go out and rob banks and commit crimes. We mean that with spring cleaning and yard work and flowers to plant and houses to paint and curtains to wash, there isn't much time for long, profound studies in literature. It's pick-up-and-read-between-jobs, and we have selected some fast-paced mysteries and suspense stories for our patrons who absolutely must read something, or part of something every day.

"A Man Could Get Killed That Way" is by Weldon Hill, author of "Life." We won't give the plot away, but the story gets off to a fast start when Sherman Logan, a commonplace and ordinary fellow, sets off downriver one night in his homemade boat. A barefoot blonde steps aboard crying, "Save me! It's a matter of life and death!" The reader can pick it up from there.

"Nine by Laumer" is a Doubleday Science Fiction by Keith Laumer. It's a collection of nine short stories by one of the most creative and imaginative minds in science fiction today.

"Femur" is another story, by George Harmon Cox who has pleased so many readers for such a long time that nothing more needs to be said. If you haven't read it, you'll want to.

"The Striker Portfolio" is by Adam Hall who authored the Quiller Memorandum. A man watches the sky. Centered in his binoculars, small as a fly, is a supersonic jet fighter. Within minutes he sees it plunge 60 thousand feet to the ground. He reports briefly to London: "The fly fell down." The man is Quiller, shadow executive of the "Bureau." His mission is to find out why 38 "Striker" swing, wing aircraft have crashed, killing their pilots and destroying any evidence of sabotage. As always Quiller works alone. Take time out for this one.

"Murder in High Place" is a Crime Club selection by R.B. Dominick. A novel which keeps the reader guessing right up to the final page.

Desmond Bagley has written another highly recommended book - a novel of suspense - called "Running Blind." It is the story of Alan Stewart who agrees to carry out a mission that lead him across Iceland's prehistoric landscape. But there is something strange about the whole thing, something that sends him fleeing among the geysers, volcanoes and glaciers in a desperate search for a place to hide. This is a bone-chilling yarn - just right for a day in the sun!

"Criminal Conversation" is by Nicolas Freeling who has invented the most outstanding police detective in European fiction since Jules Maigret. After reading one of his stories, it's hard to believe that Inspector van der Valk does not really exist. This is really one of the best mysteries of the year.

MARTHA FISHER (center), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fisher of R-1, Ellsworth, is winner of a 4-H essay contest on the subject of why she would like to attend a citizenship course in the nation's capital. Her prize: A trip to Washington, D.C. Aug. 12 to 22 to attend just such a course. Runner-up was Marilyn Umlor of East Jordan. Both girls are 10th graders at East Jordan High School. Flanking Miss Fisher are Mrs. Leo Drewa (left) and Mrs. Robert Hammerberg, 4-H leaders.

Tells How Course Would Help Her

Following is the essay by East Jordan 10th grader Martha Fisher on why she would like to attend a short course in citizenship in Washington, D.C. As winner in the South Arm 4-H contest, Miss Fisher will attend just such a course in Washington this August.

I would really enjoy the Citizenship Short Course in Washington, D.C. because I think it would be educational and worth while. Even though I consider myself a good citizen, I think there is a lot I could learn from this trip. If we could listen to a session of congress, I think I would be able to understand how the congressmen come to a decision and how the whole session is run. I don't fully understand it now so this would help me.

There are so many interesting places that I would like to see, such as: The Jefferson Memorial, The Washington Monument and The Smithsonian Institute. A couple of my friends have been to these places and they make them sound so wonderful that I would really enjoy going through them. In my classes in school I have heard about many things that are at The Smithsonian Institute, and I'd like to see these things I've read about.

When I got back I would organize a meeting with the 4-H members in our county so that I could share my pictures and experiences with them. I talked with members in our club when I got back from Exploration Days my first year and last year more kids from our club went down to Lansing. When I got through telling them about my trip they were as excited as I was. I'm sure that the members of our county would be able to enjoy my experiences with the same enthusiasm that I had while I was having them.

This trip would help me to understand how our government is run, help me in government class, and help

One Call a Day

FISH Workers Assist Kids in Auto Accident

An average of one person a day has been assisted by FISH during its first three months of operation, according to Rev. Duane Imig, pastor of the Bethany Lutheran Church and one of the founders of the FISH organization.

FISH is a county-wide group of volunteer workers who are no further away than your telephone (582-9779) when help is needed.

An automatic telephone answering device gives callers the number of that day's duty person. A second call to the duty person will speed help on its way, regardless of the emergency or the hour of the day or night.

Rev. Imig reports that transportation has been provided to many persons who have no way to get around. Elderly and incapacitated persons have been taken to and from area hospitals or to visit their doctors. They also have been taken on shopping trips.

Sometimes important papers have been picked up and delivered.

Following an auto accident involving two young people from out-of-state, their camping equipment was packed up for safe storage and housing was provided for one member of the party who was not hospitalized.

Furniture was moved for a family which suffered a fire loss.

Another FISH volunteer took care of an elderly couple when their regular attendant was called away by an emergency.

In some cases, driveways were shoveled after snow storms.

FISH also has done some referral work. Mental problems have been referred to the Petoskey Mental Health Clinic or to the County Department of Social Service, for action. One call from a Petoskey area resident was referred to the similar "Assist" program in that area.

"A few of the calls that have come to our attention have been calls that involve more permanent problems," Rev. Imig says. "We have attempted to find some solutions to these, but since the group is volunteer we only ask our Donner of Boyne City personally answered the telephone and referred callers to the duty person.

Many organizations and individuals have assisted FISH with financial contributions.

"Without their help, FISH could not continue," Rev. Imig asserts.

"We also invite others to give their time for telephone duty or by simply being available when help is needed," he added.

Volunteers should write to FISH, Box 112, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

The New Look OF GOLDEN FOWLER

Many people shudder when someone mentions a new look for their home, because they tend to believe a new look is merely someone else's idea of decorating, not their own. But that needn't be. At Golden Fowler we believe a new look should simply be your idea of style and comfort, expressed in a new way. We don't force our ideas, we simply provide the material for turning your ideas into tangible reality. Stop in and see what we mean.

Mrs. Maggie Wold of Zeeland was a weekend visitor with her sister Mrs. Hattie Kuiper. Mrs. Wold came with her friends the VandeMiers of Zeeland, who spent the weekend in one of Farrell's cottages. They all returned to Zeeland Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Joel Boat of Grand Rapids also were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Kuiper.

Mrs. Julius Rubingh of Grand Rapids came this week to visit her father, August Postmus, at Meadow Brook. We talk of the good solid earth, so it's rather shocking to us when it starts to move. The Antrim County garage reports it is repairing the road on the east side of lake across from the former Ellsworth clay pit, where a large part of the road slid into the lake last week.

Visitors with Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen Saturday were his sisters, Mrs. Finny Visscher of Fremont and Mrs. Rose Blannet of Grand Rapids and the latter's son Terry and his wife and child. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley VanderArk also were callers.

Mr. and Mrs. Case Spoelman of Bauer and Mr. and Mrs. Simon Spoelman of Beaverdam left Monday after spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. John Spoelman.

Mrs. Casey DeYoung of Zeeland spent a few days this week with Mattie VanderArk. Her husband Casey and nephew Jim Vanilom spent the time fishing.

The bride is the daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Donald Luedke of Daphne, Ala. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Frank Gengle of Utica and the late Mr. Gengle.

Approximately 200 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony performed before an altar decorated with lilacs. Joel Dyksterhouse supplied traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length bouffant gown of angel skin. The bride featured a basque waistline and the tiered skirt was edged in scalloped lace. Her lace mantilla formed a cathedral train and she carried a bouquet of peach gladioli and grape ivy.

Highway Dept. Plans Summer Traffic Study

The Department of State Highways will conduct origin and destination surveys for at least seven Michigan cities this summer.

Northern Michigan cities to be surveyed include: Grayling, June 20-July 5; Cheboygan, July 17-25, and Gaylord, July 31-August 4.

Interviewers will also question motorists on the purpose of their trip, how often they make the trip, and where their car is usually garaged.

The department will also survey many highway rest areas and roadside parks on weekends. They will determine the frequency and type of use made of the parks.

The data is used to plan the future road needs of the state's motorists.

We respectfully suggest this five-point program for reducing that waste line.

The cost of government is literally eating the country out of house and home. In 1970, Americans spent $14 billion more for government than for food, shelter, clothing and new cars combined.

Isn't it scary that the cost of government increased by 67% from 1958 to 1971? That's almost twice as much as the cost of consumer items. Uncontrolled Federal spending looms as a continuing threat to the economy. The inevitable results are government deficits, inflation, increased taxes.

What to do? We suggest to the President and Congress — put government on a strict diet. Set up strict spending guidelines. Exercise strict controls on the Federal budget. As a start, we recommend five reforms:

1. Project all major spending over a five-year period. Show total costs as well as detailed spending. Such projections should list separately both actual spending and spending that has been authorized but not yet spent. Then Congress and the taxpayers will have a yardstick for measuring new and continuing programs. The costs of new programs initiated in the 1960's increased 300% during the first five years. If the taxpayer knows the future costs, he will think twice about the true worth of the program.

2. Evaluate all spending programs at least once every three years.

Determine their need and effectiveness and see what costs can be eliminated. This is zero-based budgeting, which means that an appropriation for a program must be justified from scratch. If needed it should be re-enacted. If not, eliminated. As it stands now, almost $175 billion of the proposed $247 billion budget for Fiscal 1973 would be spent automatically — about $2,650 per family.

3. Pilot test every proposed major Federal program.

See if it will work before full-scale operations are funded. If it works, then and only then should Congress put it into nationwide operation. This procedure will avoid many expensive projects that look good on paper but don't solve the problem. As Senator Abraham Ribicoff said in urging that the proposed Family Assistance Plan be pilot-tested: "Right now we have 168 programs at a cost of $31 billion to alleviate poverty, and we've got more poverty in this country than we had last year."

4. Designate a joint Congressional Committee to evaluate the Federal budget in terms of priorities.

Today no committee is responsible for the total budget picture. The Federal budget is a thing of its own, a scrambled multibillion dollar jigsaw puzzle. Each committee has a favorite piece and tries to squeeze it in somehow. No committee evaluates the budget in terms of balancing tax receipts and expenditures. Excess costs are simply added to the national debt. A total review by one committee, to be made public, could help balance the budget.

5. Subject special Federal programs, such as Social Security, Medicare and Highways to the discipline of controlled spending just as other tax-supported programs are.

There are over 800 trust funds, which do not come under the annual appropriations review. An annual look might change priorities substantially as times change.

These five points can bring the budgetary process under control. Until the American public insists on steps like these, election results will be meaningless. What's needed is millions of Americans talking to their friends, neighbors, colleagues and public officials about ways to bring spending under control.

Charlevoix Post Office Sells 'Stamps & Stories'

"Stamps & Stories, The Exciting Saga of U.S. History Told in Stamps" has been published by the United States Postal Service and goes on sale at the post office here immediately.

Postmaster Rex E. Davis said this is the first U.S. Postal Service book to fully illustrate U.S. stamps in color and to list the values on each issue from 1847 through mid-1972. The book was prepared by the editors of Scott Publishing Co., the nation's oldest printer of stamp catalogs.

"While pertinent philatelic information such as Scott identification numbers is included, the book extends far beyond the range of a catalog. 'Stamps & Stories' contains illustrated stories covering many highlights in history that have been portrayed on stamps," Postmaster Davis said.

The history as told by the stamp itself has been expanded by the book text to provide insights into the person or event portrayed. There are 114 stories to augment the stamp. About 2,000 stamps are reproduced. As in no other U.S. Postal Service publication, the book points up the American heritage and should enhance the fascination of stamp collecting.

One chapter is titled "How to be a happy stamp collector." There is a glossary of philatelic terms, for those who are not quite sure what "tebeche" or "laid paper" means. Stamps issued by the Confederate States of America are reproduced as are those of the United Nations and a sampling of stamps from many countries.

The book has 224 pages and is convenient pocket size 4 1/2 by 7 1/4 inches. It's available in a paperback edition for $2. A cloth-bound book in the same size also is available in a limited number of post offices which have philatelic operations and from the Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20036. The price is $5.95 plus 50 cents handling charge per order for mail orders.

New Citizens Reaffirm Faith in American Dream

With the United States under fire from so many quarters, it was refreshing to read in the Petoskey News-Review June 4 that four area residents — natives of other countries — had taken the oath of allegiance to their adopted land.

The new citizens are Erna Christa Centala and Cora Gudrun Lieberg, natives of Germany now living in Petoskey, and Gloria Volz of Cheboygan and Margaret Pamlin Mengelbier of Petoskey, natives of Canada.

The new citizens are moving abroad and so many others are seriously contemplating taking up residence in other countries because of the Vietnam War and the internal strife which besets the United States, it is nice to know that some foreign born still consider our country a good place to live and raise their families. It is no small thing to change one's citizenship. Probably more hard and emotionally charged thinking goes into such a move than just about any other decision a person is called upon to make in his lifetime — including the selection of a wife or husband.

The ties which bind a person to his native land are not the easiest to break, since they are inextricably entwined with family and friends, childhood nostalgia and allegiance to ideas and ideals which often are foreign to his adopted country.

That is why it is nice to know that the American dream still stands as a beacon in this troubled world and that the United States, with all its problems, is still the last, best hope of mankind.

Do Auld Sod Visitors Seek Quiet -- or Riots?

Joe Malone, general manager for North America for the Irish Tourist Board, is worried that the ruckus between the Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland is keeping American tourists away from the Republic of Ireland to the south.

He has sent letters to editors across the United States in an effort to dispel the notion that all of Ireland is soaked with the blood of religious conflict.

The events in Northern Ireland over the past two and a half years have received a wide and continuing degree of attention in the various U.S. Media," Mr. Malone writes. "During the same period, and for over 40 years before it, the Republic of Ireland enjoyed peace and stability, with the exception of the burning of the British Embassy in Dublin.

"As the official Irish government agency responsible for the promotion of tourism to our country, we are greatly concerned that many Americans, potential travelers to Ireland or otherwise, are of the opinion that what they see, hear and read about Northern Ireland in fact relates to the whole of Ireland."

Mr. Malone goes on to explain that this is not the case at all. "The Republic is still the same warm, welcoming and peaceful country it always was, and we are anxious to impress this message all the more on your fellow countrymen," he writes.

The Irish drummer reports that the number of Americans visiting the Republic of Ireland did increase 16 percent in the first quarter of 1972, compared to the first quarter of 1971, but he apparently believes the increase would have been even greater if Americans had a better idea of just where the fighting is taking place.

But we're not so sure. Mr. Malone is overlooking the American penchant for being where the action is.

A full-scale riot in downtown Dublin could well trigger an invasion of American tourists the like of which the Auld Sod has never seen.

Such protected sessions also serve to deaden the sensibilities of Charlevoix residents who, for one reason or another, appear before the board to review another case for the council when it meets after the regular session to weigh variances and other matters.

Where are the loudly heard voices from Michigan-avenue now when their town is actually about to be taken over and replaced with a toy, or worse yet, a fantasy village like Gaylord? What a plastic place to live! Why such screaming when plans were made to cut a few trees to make Michigan-avenue a two way street? Don't the people in Charlevoix realize that these plans would take away a whole town as we know it now?

All summer long you hear people complaining about not being able to find a parking place, or about the crowds, or living is always higher and the living wage always lower, but yet, if you wave a fresh clean crisp dollar bill in front of some of them "they'll follow you anywhere."

There is a cement plant and sad plans for condominiums around the lakes. Will the people of Charlevoix stand by and take strike three without taking a swing at it? We certainly hope not.

If you choose not to print this we will, under oath, after all, we don't want the tourists to know how we really feel. . . . or do we?

Viewpoint! Claim French Motif Would Ruin City

Dear Bob,

After receiving our May 17, 1972 copy of the Courier, we were totally dismayed by the article entitled "French Motif Wins Tourist Assn. Nod." We can't believe that the people of the most beautiful spots in the world would actually stand by and let this take place. There would be no more Charlevoix the Beautiful. Tourists by the thousands now invade Charlevoix during the spring, summer, fall and winter, with more and more people moving to the area year around. Soon Charlevoix will be the city that people are leaving to go further north to escape the traffic and congestion.

Does the "altruistic dollar" really mean that much to people that they would give up their environment in order to have a little nicer car, boat, or SkiDoo? Where will it all end? When there is no longer room for a walk in the woods, the harbor is completely overtaxed, and think of the extra pollution that these people would bring with them! Remodeling the town would send property taxes even higher than they are now, and I am sure that there are many people in Charlevoix who couldn't believe their taxes this year. How can any of these, and many other items too numerous to mention ever benefit Charlevoix?

Further, sustained council meetings work a hardship on council members and members of the news media who consider it a point of honor not to leave before the meeting adjourns. Such protected sessions also serve to deaden the sensibilities of Charlevoix residents who, for one reason or another, appear before the board to review another case for the council when it meets after the regular session to weigh variances and other matters.

At last week's council meeting, Almander Roger Westbroek complained that the council spends so much time on petty issues that there is no time left for important work, such as a review of the city's present zoning ordinance.

What can be done to speed up council meetings, at least to the point where all important matters are taken care of before the council falls asleep?

A number of things: —Long communications from the Peony Society of Southern Illinois could be condensed into a couple of brief sentences on the agenda and be disposed of just as briefly, without having them read in their entirety. Oftentimes such communications require no action whatsoever. —Time deadlines could be set for each item on the agenda, with discussion limited accordingly. —Duplicate copies of bills to be OK'd could be run off in the superintendent's office before the meeting and placed before each alderman's chair before the meeting. Then it wouldn't be necessary to pass around a heavy clipboard of invoices for the careful perusal of each alderman by turn. I often wonder how much discussion they miss while studying the bills.

At one recent meeting, one weary alderman was heard to suggest that the matter under discussion be put up for bids. But the matter under discussion happened to be a zoning change. There wasn't a thing in the world to bid on.

Of course, no one is really to blame when meetings drag on and on. The mayor and aldermen are all busy men who have put in full eight-hour days or longer before the council session begins at 8 p.m. When the gavel bangs down at midnight or 1 a.m., they are scarcely dedicated public servants, giving their constituents their money's worth. They are tired old men who want nothing more than to get home to bed. Some of them are so fatigued they are obliged to stop at one of the local bistros for a pick-me-up in order to make it all the way to their front doors.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I wish someone would come up with a public meeting where the productivity of public officials drops markedly after 10 p.m.

I know it's true because I witness the phenomenon at every meeting of the Charlevoix City Council that drags on into the wee hours. The verve of debate begins to cool, aldermen make increasingly frequent trips to the water fountain in the hall, important documents are misplaced and general activity grinds down like a tired old clock.

At one recent meeting, one weary alderman was heard to suggest that the matter under discussion be put up for bids. But the matter under discussion happened to be a zoning change. There wasn't a thing in the world to bid on.

The mayor and aldermen are all busy men who have put in full eight-hour days or longer before the council session begins at 8 p.m. When the gavel bangs down at midnight or 1 a.m., they are scarcely dedicated public servants, giving their constituents their money's worth. They are tired old men who want nothing more than to get home to bed. Some of them are so fatigued they are obliged to stop at one of the local bistros for a pick-me-up in order to make it all the way to their front doors.

Further, sustained council meetings work a hardship on council members and members of the news media who consider it a point of honor not to leave before the meeting adjourns. Such protected sessions also serve to deaden the sensibilities of Charlevoix residents who, for one reason or another, appear before the board to review another case for the council when it meets after the regular session to weigh variances and other matters.

At last week's council meeting, Almander Roger Westbroek complained that the council spends so much time on petty issues that there is no time left for important work, such as a review of the city's present zoning ordinance.

What can be done to speed up council meetings, at least to the point where all important matters are taken care of before the council falls asleep?

Council Marathon

The Board of Review could meet at the beginning of each council session. This admittedly wouldn't do much to speed up the meeting, but it would be a courtesy to residents who have business with the board. At least someone in town would get to bed before 2 a.m.

The council could require that anyone wishing to bring business before the council to report to the city administrator's office by noon of the Friday before the meeting in order to be included on the agenda. That would allow the administrator a chance to prepare the agenda and get it in the hands of the alderman for personal well before Monday night's meeting.

Then the council wouldn't be taken by surprise when Joe Bucks submits his plan to pave Round Lake to build condominiums.

If council meetings could be limited to an hour or an hour and a half in length, aldermen would still be fresh to tackle important matters—such as rezoning—in committee.

They might even get home before the Monday night's meeting.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: I recently purchased a Saab motorbike for my 15-year old son. Can he legally ride it on the road with only a bicycle license? It develops 7.8 H.P. and goes a maximum of 19 miles per hour.

ANSWER: A local dealer tells us that this brand is indeed a regular bicycle, not a mini-bike, and that it does have a friction-type motor. Let your son ride it, observing at the same time all the rules of the road as they pertain to bicycle operation. We are sending you a copy of the bicycle pamphlet published by the Michigan Department of State that lists such practices and the pages from the Michigan Vehicle Code which apply. Naturally, any alterations to the original equipment which would affect the specifications you list could also affect the legality of its use on the roadway.

QUESTION: The Department of State suspended my license for failing to settle a ticket, so I paid it. But a week later I was stopped and got a ticket for driving while suspended. Somebody has their wires crossed!

ANSWER: The Department of State is required by law to suspend your license if you fail to settle a ticket. When that ticket is settled, however, it is up to you to obtain a clearance from the court and send it plus a $2 fee to the Department of State, Driver Improvement Section, Lansing 48918. Your suspension can be officially terminated only upon receipt of the court clearance and the fee in Lansing.

Dads Are World's Best Hook Baiters

Jim's Journal

By JIM REUS

It is of a quiet, lazy summer evening I write today—and of boys pilot their bicycles. Again and again the platoon of floppy haired kids trace the park's circumference. They go very fast.

He is a bushy blond haired boy, not more than seven or eight, with oversized dark brown eyes. Thoroughly dressed in dirt, more super-ficially in sneakers, blue shorts and sweat shirt, he keeps watch over the family fishing tackle. We talk.

"You like fishing with your dad?" I ask.

"Sure I do-it's fun," he replies.

"Why?"

"Oh, 'cause I like to fish and I like my dad."

"But why?" I question further.

"His brow becomes wrinkled as he scratches his head. 'Well, I like to fish just because I do. And I like to fish with my dad 'cause he baits my hook for me.'"

"Is that the only reason why you like to fish with your dad?"

"No-he does lots of things for me. Fathers are just a nice thing to have. The boy's father comes and they leave. Most of the other people are also leaving. It is getting late, the sun has set, and there is work tomorrow. I am left alone with my thoughts, the Boyne and I. I think of the past, when I was the boy dressed in dirt and my father baited my hook for me along the banks of the Boyne. I think of the uncertain future—perhaps someday I too will bait my son's hook by these banks. And always with these thoughts the Boyne sounds its message:

"Men may come and men may go
But I go on for ever."
Life sure is a mysterious thing. But in the mystery one thing seems certain: fathers are a nice thing to have—just ask most any eight-year-old boy—he'll tell you. And perhaps one of the best reasons why they're nice to have is that they make the best darn hook baiters you can find.

He said he is still running about 75 workers to help with solicitations.

School Board Refuses To Authorize Back Pay

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at a regular meeting Monday night, turned down the request of the Charlevoix Education Association to pay retroactive pay to the teachers from the period of Sept. 27 through Nov. 14, 1971.

In other action the members heard the second in a series of reports on the community's future school needs; heard an up-dated hot lunch report by Harold Kaufman, business manager; hired one teacher; accepted the resignation of another and approved fall coaching assignments and summer music assignments.

After hearing a letter from the internal revenue Department advising the board that it may pay retroactive pay to teachers if it chooses, the board, basing its decision on the word "may," voted to withhold payment of the money for the second time since Phase I of the President's price freeze was lifted.

After Phase I of the price freeze was lifted, the Charlevoix Education Association applied to the Internal Revenue Service for retroactive pay for the period from Sept. 1 through Nov. 15. The C.E.A. was advised late in January that the Board of Education could make the payment. The board, however, turned down the request and appealed to the Internal Revenue Service which can apply the rules but cannot enforce them. The IRS, in a recent communication, then advised that the board may pay the retroactive pay as requested by the C.E.A.

John Thomas, the board's attorney, advised the board that it could pay but did not have to.

Before making its decision to turn down the request by the C.E.A., the board heard Richard Donaldson, who had served on the negotiating team last year say that, the board's negotiating team had explained that the salary schedule for 1971-72 school year would become effective

Teachers To Study IRS Stand

After hearing the Charlevoix Board of Education vote to refuse payment of retroactive pay following Phase I of the President's price freeze last fall, Bruce Morgan, recently-elected president of the Charlevoix Education Association, made the following statement to the press:

We (Charlevoix Education Association) negotiated the contract in good faith under the present salary schedule. Both parties (the C.E.A. and the School Board) ratified the contract to become effective Sept. 27, 1971. During Phase I of the Price Freeze no increases could be paid. When Phase II went into effect Nov. 14, 1971, the Charlevoix Education Association applied to the Internal Revenue Service for retroactive pay for the period from Sept. 1 through Nov. 15. The C.E.A. was advised late in January that the Board of Education could make the payment. The board, however, turned down the request and appealed to the Internal Revenue Service which can apply the rules but cannot enforce them. The IRS, in a recent communication, then advised that the board may pay the retroactive pay as requested by the C.E.A.

Monroe Creek Arguments Heard

take tea with the duchess," he exclaimed.

In his final argument, Steketee said that the DNR did not get around to taking flow data on Monroe Creek until February, 1972, two months after the dam permit had been granted. He said it would take from three and one-half to four years to fill the impoundment, during which time the flow in Monroe Creek would be cut in half.

He also said there were errors in the DNR's Environmental Impact Statement relative to Monroe Creek, including location of the proposed marina on the new lake, the depth of the lake and the statement that no septic tanks would be allowed. Snyder said that denial of the dam permit will not mean that Sheldon can't develop his land.

"We are not seeking to harm Mr. Sheldon. We are not seeking to crucify Mr. Sheldon," Snyder said, pointing out that the plaintiffs merely want the court to do whatever is in the best interests of the state.

He asked whether one trout stream is worth 1,000 pages of depositions, 600 pages of trial testimony and the untold hours attorneys have applied to the case.

This answer was "yes," since the stream is a part of the total environment. Wilcox took issue with a statement by Dr. MacMullan that the impoundment is the "lesser of two evils," but pointed out that the DNR director never has said what the other evil would be.

"Are we to assume that thousands of persons would be attracted to this lodestone in the swamp?" Wilcox asked.

He insisted that the only threat to Monroe Creek is Sheldon's proposed dam and that any other alleged "evil" is "a figment of the imagination—a bear under the bed."

"It is not a real, substantial evil, but came about as a fact to substantiate a judgement already made," he said.

He charged that the DNR director chose between his own staff and the public interest. And familial blood in the DNR is apparently thicker than public water.

MacMullan said the No. 1 goal of the DNR is to preserve trout streams and pointed to a paragraph in MacMullan's statement on Monroe Creek decrying the "growth to death" of wilderness areas.

The attorney said that granting of the dam permit is inconsistent with Dr. MacMullan's environmental philosophy and said the permit is in violation of the dam act.

Judge Brown reiterated a statement made at the trial in March that he hopes his decision whatever it is will be appealed.

Says War Warped Humbel

Livingston County Circuit Judge Paul R. Mahinse expected attorneys for the defense and prosecution to begin their final arguments Tuesday afternoon in the first degree murder trial of Raymond L. (Ray) Humbel, 22, and Janet Lee Musser, 17.

They are accused of the torture slaying of Cathleen Ann Gilbert in a deserted log cabin in northern Livingston County last Oct. 19. The trial was moved to Charlevoix County because of the publicity the case has received in southern Michigan.

Expected to take the stand as one of the last witnesses this week was Dr. William Decker of Kalamazoo, a psychiatrist summoned to testify on behalf of the state.

On Friday, the 14-member jury heard Dr. Emanuel Tanay, a Detroit psychiatrist and associate professor at the Wayne State University Medical School, testify that Humbel had been brutalized by his war experiences in Vietnam.

Dr. Tanay said Humbel should be institutionalized because he will remain dangerous and could repeat his crime.

Dr. Tanay said Miss Musser should be institutionalized also.

"She is incapable of handling herself outside an institution," he said.

Dr. Tanay, who also is an associate professor at the Wayne State University Law School, is recognized nationally as an authority on the effects of combat on soldiers.

Humbel is a combat veteran of the Vietnam war. He said he has interviewed hundreds of veterans to determine how they were changed by their war experiences.

Dr. Tanay told the six men and eight women on the jury that in Vietnam Humbel and his buddies routinely shot down men, women and children.

"He told me it was a commonplace thing," Dr. Tanay said. "He did not look on them as human."

Dr. Tanay said Humbel looked at Miss Gilbert in the same way that he was angry with her and blamed her for the fact that he had contracted a venereal disease. She became dehumanized to him, Dr. Tanay said.

The psychiatrist said that Mrs. Musser, who has been in and out of institutions since she was seven years old, was raped by institution attendants when she was eight.

Council Moves On Le Havre Condominium

Meeting at the end of the regular council meeting, Charlevoix aldermen Monday night granted the necessary waivers for construction of Le Havre condominium, to be located on the site of the present Hamilton and Son Boat Yard on Round Lake.

Construction of the first 12 units of the 26-unit condominium is expected to begin this summer, with construction of Phase B (eight units) and Phase C (six units) scheduled later.

The developers are James Craig and Robert Collins, both of Ann Arbor.

It was uncertain whether the lot line waivers were actually necessary, since the property is zoned marine-industrial which permits construction almost up to the lot lines.

However, the proposed buildings meet B-2 requirements, with minor variations.

All Signs Point Toward Record Tourist Season

If Michigan's unexpected vacation travel increase registered so far this year is any indication of the state's economic health, then boom times are just around the corner, according to Automobile Club of Michigan General Manager Fred Rehm. Rehm told Auto Club executives meeting in Detroit recently that 1972 requests for domestic travel information on North America from Michigan AAA members are up 21 percent as compared with the first four months last year.
"Even more surprising is the 30 percent jump in the number of members served through our World-Wide Travel Department," said Rehm.
"Dramatic proof that recreation and vacation travel in Michigan is on the upswing also is an indication that the economy is improving—was given over the Memorial Day weekend," Rehm said.
He pointed out that recreation centers near Detroit had their largest Memorial Day crowds ever. Rehm added that day-use facilities at Dodge State Park Number 4, near Pontiac, filled to capacity both Sunday and Monday. Several Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Parks near Detroit were jammed Monday to the overflow point.
A new day-use recreation area two miles northeast of Flint, which opened May 21, had turn-away crowds over the holiday too. On Sunday, the 35,000 capacity park turned away 5,000 persons and turned away an additional 10,000 the next day.
Mackinac Bridge crossings increased nine percent over the holiday, Rehm said. Several state parks in the northern Lower Peninsula which never before filled over Memorial Day turned away campers this year. Only 10 of 61 Lower Peninsula state parks has vacant campsites over the holiday weekend.
Rehm said that during the first third of this year, Auto Club members have requested 115,000 domestic routings, up 20,000 requests for the same period last year.
Requests for general information on Michigan's travel have risen 64 percent for the Upper Peninsula and 23 percent for the Lower Peninsula.
Rehm added that the most

The Sterett was one of four ships composing a Navy Task Unit supporting operations off the coast of North Vietnam at the time. The MIG downed, which was the first kill by a Terrier missile fired at a hostile target and probably the first time a Navy Task Unit successfully defended itself against enemy jet aircraft.

RESOLUTION
WHEREAS it has been brought to the attention of the Common Council for the City of Charlevoix that there has been an unprecedented number of requests for multiple dwelling building permits within the corporate limits of the City.

Brownies Survive Rain, Poison Ivy, Skeeters

CHARLEVOIX Brownies staged their annual day camp last week at Mt. McSaubia, and came through unscathed despite rain, poison ivy and mosquitoes. A severe rainstorm closed camp early Wednesday afternoon. Patches of poison ivy were discovered at the new Brownie campground, but flags were placed to mark the danger areas and no cases were reported. The mosquitoes were ward off by liberal applications of "Off." Upper left, Terry Klama, Kathy Austin, Vickie Falting and Brenda Wilson make butterfly. Lower left, Laura Baldwin and Jackie Pence show how Brownies make tables; above, Leader Mrs. Vane Smith shows Brownies Colleen LaBlanc and Michelle Back how to cook over an open fire; upper right, members of the Blue Group cook "cinnamon bears" over their campfire; and lower right Teresa Russell, Lisa Staley, Laura Coen and Beth Carey make chocolate pudding with the help of their leader, Mrs. Shirley Revoy.

Letters to the editor Dear Mr. Clock: You're A Knee-Jerk Liberal

Dear Mr. Clock:

This is in reference to your article of June 7th entitled, "Why Must John Birchers Subvert Existing Parties?" I must say that knee-jerk, pseudo-intellectual liberals like yourself sure have a talent for distorting truth. If you sharpened up a bit more on your obfuscation techniques, you just might win a Pulitzer prize for literary distortion. You might even land a job with "The Daily World."

You stated in your article that the John Birch Society "constitutes a whole new body of political thought alien to American soil." If this were the case, Mr. Clock, our constitution would not be in existence, for the John Birch Society is strictly an educational organization, which has never run or supported any political candidate, although some members of the organization definitely get involved in politics, just as do government teachers who belong to the MEA. Of course, maybe you will tell us next week that the MEA constitutes a political party and any member who runs on the Republican or Democratic ticket is doing so dishonestly, too?

As for your conclusion that the "new faces" which showed up at the Republican Convention were all Birchers, let me inform you that, of the 53 elected delegates present, only 7 of them were John Birchers.

Maybe you ought to learn something about responsible journalism and re-evaluate facts next time before you begin throwing bricks that ought to make you choke if you possess any intellectual integrity whatsoever.

Sincerely yours,
Joan Petrowski

College Kids Mouth Half-Truths as Gospel

June 14, 1972

Dear Editor Clock:
College kids are pretty smart (at least smart) these days. They learn to mouth half-truths as gospel truth with all the subtlety of a double-talking politician.

A case in point is the June 7 issue of the Charlevoix Courier wherein MSU students, Ken Heeres and Tom Anderson, made pronouncements of half-truths that bode ill for the future of America's mores and morals.

If the students had made even a cursory study of the Equal Rights Amendment, which Representative Friske deplored, they would have understood that the amendment downgraded women to the point of actual compulsory military service along with their male contemporaries with no separation of facilities as is now present — who founded our beloved country would still turn over in their graves should they get the message of the political hanky-panky that is demoralizing our national life.

Of course, the John Birch Society has been the whipping boy of the liberal Left from its beginning. The John Birchers stand for and have stood for, constitutional government of, by, and for the people as promulgated by our Christian forefathers. This situation is intolerable to the American Left as it is intolerable to those foreign and domestic devils who would deny constitutional rights to all the peoples of the world.

Our astute lads at MSU seem to have also missed the point when they quote the John Birchers' statement regarding democracy: "If they had pursued the matter further, they would possibly have understood the subject to a higher degree — democracy without a constitution to protect the governed is a fraud, a snare, and a delusion."

Of course, we must not blame the students. We are aware that many students have been brain-washed by subversive teachers who either do not know the truth themselves, or they are willing partners with the communist conspiracy that is undermining the "faith of our fathers" as well as the social, political, and economic stability of our beloved U.S.A.

My wife says I sometimes whisper during these dreams. That doesn't surprise me. When I'm awake, I am continually stifling, sobbing, and substituting laughs. This world is full of things to cry about.

If anyone out there likes to interpret dreams, help yourself.

In the meantime, I'll have a guardrail put up on my side of the bed.

Onward and Upward?

Yours truly,
Deborah Sommers

New Republicans Tired of Being Led by Nose

To the Editor:
There was an article printed this past week in the Charlevoix Courier concerning a "New Republican Party". There is nothing new about it unless it's new that conservative Republicans are tired of being led by the nose and are dancing to the piper. Because someone in the higher echelons of the Republican Party wants us to support Nixon, pre-existing county delegates wanted all new delegates to blindly follow the leader. We rather support conservative Ashbrook and Rep. Richard Friske.

Not a dime of Republican party money has gone to support Mr. Friske even though he is preferred by the majority, and has worked long and tirelessly for less governmental interference in our personal affairs. Many of the new delegates have given sacrificially in support of conservative candidates of the Republican party, and it is their prerogative not to support Mr. Nixon by any means whatsoever. Americans are tired of the antics of Richard Nixon. It should be obvious to even the slightly intelligent that he has not kept the promises he made in the 1968 campaign concerning welfare, Red China, trade with the enemy, inflation, housing and wage and price controls, and had performed the very acts he claimed to oppose.

There is profound truth in the Scripture, "Having eyes they see not, and having ears they hear not." If the so-called "Old Guard" cannot see what Mr. Nixon has done and will continue to do if he is re-elected, then its time the "Old Guard" went in favor of those not supporting the Liberal faction. It does not surprise me that the average American cannot be persuaded to fill the so often vacated seat of precinct delegate (or any other political office), especially if they are not in agreement with the existing establishment.

The tactics employed the evening of the county convention would make even the stout of heart turn away in revulsion. We were asked where we had been in the past, and the question is hypocritical. We were there then and there, and we will be there now. We are back again not because we love a brawl, but in the interest of Americanism and good government.

There were other articles in that same Courier that struck out at Mr. Friske and the John Birch Society. What a good example of misquoting and half-quoting. Not even the ideas were their own but "Thayers". What Mr. Robert Welch said was "This is a Republic not a Democracy, let's keep it that way." The word Democracy is not found in the Constitution or in the Bill of Rights. James Madison had this to say of Democracy: "Democracy has ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention; have ever been found incompatible with personal security, and have in general been as short in their lives as they have been violent in their deaths."

A definition of Democracy from the Selders Manual 1928: "Democracy is Government of the masses. Authority derived through mass meeting or any form of direct expression resulting in Mobocracy. Attitude toward prosperity is communistic, negating property rights. Attitude towards law is that the will of the majority shall regulate, whether it be based upon deliberation or governed by passion, prejudice, and impulse without restraint or regard to consequences. Results in Demagogism, license, agitation, discontent, and anarchy."

A good example of Democracy is the trial and crucifixion of Christ. The word Democracy has crept in so gradually most people think that we are a Democracy. We were given a Constitutional Republic by our forefathers and we are losing it to Democracy which is Socialism.

Mr. Welch was only trying to clarify that fact. I am tired of hearing the JBS called a Semi Secret Organization. We have been called a lot of things in the same campaign, but if the person with the derogatory remarks could be persuaded to attend our meetings they would find the cream of the crop of fine loyal, patriotic conservatives who support the American free enterprise system, and the Constitution of the United States. There is not one "Right Winger" in our midst. Right-wing is Anarchy. We are not for Anarchy, we uphold law and order and support our local police. We want to see their hands clean of the criminal in prison, not free to kill again.

The liberal would have you discard the Constitution. You must feel guilty if you own property for which you have worked and saved. You must feel shame for what you are doing to the Negro, even though they have it better in this country than Negroes in any country in the world, and better than the whites in most other countries.

You must say nothing while you hand your paycheck to the governor so he can give it to the good-for-nothing who will not work, who parks his Cadillac in the driveway of the new house you bought for him; that provides for the enemy's every need so they can continue to kill our boys in Vietnam.

You are to think the filthy books and movies are not harmful to your child, marijuana is not harmful or habit-forming, parental authority is for old fashioned parents who do not understand youth, and that you have to be weak in the head to believe in God. They want you to think you are off base if you do not think as they do, and that you are the only one who does it.

Take heart, dear reader, you are not crazy if you don't agree with them, you just think like a John Birch.

For God, Family and Country,
Lorraine Hoffman,
East Jordan

Clockwise

Down Below

By BOB CLOCK
The land boom in northern Michigan remains a mystery to denizens of these parts until they take a trip down below. Then they can't help but understand the desire of residents of the metropolitan areas to exchange the pressures of city living for the relative peace and quiet of less populated areas.

Take air pollution, for example. The Clocks made a trip to the Detroit area over the weekend and found that the air along the expressways from Flint south was sootily fit to breathe. The eyes burn and the throat becomes dry and scratchy.

Even the cool, green suburbs of yesterday — Livonia, Redford, Farmington — are stifled by the exhaust of thousands of automobiles traveling in an endless procession from shopping centers with shopping centers.

When we told relatives that the fumes were almost nauseating, we were informed that the city's pollution index on Saturday was particularly low. Of- tentimes it is much worse.

The automobile, of course, is the chief offender. There are hundreds of thousands of them, and most of them are occupied by only one person — the driver.

During the three days we spent in the Detroit area, we did not see a single public bus and it is safe to assume that mass transit in and about the motor city is a thing of the past.

To accommodate the automobile, southeastern Michigan is rapidly becoming paved over with expressways which whisk motorists from one community to another in a matter of minutes. And the expressways are traveled at speeds that make northern Michigan residents cringe in terror. Yet you must travel with the pack and pretend you're as brave as the next guy or you'll never get anywhere.

Furthermore, you must have a hair-trigger awareness at all times or you'll miss your turn off.

When we arrived at our motel in Ann Arbor, I pulled up alongside and looked for a driveway. Only the driveway was several feet back and I was on my way down an exit ramp heading for Chicago. I was close enough to spit in the motel swimming pool, yet we had to travel 15 miles in order to get into the parking lot.

Aside from pollution, one of the toughest problems in the Detroit area is school busing. Federal District Judge Steven Roth has decreed that all schools in the Detroit metropolitan area must be racially integrated, a decision which means thousands of white children from the suburbs will be bused to inner city schools and additional thousands of black inner city youngsters will be bused to the suburbs. And that is that.

I talked to one young mother of three children who says she absolutely refuses to have her children bused into the inner city. And that is that.

She doesn't want to move out-state because her husband would lose his seniority and retirement benefits. Furthermore, she likes her home and her neighborhood and doesn't want to rub shoulders with Thomas Edison, Abraham Lincoln and the Wright brothers. The village was just as fascinating as it was the first time I visited it in 1938.

There are some things the winds of change don't touch.

Rome Strikes Back

By JIM REUS
She was a nice, quiet, little old lady; typical enough. She wore the dark blue suit nice little old ladies commonly wear. On her lapel she usually wore a nice sparkling pin to compliment the day's blouse and suit. Her voice was light and dry, and snooty, when she talked you would swear inside her throat someone was scratching a blackboard with chalk. Her skin was wrinkled and her hair was grey. So for a nice quiet little old lady she was quite typical, as I've been saying.

I met her as a student in the freshman Classical Studies Seminar she taught at Michigan. She was chairman of the Department of Classical Studies, so we freshmen were supposedly very lucky to have such a knowledgeable person as a professor.

I sat in the front row right next to Terry Walker, the 290 lb. all-Big Ten linebacker for Michigan. Beside him sat Jerry "Spags" Spagnuolo, a little Italian friend of mine from Detroit. The three of us sat in a crummy little classroom on the second floor of Angell Hall when Mrs. Sorgenson walked into the room for the first day of class.

Spags, who was known for his ability to make keen observations of people, tried to reveal profound subtleties in a person's personality with short, incisive comments, quickly spoke up.

"Boy, she sure looks old," he said.

We all had to agree with Spags' telling comment. Spags must be a great joy to his parents, who have put $14,000 into his education so he could make such erudite statements.

The class proceeded pretty much like most. Terry was asleep within ten minutes. All during class Spags humored us with comments on Mrs. Sorgenson's elocution. She would get all emotional when speaking in Latin; she tried to put some feelings into the lines regardless of what they meant. She'd take deep breaths, get all red in the face, and spout out phrases like she was going to win an Oscar.

I thought for sure she would have cardiac arrest, getting all worked up like she did. I was all set to catch her when she passed out and start giving therapy.

Spags wasn't helping any either. After each exhortation he would make a light comment which caused us to laugh. The more he did this the harder Mrs. Sorgenson tried to put feeling into the matter, and consequently the harder we'd laugh.

At about five minutes before the end of the hour Mrs. Sorgenson had had enough. Spags comment about her being the last crumbling pillar of the Roman Empire was the straw that broke the camel's back.

Mrs. Sorgenson's standing right next to Spags when he made his infamous crumbling pillar statement. She hauled off to hit Spags with her right hand as hard as she could. But Spags was a bit quicker than she was.

He ducked and the deadly projectile sailed harmlessly overhead. But snoring Terry Walker was in no condition to dodge the deadly phalanges, which were headed straight for his face.

QUAPOO!! Poor old Terry never knew what hit him. My memory of events immediately after the attack is a bit hazy, too. All I can remember is seeing Terry Walker, all 290 lbs. of him, come flying into me, chair and all. In an instant the entire first row of students was demolished like dominos falling over.

I picked myself up from amongst the rubble of four destroyed chairs and the three other students who were leveled in the attack. Good old Terry was in shell-shock.

As I surveyed the wounded and destruction, Spags came forth with another of his profound, timely comments.

"Boy, she sure packs a mean wallop," he said.

We all had to agree with Spags' telling comment.

"I'm sure glad she missed me!" he said.

We all had to disagree with Spags' telling comment.

Well, there were two lessons I learned that day.

The first is that when violence occurs, it's usually the innocent bystanders who get hurt the most.

The second is that ever since that day I've had a great deal of respect for the strength of nice, quiet, little old ladies.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: I'm interested in seeing my driving record as it is recorded in the files of the Department of State. It's time to renew my operator license and I want to be sure there's nothing in it that doesn't belong there. P.R.M., Crosswell

ANSWER: You may obtain a copy of your driving record for $2.50 from the driver improvement division of the bureau of driver and vehicle services, Michigan Department of State, 8331 Billwood Highway, R. F. D. No. 3, Charlevoix, Michigan, 49813.

They will need your complete name, birth date and address, plus the number on your current driver license.

QUESTION: The wife and I just bought a new motor home to use for vacations and travel in our retirement. We are not intend to shorten our lives by driving recklessly, but in case some ticked hungry cop tries to accuse us of speeding, how fast are we legally able to drive it in Michigan? D. O. P., Lapeer ANSWER: Our Michigan Vehicle Code does not specifically define a motor home — a vehicle I'm assuming is self-propelled as opposed to a mobile home which is drawn by some other vehicle.

Basic law says motor vehicles shall be driven at a careful and prudent speed not greater than nor less than is reasonable and proper, having due regard to the traffic, and other existing conditions, nor greater than will permit the driver to bring it to a stop within the assured, clear distance ahead. So drive carefully and observe posted speeds as you would with your passenger car.

QUESTION: What are the "braking" or "stopping" equipment requirements on a bicycle? D.A.B., Jr., Holt

ANSWER: According to the pamphlet published by the Department of State, "every bicycle must be equipped with a brake that can make the braked wheel or wheels skid on a dry, level and clean pavement."

QUESTION: How does the term U.F.O. apply to traffic safety? To me it recalls memories of Orson Welles' radio scare a generation ago. L.T.E., Stockbridge

ANSWER: In auto safety vernacular the letters stand for "unrestrained flying object," a condition best emitted by unseated passengers in traffic crashes — especially little children who don't have much weight in their favor.

Also, loose objects can become lethal projectiles during a panic stop or collision. Keep loose items in the glove compartment or in the storage or trunk areas of your vehicle. All the new safety features won't help much if you're coaxed out by a flying screw driver, ball bat, or lunch bucket.

men a very different world view from one they are used to, says Miss Pickett. The lecture, which is free and open to the public, will be held at the Senior High School Auditorium.

Reserve. Miss Pickett also worked in advertising and public relations prior to entering the public healing ministry of Christian Science in 1957.

County Red Cross Asks Disaster Gifts

The American Red Cross has set a goal of $225 for Charlevoix County in supplying disaster relief for flood stricken Rapid City, S.D., Alaska and Florida, according to Jason Snyder, executive secretary of the county Red Cross chapter.

Snyder said local donations should be sent to Post Office Box 502, East Jordan, Mich. 49727.

Snyder said the Red Cross has spent $125,000 to date in relief for the residents of Rapid City when an earthen dam gave way June 9, inundating portions of the city. The money has provided minimum assistance to 5,000 persons in the way of food, clothing and household goods.

However, the Red Cross estimates it will need a total of $3 million to provide relief to the stricken South Dakota area, plus an additional $2 million for relief to other sections of the country beset by floods and damage from Hurricane Agnes.

In the South Dakota disaster, 264 persons were killed, of whom 182 have been identified. An additional 400 are missing.

Two thousand persons were injured, including 122 who required hospital treatment. Some 700 homes were destroyed and 2,725 others sustained damage. Many mobile homes also were destroyed or damaged.

Snyder said 20,000 persons have been assisted by the Red Cross at five disaster service centers.

For further information about the relief program, contact Snyder at 536-7571.

Relief Total Shows Drop
An estimated 612,515 low-income persons in Michigan received food assistance during April from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the State Department of Social Services, according to Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional administrator of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. This was a decrease of 10,435 persons from March.

The April total included an estimated 582,198 persons in 63 Food Stamp Program areas. Michigan participants paid $7,686,413 for food stamps valued at $14,360,435. The difference of $6,674,022 or bonus value of the coupons is USDA's contribution to the program. The bonus averaged $22.70 per person, compared with $11.36 in March.

In the Food Distribution Program, 30,171 persons in 20 counties received about 82,790 pounds of soup, 19 nutritious foods free from USDA.

State Cancer Drive Chief Hails County for Gifts

The Charlevoix County Unit of The American Cancer Society has received congratulations from State Cancer Drive Chairman Jerome P. Cavanaugh and the Michigan Division of the ACS for being 13th of 17 counties in Michigan to go over their goal.

The goal set for Charlevoix County by the Michigan Division was $1,500.00.

Mrs. Roy Sorenson, county president, said: "The people who made this possible are really, Mrs. Albert Seger, chairman of the city of Charlevoix, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Mildred Frattick and all of her area chairmen: Mrs. Gregg Roswell, chairman of the city of East Jordan, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Jay Hite; and Mrs. Harvey Varunum, chairman of the city of Boyne City, and all of her co-chairmen."

The Charlevoix County Unit received substantial grants from the American Cancer Society for cancer research. Mrs. Harry Tomkins has served for many years as service chairman, furnishing dressings and pads whenever needed. She uses clean, used white goods for some of these, especially used sheets. Anyone in the area having an excess of these materials may call her at 582-7185.

Mrs. Larry Martin, county education chairman, stands ready to show cancer films. The ACS has a film for every site of cancer, some for women's groups, men's groups, and a large group of grade schoolers and for mixed groups. She can be reached at 582-7191.

July 4 Holiday May Be Busiest in State History

Michiganians who have not made reservations for the Fourth of July holiday face the prospects of limited accommodations at popular resorts and crowded campgrounds, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Even though the holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday (June 30) and concludes Tuesday (July 4), this period is unique since Monday (July 3) is a work day for at least 50 percent of the labor force," states Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph L. Ratke.

Despite the split holiday weekend, Auto Club estimates that the upcoming 102-hour period will be the busiest Fourth of July in state history.

"In all, Michigan motorists are expected to travel 795 million miles during the 4½-day holiday," states Ratke. "This represents a 12-percent mileage increase over last Fourth of July, which was one of the heaviest traveled in recent years."

"Last July 4th weekend only one Lower Peninsula state park with camping facilities

"Pressure was so great that four out of five Upper Peninsula state parks were filled. The overflow reached The Georgian Bay section of Canada."

Ratke reminds holiday travelers that Auto Club travel requests up 35 percent in Michigan so far this year as compared with last year, conditions could be even worse this holiday.

"That is why advance planning is so important so that motorists will have the heaviest travel day, especially if the sun is out and the weather is warm," says Ratke.

At least one out of every three vehicles on the road at peak travel periods will be some type of recreation vehicle, according to Auto Club. More than 300,000 cars will enter Michigan from other border cities and Canada.

Country Music Is Topic for Peggy Broder

Dr. Peggy F. Broder, a summer resort in Charlevoix has recently had an article published in the magazine "Cleveland" titled "That Old Down-Honey Sound," the article suggests that "when the country comes to the city to live, it brings its own music along. And it's a different ball game from rock."

Dr. Broder has done extensive research on her subject and plans a forthcoming book. Her current article appears with three remarkable photographs taken by her son - one of Johnny Cash, one of Kris Kristofferson and one of Mother Maybelle and her daughter, Helen.

Dr. Broder is adjunct assistant professor of English at Cleveland State University, and has been described by her son as a country music freak.

Auto Club believes that approximately 60 percent of holiday motorists will experience at least some travel delays due to the expected 3.3 million cars that should be on the road.

To help reduce traffic deaths during the upcoming holiday, Auto Club reminds all motorists to avoid alcohol, a contributing factor in more than 50 percent of holiday car fatalities, and fasten seatbelts.

As a constant reminder to drivers, Auto Club's Holiday News Service will broadcast hourly reports throughout the holiday period. These reports include information on traffic conditions, congested areas to avoid, tourism and lodging plus highway safety tips to help "Bring 'Em Back Alive!"

Erosion Inevitable, Shoreline Residents Told

Property owners along the eastern Lake Michigan shoreline must acclimate themselves to the fact that there is no practical way to stop erosion, according to a Western Michigan University faculty member who is working on a continuous shoreline study.

"Loss of land to erosion may be halted on individual property," Dr. Richard A. Davis, Jr., and associate professor of geology said, "but this may facilitate erosion to a neighbor's property."

People don't fully understand the causes of shoreline erosion, he noted, so they build houses near the lake without considering possible future damaging effects of erosion.

"State and federal agencies are helpless when erosion affects private property, because of the enormous cost of breakwaters," Dr. Davis said. "In the future, preventive measures to regulate commercial and private development on erosion-prone sites, but now only some local municipalities have that right."

For the past few years the State Water Resource Commission has been conducting a survey for the entire Michigan coastline to provide information for identifying areas in danger of erosion, he explained. This study will try to present enough facts so the state legislature can consider a state-wide ordinance for land use to protect both private land owners and public lands.

"They probably will also study proposals regulating the distance from shore where a home may be built," he said. "Erosion is a critical problem now because Lake Michigan has fluctuated in a few years from the all-time low of 575.35 feet above sea level in 1964, to 579.5 feet above sea level today, close to the 1952 all-time high of 580.95.

"Annual precipitation is reflected in the lake level, which usually fluctuates between six inches and a foot annually and is the cause of erosion, which is very local and sporadic," Dr. Davis said. "When land erodes it does not become deposited directly into the lake, rather it travels parallel to the shoreline and builds up further south."

Beach profile studies of Lake Michigan's eastern shoreline were begun by Dr. Davis in 1968, when he visited three locations every two weeks and surveyed beach conditions. Partly supported by the Western Faculty Research Fund and the Army Corps of Engineers, Coastal Engineering Research Center, he and graduate students now survey 17 locations on a monthly basis.

"The Corps of Engineers wants surveys over a long period as the lake level changes," Dr. Davis said. "Ideally we would like data until the level goes down, so we would have the full cycle."

In a second project Dr. Davis seeks to develop a computer simulated model of coastal processes in eastern lake Michigan. Working with William T. Fox, Williams College, and supported by the Office of Naval Research, a small area, 800 feet long, is studied and all meteorological data and water perimeters are recorded.

Every two hours for 30 days, 18 different variables are recorded, resulting in 6,500 readings. Detailed maps are made daily, the measurements are related to the maps, then this data is simulated on a computer.

"This enables us to go to other places, take these variables and predict what will happen to the shoreline," Dr. Davis explained. "Our conclusions haven't been tested, but we will have soon for Wisconsin to check if the formula can be applied to the western shoreline of Lake Michigan."

Dr. Davis, who recently returned from a sabbatical year in Texas where he collected similar data, says these facts could be used to help understand the possibilities of erosion and case decisions of where to build.

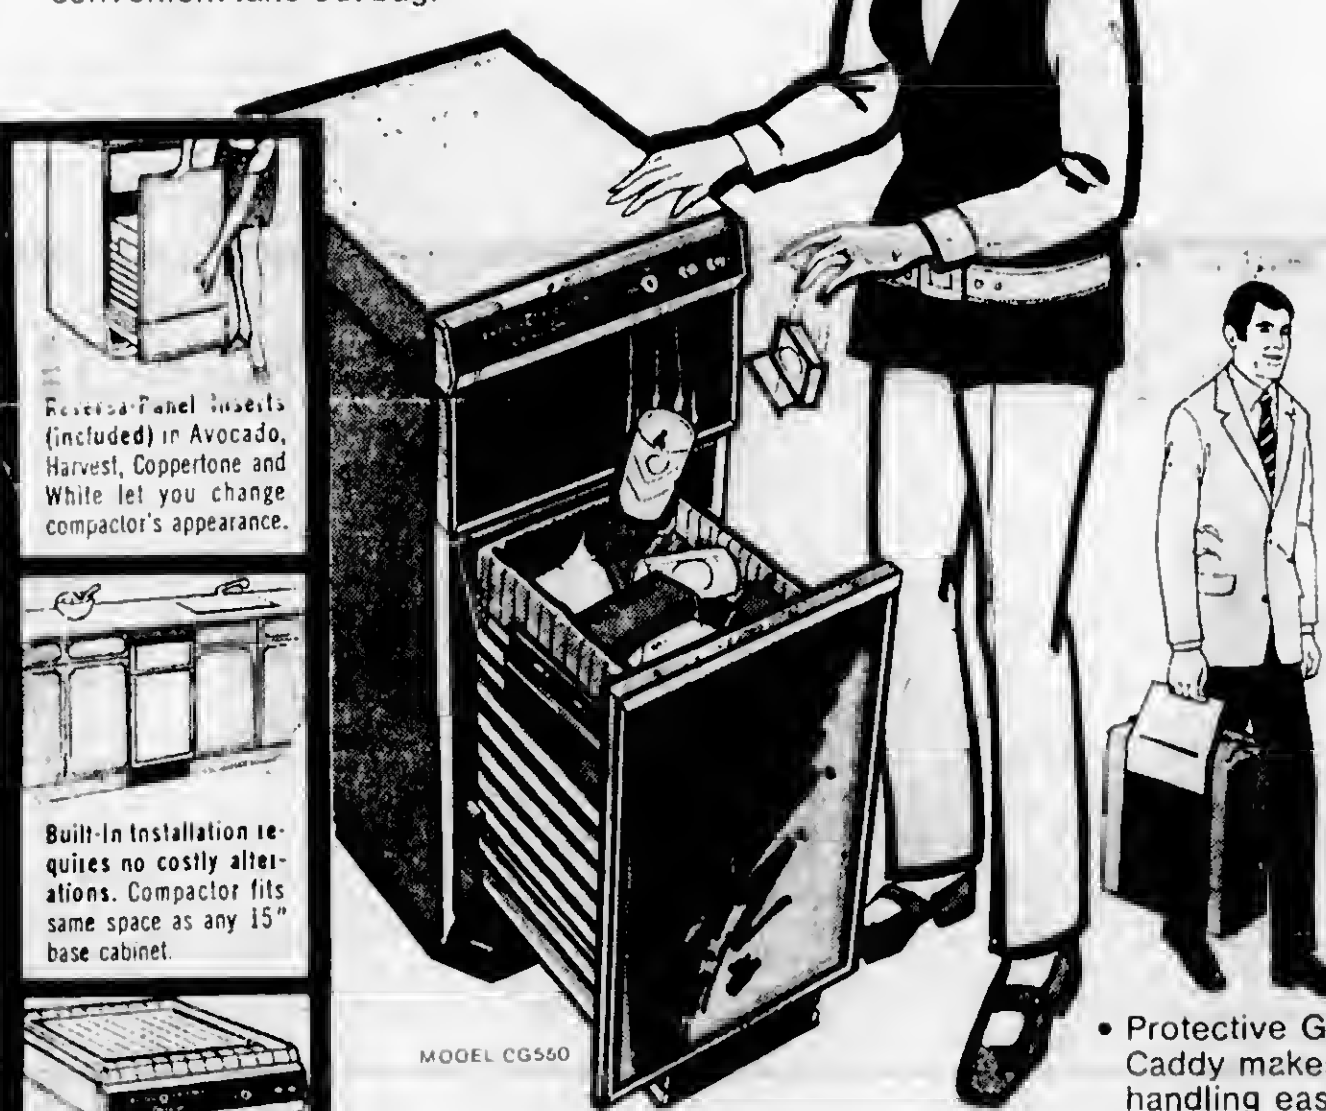

Many other areas of the country are as concerned about erosion as is Michigan, he notes, and various land use proposals are being considered.

"Half the population of the U.S. resides along coastal areas, including several million people living along the Great Lakes coasts," he said. "There are conferences almost monthly concerned with erosion, but there is no final solution."

Bethany Lutheran Slates 2 Services

Beginning July 2, Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church at 1407 S. Bridge-st. will have two worship services on Sunday mornings.

The first service will be at the regular time of 9 a.m. with the second service following at 11 a.m.

Between the two services members of the Ladies Guild will be in charge of a coffee hour for the worshippers.

The services are necessary to accommodate the large number of worshippers, according to Rev. Duane Inig, Pastor. This schedule will continue through the Labor Day weekend.

This week Rev. Inig and Mr. John Mills of Bellaire are representing the dual-parish of Bethany, Charlevoix and St. Matthew's Mancelona at the Michigan District Convention.

The convention is being held at the Concordia Junior College in Ann Arbor. Pastors and laymen from the nearly 400 congregations of the Missouri Synod in Michigan gathered Sunday afternoon June 25 for open hearings on items to come before the convention. The convention got underway with an opening worship service at the Chapel of the Holy Spirit on the campus. The convention will continue through Wednesday evening.

During the convention special-recognition will be given the two congregations Bethany and St. Matthew's. As of July 1 the dual-parish will become self-supporting.

The dual-parish will not receive any support from the district mission funds. Since Feb. 1 they have not received any financial aid, but the district did continue to furnish their pastor with a car. The car will be returned to the district and the congregation has made arrangements for Rev. Inig to purchase his own car.

Reibel Eyes Bench

Charlevoix Attorney Arthur Reibel is the only candidate for the office of Charlevoix-Emmet District Judge.

Barring a write-in in the November election, Reibel will succeed District Judge W. Richard Smith, who has filed for Circuit Court judge in the new Charlevoix-Emmet-Mackinaw Circuit. Smith will oppose incumbent, Circuit Judge Edward H. Fenlon.

The filings of Reibel for District Judge and Smith for Circuit Judge came unexpectedly last week after the state Legislature removed Charlevoix County from the Grand Traverse Circuit and grouped it with Emmet County and Mackinaw County.

In other political moves, five Republican candidates filed for the new 103rd District House seat. They are incumbent Richard Friske of Roscommon, Ralph Ostling of Elk Rapids, Rod Parker of Lake City and Forrest Meeks of Clare.

However, after political maneuvering by GOP party chairmen last week, it was reported unofficially that Meeks and Miller had agreed to drop from the primary race, leaving only Friske, Ostling and Parker on the ballot.

Miller three year contract. The action followed a recommendation by Jerald H. Redeker, who asked the vice president, Richard Donaldson, to serve as chairman while he addressed the board, stating that he felt Charlevoix was fortunate to have an administrator of Miller's caliber and that he should be offered a multiple year contract. The motion was seconded by Charles Elzinga. Donaldson said that while he agreed with Redeker regarding Miller, he was against multiple year contracts and so voted against the proposal.

Mary E. Wallick was hired as librarian at the public library to succeed Miss Dorothy Olmstead who will retire July 1. Miss Wallick, a native of Ellsworth, is a graduate of Central Michigan University, did her student teaching at Stevenson high school in Utica and has been a librarian in the Fenton Middle School for the past three years.

Contracts will be offered to Carolyn S. Phaner and Glen K. Walball as third and sixth grade teachers, respectively. Miss Phaner is a native of Pottsville, graduated from Central Michigan University and will teach third grade. Walball, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is a native of Dearborn and will teach sixth grade. He did his student teaching at Cascade Elementary School in Jackson.

SALARIES ADJUSTED

Minimal salary adjustments were made for non-certified personnel with the exception of clerical and hourly personnel. Action will be taken on these at a future meeting. Included in the action were those in transportation, the custodial staff, the cafeteria and public library staffs.

After some discussion, the board set a minimum acceptable net payment of $39,500 on the Building Trades House in Hampton Village. The house, which has 1800 sq. ft. of living space, has three bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, living room, dining room, kitchen, family room with fireplace, half-bathroom and a two-car garage. Bids will be accepted on the building. Anyone interested may call the high school office.

The board took action on a proposal that has been under discussion for some time the serving of a Type A lunch in the Middle School. Harold Kaufman said that the program would be feasible if 200 students would participate daily in the program which would offer a conventional Type A lunch to replace the Stewart sandwiches that have been served there for the past two years. The lunches would be offered at 45 cents per meal or a lunch ticket for five lunches for $2.00. The food will be prepared at the Elementary School and transported in containers to the Middle School where it will be served on disposable dishes. The silverware and pans will be returned to the Elementary School for cleaning. He emphasized, in making his report, that it will be necessary to have 200 students participating regularly to make the venture practical. The decision to try the program resulted from a survey prior to the closing of school.

In other action, the board:

- Nominated Hugh Winnel of Petoskey for the Michigan Association of School Boards.
- Directed Kaufman, business manager, to investigate the feasibility of the installation of a catch basin on the northeast section of the Middle School property which has been draining into the problem and concluded by saying that "parents have to look in the mirror. That's where the fault lies."

Heard Richard Donaldson report on the Professional Study Committee in which he said there must be more pride in the school by both the teachers and students if some of the problems are to be solved.

Discussed the Earl W. Miller Scholarship fund and, at the suggestion of Vane Smith, formed a committee to suggest Robert Cook, Hope Ashbury, the new women's counselor, Clement J. Wagner of the board and Oscar Erickson. Mr. Miller left a sum of money to the school for use as a scholarship.

evaluation and supervision and decided that evaluations be made and teachers asked to better their work. It was the consensus of the board that some of the teachers would not be here if it weren't for teacher tenure and that if these teachers were to remain in the system they should be informed of their shortcomings and asked to bring their performances up to suggested standards.

Set July 10 and 17 as the dates of forthcoming meetings. The re-organization of the board, depositories and State Aid loan will be on the agenda for the next meeting and an architect's report will be heard at the July 17 meeting.

The meeting adjourned at 11:05 p.m.

Mr. Johnson stated that the Cadillac meeting is open to representatives of all organization in Northern Michigan.

According to Weldon Johnson (Montmorency County), president of the newly-formed Northern Michigan Counties Association, part of the meeting will be devoted to preparation of a program to present to Gov. William G. Milliken. A meeting with the governor tentatively has been scheduled for early July.

The meeting with Governor Milliken was arranged by Sen. Robert W. Davis, of Gaylord.

Heard a communication from the Petoskey Public School asking that the local board support the MASH property tax reform package for education financing. The board took no action on the proposal stating that while the members are in favor of property tax reform it is unlikely that anything they might do would better the situation.

Denied a request by Larry Ford to allow a circus his baseball group is sponsoring to set up on school property. Mrs. Jane Lieberman advised said there must be more pride in the school by both the teachers and students if some of the problems are to be solved.

Heard a Charlevoix school athletic Association financial report by Dale Burge which showed $5,557 on hand. He explained, however, that orders for football equipment, basketball uniforms, 25 uniforms for use by girls and new outfits for cheerleaders would require a major part of this money. He advised that football and basketball were the only money-making sports and, as a result, these two were carrying the other sports programs. He said the school presently participates in seven sports which create a scheduling problem. He also said the local school boats the biggest sports program with approximately 50 percent of the students participating in any school north of Grand Rapids.

TRUANCY HIGH

Vane H. Smith, High School principal, presented a recap of attendance figures for the school year. The report showed a serious attendance problem with a nine percent truancy, a figure that is four percent higher than it should be. A further breakdown showed an average of 42.66 students absent in the morning and 42.60 during the afternoon from among 473 students. He discussed the problem and concluded by saying that "parents have to look in the mirror. That's where the fault lies."

He advised that football and basketball were the only money-making sports and, as a result, these two were carrying the other sports programs. He said the school presently participates in seven sports which create a scheduling problem. He also said the local school boats the biggest sports program with approximately 50 percent of the students participating in any school north of Grand Rapids.

TRUANCY HIGH

Vane H. Smith, High School principal, presented a recap of attendance figures for the school year. The report showed a serious attendance problem with a nine percent truancy, a figure that is four percent higher than it should be. A further breakdown showed an average of 42.66 students absent in the morning and 42.60 during the afternoon from among 473 students. He discussed the problem and concluded by saying that "parents have to look in the mirror. That's where the fault lies."

Heard Richard Donaldson report on the Professional Study Committee in which he said there must be more pride in the school by both the teachers and students if some of the problems are to be solved.

Discussed the Earl W. Miller Scholarship fund and, at the suggestion of Vane Smith, formed a committee to suggest Robert Cook, Hope Ashbury, the new women's counselor, Clement J. Wagner of the board and Oscar Erickson. Mr. Miller left a sum of money to the school for use as a scholarship.

TENURE

Discussed teacher

evaluation and supervision and decided that evaluations be made and teachers asked to better their work. It was the consensus of the board that some of the teachers would not be here if it weren't for teacher tenure and that if these teachers were to remain in the system they should be informed of their shortcomings and asked to bring their performances up to suggested standards.

Set July 10 and 17 as the dates of forthcoming meetings. The re-organization of the board, depositories and State Aid loan will be on the agenda for the next meeting and an architect's report will be heard at the July 17 meeting.

The meeting adjourned at 11:05 p.m.

Mr. Johnson stated that the Cadillac meeting is open to representatives of all organization in Northern Michigan.

According to Weldon Johnson (Montmorency County), president of the newly-formed Northern Michigan Counties Association, part of the meeting will be devoted to preparation of a program to present to Gov. William G. Milliken. A meeting with the governor tentatively has been scheduled for early July.

The meeting with Governor Milliken was arranged by Sen. Robert W. Davis, of Gaylord.

Given in marriage by her son, Theodore Powell of Grand Rapids, the bride wore a floor-length gown she designed herself. The underdress was of ivory satin, sleeveless and with a scoop neckline. The white overdress was of nylon net embroidered with clusters of lace flowers. She wore a headpiece of Alencon lace and seed pearls.

All of the attendants were attired in street-length gowns of turquoise shantung and wore matching shoes. Their headpieces were turquoise velvet bows and each carried a single, long-stemmed rose.

Serving his brother as best man was Dr. Wayne T. Barrett of Malvern, Pa. Other attendants were Dr. Gary Barrett of Detroit, son of the bridegroom, and Jeffrey Powell of Champaign, Ill., son of the bride. Guests were seated by Gerald Lockwood of Indianapolis and Noel Banger of Caldwell.

Both the mother of the bride and the stepmother of the bridegroom wore turquoise dresses and white accessories. Their corsages were of pink and white cymbidium orchids.

Receptions were held in the church hall and later in the Atkinson High School cafeteria.

The minutes of the June 5, 1972 meeting and the Board of Appeals were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

WHEREAS Mr. Robert Dyksterhouse paid $966.72 which is the full property owners share for the water main extension, which was constructed in 1969 at the City's Industrial Park site in accordance with and under the authorization of Michigan State Health Dept. permit number W 690827 and

WHEREAS Mr. Robert Dyksterhouse does not own the property contiguous to the west side of this water main.

Mr. Willard Drost appeared before the Council to question a letter he received from the City notifying him that the 75 foot of land he retained from his 1505 South Bridge Street property sale, was landlocked. It was explained that while this property fronted the Airport entrance road this is not a dedicated street and could be utilized for some other purpose in the future. He produced a building permit which had been issued for the construction of a store building on the property in question but was informed that: 1. The permit was over three years old and therefore void. 2. It was issued before he split his property making the westerly portion inaccessible by a public road. The matter was referred to committee for review.

Benjamin Gill appeared before the Council with a request to place Charlevoix East Park on the roster of proposed sites for the erection of the Michigan Submarine Memorial. A sketch was presented and discussed. If the site is approved by the Submarine Veterans at World War II, Michigan Chapter the memorial will be constructed at no cost to the City.

Motion adopted by the following yeas and nays: Alderman Gill, Klooster, Supernaw, Westenberg, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Sundberg.

Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Klooster that a change order be granted to the Universal Tank Company in the amount of $1,414.00 for the use of epoxy paint in lieu of zinc dust on the water tank interior.

Motion adopted by the following yeas and nays: Alderman Gill, Klooster, Supernaw, Westenberg, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Sundberg.

Water Skiing Ups and Downs

WATERSKIING certainly can have its ups and downs, as Bruce Beier of the west arm of Walloon Lake demonstrates. Bruce, using an O'Brien Competition Ski, shows near perfect form as he cuts back across the boat's wake, sending up a wall of water. But the sport is a fickle one, and even an old pro can be set on his ear if he's not careful. The result of even a second's loss of balance is depicted vividly by Bruce -- he tried to cut just a little too hard and suffered the obvious consequences.

Donna Pfeiffer loves her Gas furnace.

Especially in summer.

Because she had a Gas air conditioner added to her Gas furnace. And so the same dependable and economical blue flame that warms her home all winter now cools it all summer—using the same blowers, ducts and registers.

Now it's a total comfort system that's quiet, clean and economical. In fact, a Gas air-conditioning system costs only about half as much to operate as an electric system. So, if you have a Gas furnace, you're already a long way toward a great year-round comfort system. Don't wait. Call your local heating and cooling contractor or Michigan Consolidated Gas Company representative today. He'll show you how easy it is to love your Gas furnace... winter and summer.

Mrs. Anne Osterbaan
Phone 548-2433

Tuesday morning Anne Osterbaan was taken by surprise, when instead of one visitor, 12 ladies of the Junior Ladies Aid of the Christian Reformed Church came with coffee and cookies to spend a few hours. Ann was presented with a beautiful pin and earrings set in appreciation for leading the Bible lesson during the past season.

Tuesday evening the Atwood-Ellsworth Christian School Society met in Ellsworth for their annual business meeting. Martin Hubbing, president of the school board, was in charge of the meeting and led in prayer after reading Scripture. John Elzinga, Secretary read the concept minutes of last year's meeting. Three board members were elected, Rodger Rozema of Atwood and Donald Heeres and Robert Hill of Ellsworth. Retiring members were John Elzinga, Wayne Daining and Jerrill Drenth. Thirty-three families from Atwood and Ellsworth send approximately 65 children to school. Mr. Krause, Miss Postuna and Miss Huizinga are returning again as teachers. The budget proposed by the school board was voted upon and accepted. Lunch was served by the Mesdames, Harvey Drenth, Harri Silzema, Myron Postuna and John Klooster.

Anne Osterbaan cared for Maggie Heeres Saturday while Mrs. Rose Gates and son went to Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Drenth and children of Grand Rapids are visiting the Gerrit John Drenth family and her family in Barnard.

MEA Nearing Goal In Petition Drive

Officials of the Michigan Education Association (MEA) have announced that Michigan teachers had nearly reached the minimum goal in their initiative petitions campaign for state tax reform.

Terry Herndon, MEA Executive Secretary, stated that today's reports pushed the number of signatures to the 250,000 mark. The minimum needed to place the issues on the November ballot requires 265,000 mark. The minimum needed to place the issues on the November ballot requires 265,000 signatures of registered Michigan voters. Michigan's teachers are circulating two petitions, one to reduce local property taxes as the basis of school financing, the second to remove a current constitutional ban on a state graduated income tax. "While we are extremely pleased that we have come this far, we must make certain that we have enough to insure the required number."

Garden Club Hears Report on Birds

By Mrs. Ross Alexander
Members of the Garden Club held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Edwards on Wickersham-rd. Mrs. Joyce Totten was co-hostess. Several items of business were taken care of and reports from various committees were given. A most interesting lesson was given by Mrs. Mildred Fudick on "Our Amazing Birds." For its size a Ruby Throated Humming Bird is truly most amazing. He can move up, down, sideways, or backwards in flight. His wing beats can reach the incredible speed of 70 beats per second. Though less than four inches long, he is an intrepid batter against any bird which it regards as an enemy. It especially hates crows and hawks. Being so fast and having a needle shaped bill it soon puts the enemy to flight. A limited number winter in Florida but the majority go further south. It is certainly one of God's miracles that so tiny a bird can launch out across the Gulf of Mexico for Central America, a distance of some 500 miles without stopping for food or rest. It is truly an amazing bird. The Cedar Waxwing is called the "best dressed bird in America." The family life of the House Wren could fill a whole book and still not all be told. The Eastern Bluebird has earned and won the title of the bluebird of happiness. And we all know that a Cowbird is always a foster child. Shrikes are deceptive characters. The Purple Martins are the tenement gossips of the bird world. The Whip-poor-will is the bird with the non-stop voice. But those pesky Starlings! Do you know how they happened to come to this country. About 1890 there was a man who thought we should have in the United States all the birds mentioned in Shakespeare's works so he had some brought over from England. And now look at what we have to put up with. If you enjoy interesting reading about birds get the book written by Robert S. Lemmon. It is truly fascinating. The next meeting will be Tuesday afternoon July 11 at the home of Mrs. Virginia MacLean in Norwood.

Garden Club Picks Winners

The Garden Club has named winners of plaques for the last two weeks of June:
North Side: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neff, 507 E. Dixon-ave. The Neffs were elected for a natural setting of Shasta daisies, a bed of showy larkspurs and multi-colored peonies around the patio.

Red Cross Ups County Quota for Flood Relief

Jason Snyder of East Jordan, executive director of the Charlevoix County Red Cross, reports that the county's quota for emergency funds has been raised from $225 to $450 because of extensive flood damage and personal injury in the Mid-Atlantic states.

Snyder said 30,000 families are in need of urgent Red Cross assistance from Florida to New York, as a result of Hurricane Agnes which swept through the area in early June. The Red Cross presently is providing emergency housing for 112,000 victims.

Snyder said the biggest problem is potable water, which must be trucked several miles in many cases.

Communications are still out in many areas, Snyder said, and the Red Cross has imposed a moratorium on disseminating information about residents living in Harrisburg, Wilkesbarre and Scranton, Pa., and Corning and Elmira, N.Y.

Naturally, the Red Cross quota for flood relief has been raised from $5 million to $10 million as a result of Hurricane Agnes.

Originally, most of the disaster funds had been earmarked for victims of devastating flooding in South Dakota.

Donations may be sent to the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 502, East Jordan, Mich., 49727.

Regatta Sailors Due Sunday in Charlevoix

More than 150 sailors and members of their families from across the country are expected to move into Charlevoix over the weekend for the 22nd annual Rebel Regatta.

The regatta is the first of the Rebel Class to be held on Lake Charlevoix. The Rebel is a 16-foot fiberglass sloop with an aluminum mast and boom, manufactured by Ray Green and Co., Inc., of Toledo, Ohio.

The craft carried 166 square feet of sail and class rules prohibit the use of a spinnaker in sanctioned events.

More than 2,000 rebels are in service attesting to the popularity of the little racing and cruising boat.

Fleet No. 2 of the Clark Lake Yacht Club (near Jackson), under the direction of Fleet Capt. Rexford Pierson.

Activity schedules call for the measuring of sails and the weighing of boats and measuring of sails on July 16 and 17.

The Little Junior Regatta (ages to 13) and the Junior Regatta (13 to 17) will be sailed Monday, July 17, as will the warm-up race for the Seniors.

The Seniors will sail two races July 18, two races July 19 and one race July 20.

Also on the agenda are a dinner at the High School Monday evening, hosted by the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary, and a victory dinner Thursday at the American Legion Hall, catered by Staffords of Bay View.

The sailors are establishing headquarters next to the Irish Boat Shop at the foot of Stover-d, and at the Weatheravne Motel.

Rod Stebbins of the Irish Boat Shop has arranged for Douglas C. Bloom of Charlevoix to act as official regatta photographer.

Coordinating plans for the regatta is Jack Campbell of Clark Lake Yacht Club on a summer resident of Charlevoix.

Sailors are expected to compete in the events from Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, Connecticut, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Texas.

DOZENS of exhibitors displayed their wares Saturday at the annual Hobbycraft Show in East Park. The show attracted thousands of visitors and is growing every year.

Friske Censure Attacked

In response to the resolution passed last week by the Charlevoix County Republican Executive Committee, the Michigan Americanism Council (MAC) has issued a challenge to the aforementioned committee to substantiate its charges against State Rep. Richard Friske.

MAC Vice President Dwight Johnson expressed his organization's astonishment over the libelous content of the published charges.

"To accuse Richard Friske of not recognizing the U.S. Constitution—one of the many misleading or scurrilous charges made—is the height of irresponsibility," stated Johnson. "We are urging Representative Friske to challenge this committee to: (1) put in writing the specifics which will back up these wild accusations and (2) appear in public forum with Rep. Friske to debate such pertinent points as those in politics who do not either recognize or support the U.S. Constitution. As a matter of fact, the Michigan Americanism Council would be delighted to be a participant itself. The constituents of the 103rd District indeed deserve to have this issue given wide coverage," concluded Johnson.

Doctor Opens Office

Rodolfo B. Lorenzo, M.D., Charlevoix's new doctor, will open his office for the practice of internal medicine and gastroenterology on Monday, July 17. The office will be located at 723 Park Ave.

Patients may begin making appointments on Wednesday, July 12, from 9 a.m. until noon by calling 547-0861. If there is no answer, call 547-6555.

A native of the Philippines, Dr. Lorenzo was graduated from the University of the Philippines with an M.D. degree in 1965. He interned at Wayne County General Hospital in 1965 and 1966.

He fulfilled his residency in internal medicine at Harper Hospital from 1966 to 1968 and at St. John Hospital from 1968 to 1969.

In 1969 and 1970 he worked on a fellowship in gastroenterology at Wayne County General. He has also served as staff physician for the Wayne County Department of Health in the division of Respiratory Disease Control.

Dr. Lorenzo will be in charge of the new coronary care unit at Charlevoix Hospital. He, his wife, Mila, and their two children live at 723 Park Avenue.

Council Gives OK To Apartment

The Charlevoix City Council, meeting as the Board of Review, July 5, gave Ron Steffus of Charlevoix permission to build a 38-unit apartment building on Potosky-d, just north of the H.O. Messmore residence.

The board told Steffus that no waivers will be required, but that a building permit cannot be granted until the next council meeting July 17.

In June, the council declared a 60-day moratorium on the issuance of building permits for multiple dwellings except by council action. Since the council meeting had adjourned just prior to the Board of Review meeting, action on the permit was delayed two weeks.

Also acting as the Board of Review, the aldermen extended waivers for The Croft condominium at the foot of Dixon-ave. to include the property of Mrs. Ralph Flesser, and to exclude the Kit Carson property at the corner of Potosky-d and Dixon-ave.

The board also gave Ferny Wagner permission to construct an accessory building on his Burns-st. property.

At the regular session, the council:

- Reviewed a drawing submitted by Thomas Merta, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, of a portion of Bridge-st. with locust trees planted along the right-of-way.
- Sent to committee an inquiry by Arthur Bellig as to the feasibility of changing the zoning of property at Carpenter-st. and Norwood-d. from industrial to residential. The property is adjacent to the former Jesse Penn plant.
- Received a request from the Department of Natural Resources for a permit to remove a portion of the shoreline.

Plans for several special events will be formulated at the meeting which members are urged to attend.

Dick Donaldson Elected School Board President

In the other major action at the meeting, the board approved the borrowing of $100,000 against anticipated State Aid payments. The Charlevoix County State Bank's offer of an interest rate of 3.25 percent on the loan was accepted by the board. The loan is to be dated Aug. 1, 1972, and must be repaid by Sept. 1, 1973.

The second Monday of every month was designated as the date of regular meetings which will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the high school building.

The resignation of Mrs. Elizabeth White was accepted and the secretary advised to write her a letter of appreciation. An elementary teacher, she is leaving the school system to accompany her husband to his new job.

In other action, the administration was advised to proceed with the proposed Vocational Education program for the disadvantaged in the high school. Under the program any student 15½ years or older may enter the program regardless of his grade in high school. Each student will spend two hours improving his communication and math skills, two hours in his chosen vocational education program and two hours in elective subjects.

The program will require a coordinator and 2½ paraprofessionals. Monies in the amount of $25,580 would be available if the programs are approved.

Robert J. Cook, coordinator for the school's Voc. Ed. program and James Shepard of the Voc. Ed. division of the Intermediate School District, were present to explain the program.

The board also discussed the proposed Learning Center concept for children with learning problems. Under the

Abortion Movie Slated

A color film on abortion law reform entitled "Each Child Loved" will be shown Tuesday, July 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank under the auspices of District Health Department No. 3. The public is invited.

Mrs. Frances Hooper, R.N., says the film doesn't take sides on the abortion issue but is merely intended to generate discussion.

Michigan voters will vote on abortion reform law the November election.

"Each Child Loved" is a new production of the George Washington University Medical Center in cooperation with Planned Parenthood-World Population and the National Clergy Consultation Service on Abortion.

It contrasts the experience of a woman undergoing an illegal abortion with that of a woman facing a medically safe, legal abortion performed in a New York clinic. Commentary is by Candice Bergen.

Author Larry Smith Is Due Home Next Week

Autograph Parties At Two Locations

"The Original" by Larry Smith, Herder and Herder, N.Y. $7.95.

Ernest Hemingway drew on his experiences in northern Michigan for material used in many of his short stories and novels.

There are reflections of his native Norwood area in the novels of Rex Beach.

Mark Smith used his native Charlevoix as the setting for his novel, "The Middleman," which appeared in the late 1960's.

And now Larry Smith, a native of Central Lake and a graduate of Charlevoix High School, moves to the area—but he is exceptionally intriguing about life in northern Michigan just before and just after the turn of the century.

Although Smith has lived and worked throughout the country since leaving Charlevoix several years ago, he turned to his boyhood stamping grounds as the setting for his first novel, "The Original," which is now for sale in area bookstores.

Dawkin, who spent her early years in a Kansas City brothel as an aide to the madam.

Sary Dawkin asks Jelm to help her with her chores and after a showdown with his father, Jelm moves into the Dawkin farmhouse as lover and handyman-in-residence.

Through Sary, Jelm learns a more gentle way of living, with books, piano music and the use of Sary's automobile—the first in the area—but he is helpless to overcome the lessons he learned early in life from his hard-driving father.

One of the most exciting passages in the book, and a good example of Smith's prose style to boot, is the description of Jelm's role in the construction of a stone silo for a neighboring farmer, John Soak. Jelm's job was to carry the heavy stones up a ladder to the masons on a scaffold above.

"Halfway up, the rough surface began to cut into his arms and scratch his wrists. His belly felt like it was being crowded up into his breast bone and his tight trousers caught in his crotch, working against the movement of his legs. The ladder shook as he gained another step and he wanted to shout at Ike and Homer to hold tighter, but he didn't have the breath and he was afraid the rock would pull him off the ladder if he turned his head.

"His groin muscles ached and little needles dug into his arms, numbing his fingers. He grew desperate under the weight. His head hurt and there was a stabbing pain in one eye. He could feel the rock slipping.

"Come on, Jelm, come on!" they cried.

"Huh!" He moved up, wading, hating them. "Huh." He grew dizzy, teetering under the rock, feeling as though he'd been tricked by the weight of it, and by the men below. "Huh." He leaned backwards, his knees wobbly, and wondered why he should give a damn about them down there and then he no longer did, and he sat with the rock in his lap. He saw spots as he rested his sweating forehead against the warm granite and he pulled off his hat and flung it outward. The voices spoke.

"Now there's a man for you, by golly," Charley said. "I'll get your hat, Jelm." "Hee hee," Soak laughed, "hee hee. We got to get that boy in a circus."

In addition to the major figures, Smith's minor characters are sharp and anything, as though cut from native hardwood: Sim Stone, the red-headed, buck-toothed, sex-starved lumberjack who killed a man at Seney and spent time in Jackson prison; Alice Kuebler, the scheming farm girl who works her feminine wiles on Jelm; sister Hilda, who is willing to help Jelm for a pack of chewing gum; Rev. Dillon, who knows sin when he sees it; and Fred Conant, the public relations-minded storekeeper who locks up rather than do business adulterers.

The son of a lumberjack-turned-farmer, Lige Garrett, and his hard-working, perennially unhappy wife, Martha, Jelm Garrett senses from his limited schooling that there is something more to life than the drudgery of farm chores and the bone-cracking labor of the fields.

The eldest of many children, Jelm is pampered as a boy but is yressed into a man's role early in life to help his father provide for a growing family.

After the death of his school teacher, Annie Finch, Jelm's schooling ends for all practical purposes. Annie's successor is a frail young school marm from Cheboygan, Miss Gilling, who is scarcely older than Jelm. When she disciplines him, he quits school for good.

Jelm's father became a respecter of hard work in the lumber camps and carries his fondness for bull labor over to the farm, attempting to install the same drive in his sons, particularly Jelm.

Despite his efforts, Lige is barely able to keep food on the table for his growing brood, to the chagrin of his dour and ever-complaining wife.

Jelm does acquire his father's passion for physical labor, but his strength and determination are undetermined by the sure knowledge that education can open doors to a brighter and more rewarding life.

As a result, Jelm is drawn steadily throughout the novel toward a neighboring farm widow twice his age, Sary

MRS. MARY SMITH of Charlevoix examines copy of her son Larry's first novel, "The Original." Smith is a copy editor for the New York Daily News and lives in Irvington, N.Y.

Charlevoix readers will find plenty in "The Original" aside from place names (Antrim City, Beaver Island, Gaylord, and others) to remind them of home. Smith has lived through the biting cold of northern Michigan winters and the blistering heat of inland hayfields in July and he talks of each with a knowledge born of experience.

So pick up a copy of "The Original." You won't be able to put it down. (B.C.)

Dr. and Mrs. Lyle Anee enjoyed the company of their daughter, Alice, and her Ann Arbor roommate, Miss Karen Hinkle, over the long Fourth of July weekend. Miss Hinkle, whose home is in Garden City, attends school in Ann Arbor the year around, and Miss Anee, who received her Bachelor of Science degree in biology last year, is now in her second year in dental school. She plans to become a dentist on completion of her studies.

Mrs. Pat Bloom drove to Canton, Ohio, last week, trapping off Steve and Janice with Pat's sister, Mrs. John Ford. On July 5 the children flew to Chicago and are staying with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Salove. They are taking in the sights of the big city and will return to Charlevoix this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leiden, South Barron, entertained 22 guests at their home on July 4th. The guests were treated to char-broiled venison steaks, an unusual event for these visitors from near and far who then enjoyed walking in the woods, gathering flowers, and just plain having fun.

William Golden, his wife, Susan, and their family are spending part of their vacation at Pine Point year in the Pontus cottage. William, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Golden of Charlevoix, resides in Westland where he is the managing editor of the F.T.D. Magazine.

Adorning the walls of the Bay Chautau dining room are several paintings done by Ljuba Buro of Detroit. He and a friend recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Leuthaus, owners of the Bay Chautau and, old friends, Mrs. Leuthaus, known to her friends as Renee, at one time owned the Renée Galleries in Detroit, now called the Galleries of Ljuba Buro.

Ironton

Mrs. Ross Alexander

Dr. and Mrs. Sprague Gardner of Indianapolis are spending several weeks in their summer home on Orchard Hill.

Mr. Edward Beene, a retired Detroit policeman and resident of Ironton the past 25 years, received a pleasant surprise on the 4th of July. He was presented with his 50 year Masonic membership pin from the Detroit Acacia Masonic Lodge No. 477.

Mr. Bernard Lloyd of Gaylord, a past master of the Acacia Lodge, was here to present the membership pin to Mr. Beene.

Bible School was held at the Ironton Church the last two weeks in June under the supervision of Mrs. Ethel Kroll with 17 children attending. Susan Saunders assisted with the teaching duties.

Also helping were Mrs. Shirley Kemp, Mrs. Carol Nielsen, Diane Alexander and Mrs. Sam Alexander. A picnic and swimming party was held at the North Beach to celebrate the conclusion of a very successful two weeks. Several of the mothers attended the final day.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Porter of Grand Rapids spent the holiday weekend in their summer cottage east of the ferry.

Mrs. Dae Orvis and daughter Daeann Fzgenpes and Marlae Harper of Mt. Morris spent several days as guests of Mrs. Lydia Orvis. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Niesen have returned home after spending the past 10 days in Erickson, Manitoba, as guests of the latter's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beattie.

Last summer Lester Gladhand was accused of being antisocial.

Now he has a Gas grill.

Lester's really a warmhearted fellow, but whenever the Gladhands had friends over for a barbecue, Lester was busy. Busy with the briquets. Busy with the starter fluid. Busy keeping the fire going. Busy trying to keep clean. Just too busy to be social.

Now Lester has a Gas grill. He lifts the cover and lights the grill. And he becomes the life of the party. Since you're going to cook anyway, why not cook the fun way—on an outdoor Gas grill. And enjoy the party!

See the Gas grills on display at Gas appliance dealers and Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showrooms.

Just think of a Gas grill as a social asset.

SLOWPITCH
Well, there are no undefeated slowpitch teams around any more. The Townhouse took care of that when they beat Medusa 11-6 in a dazzling display of hitting and good fielding. Medusa had won six straight and appeared to be a "shoo-in" to win their division. The defeat however, makes a real race now.

Jerry Stewart supplied the big hits with two long home runs. Gary Crain hit one for the losers.

The Woodshed kept its narrow one-game margin over Topside with two wins. They beat Andy's Tire World 10-4 with Bernie DeVries and Glen Taylor hitting two home runs. Teammate Joe Beaudine chipped in with one. They had little trouble with Airport Inn beating them 10-3. This time home runs were supplied by Pete Oliver, Owen Faust, and Andy Peters.

Andy's edged American Mold 11-9 with one of their typical rallies. They scored five times in the seventh inning for the win. Tom Collins had two of the winner's homers while Larry Bergman had two for the losers.

Freedmans got into the win column with a forfeit win over Howard's. Topside unloaded its homerun barrage against Portside Sports winning 10-6. Glen Cunningham hit two, and Tim Doan, Stew Coleman, and Ralph Doan hit one for the winners. Harry Gibbs and Randy Woods hit one each for the losers.

American Mold made short work of Jim's Standard winning 12-0. Ron Bindi had two homers and Mike Crain one for the winners. Topside scored five times in the fifth to win 6-5. Terry Blissett and Ralph Doan hit winner's homers and Doan had a perfect night at the plate with three hits.

Portside handed Freedmans at 16-4 defeat with Randy Woods collecting four straight hits including two home runs.

FASTPITCH
County State Bank surprised Porters with an airtight defense and fine pitching for a 2-0 win. Gary Crain scattered five hits and brother Mike landed two hits to lead the winners.

In a wild card special fastpitch game Novak's gave the home crowd something to buzz and cheer about when they came behind with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to squeeze past Atkins of Boyne City 4-3. Stew Coleman homered with two outs and no one on in the seventh to save the game. Kraag Lieberman coaxed a walk then stole two bases. Ralph Doan singled sharply up the middle and the Charlevoix gang had an story-book-finish victory. Larry Potter scattered four hits for the winners.

Rain forced postponement of the other two league contests.

PEANUT LEAGUE
The Braves handed the Cubs their first loss, edging them 6-7. The losers scored twice in the last of the seventh and had the winning run on base when the game ended.

The Astros looked sharp in punning a 16-1 defeat on the Tigers. Joe Schmidt had two winner's hits while brother Pat allowed the loser's only three hits.

The Tigers turned around to surprise the Cards 11-2, using 11 walks to great advantage. Mike Martin had two hits to lead the winners.

WOMEN'S SLOWPITCH
Bob's defeated Freedmans to remain undefeated in league play. Freedmans put up a strong fight but fell by a 6-0 score. Connie Doan and Julie Christian had two hits each for the winners. Joan Waggoner and Judy Potter had two hits each for the losers.

The Woodshed scored a 10-5 win over Arvilla's, scoring in every inning. Bonnie Dixon and Clara Martin had three hits each for the winners.

The Hospital scored three times in the sixth inning then held on for a 12-10 win over Townhouse. Kathy Egler led the winners with four hits while Betty White had three for the losers.

Lake Michigan Parley Slated for September

Francis T. Mayo, Midwest Regional Administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, today announced the reconvening of the Lake Michigan Enforcement Conference for Sept. 19 in Chicago. The conference is expected to continue for several days.

This will be the fourth session of the Lake Michigan conference to be convened since it first opened in January of 1968.

"Among the major issues for consideration," said Mayo "will be thermal pollution, pesticides, chlorides, status of compliance by municipalities and industries and related matters."

The enforcement conference is a legal mechanism set up by the Federal Water Pollution Control Act which encourages Federal-State cooperation in pollution abatement actions for interstate waters.

Mayo will serve as the conference chairman. The conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Ball Tabarin Room of the Sherman House Hotel in Chicago, Clark and Randolph Streets. Parties to the conference, in addition to the EPA, will be the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the Michigan Water Resources Commission, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources and the Indiana Stream Pollution Control Board.

Library Notes

Those of our patrons who enjoy reading the newest books on the latest best seller lists will be pleased to know that the Library has the following titles all new, all highly recommended and beginning with:

"The Word" written by the incomparable storyteller, Irving Wallace. Any book by this author is an absorbing experience and this, his latest, ranks at the top of the list of his important contributions to fine literature. The plot deals with a momentous archaeological discovery, the greatest of all time. In the ruins of an ancient seaport town in Rome, a faded first-century papyrus has been discovered which reveals a new gospel written by Jesus, the younger brother of Jesus. In international organization becomes involved in the discovery, created to exploit the new Bible. Moving from New York and London to Amsterdam, Paris, Frankfurt, Rome—from the British Museum to a French radio-carbon laboratory, from the Dutch Waterkerk to a monastery on a French peninsula, a cynical and successful young public relations man pursues the shadowy, mysterious figure—convict, madman, genius—who alone knows the truth about The Word. Sheer, marvelous entertainment!

Taylor Caldwell has done the world a favor by coming out with a new book, "Captains and the Kings," a novel about an American dynasty. As usual, in typical Caldwell fashion, this is a surprising tale about a colossal fortune, the political power that comes with it and the operation of a curse laid on an Irish-American dynasty.

A charge that Lisa Irene White, 17, Charlevoix, failed to yield the right-of-way was dismissed as trial.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Judge W. Richard Smith:

Marion Young jr., 31, Charlevoix, was assessed $125 for permitting an intoxicated person to operate his motor vehicle. He also surrendered his driver's license for 90 days.

Louis L. Smith, 24, Boyne Falls, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of impaired driving. He was assessed $100.

Wilbur Lee Stark, 47, East Jordan, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He will be sentenced later.

Alice Case, 41, Charlevoix, was assessed $25 as a disorderly person.

John M. Broder, 20, Cleveland, was assessed $75 for reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

Robert Ance, Boyne City, pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support. Sentence was suspended.

John Andrew Fortune, 36, Boyne Falls, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving with a suspended license. Trial will be held later.

A charge of assault and battery lodged against Donald R. Mason, Boyne City, was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

A charge of unlawfully driving away an automobile lodged against Gregory Argetinger, 18, East Jordan, was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

A charge of non-support lodged against Peter A. Faskey, Boyne City, was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

Leon Wilhelm, 19, Petoskey, was found not guilty of a motor vehicle violation.

A charge that Lisa Irene White, 17, Charlevoix, failed to yield the right-of-way was dismissed as trial.

Just Give Us Time; Summer's Due Soon

There used to be a saying to the effect that if you don't like the weather in northern Michigan, just wait a minute. Well, sir, our minutes have stretched into hours, our hours into days, our days into weeks and our weeks into months — and there still is no sign that a good old blistering summer is anywhere in the vicinity.

Meteorologists last week blamed our chilly weather on a mass of arctic air sitting over Nebraska. They said changes in the jet stream had spread the clammy chill over much of North America, to the consternation of campers, resorters and travelers generally.

If it's any consolation to our visitors, they should remember that Charlevoix isn't suffering along.

Furnaces throughout the Detroit metropolitan area clicked on last week when the mercury dropped into the 40's, an unheard-of occurrence in steamy southeastern Michigan in July.

So just give us a few more minutes. Things are bound to change for the better.

E.J. Merits Applause For Sewage System

Congratulations to the people of East Jordan on completion of their new $500,000 sewage disposal system which was officially dedicated Saturday, five months ahead of the state deadline.

Although the project was ordered by the state, the East Jordan City Council threw its full weight behind the project from the start.

The council could clearly see the public relations value in being able to say that the City of East Jordan was not contributing one iota to the pollution of the Jordan River or the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Today the city can make such a claim without fear of contradiction.

Under the East Jordan system, sewage is pumped from the old treatment facility near Sportsman's Park to two huge lagoons at the airport where it is broken down by bacteria action. From the lagoons, the effluent is sprayed on sections of the airport property where nutrients are returned to the soil and the purified water is filtered back into the earth.

No waste water — not even treated water — is introduced into the lake.

Former Mayor Jerry Olson, present Mayor Harry Watson and their colleagues on the East Jordan Council should stand up and take a bow.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: Just before dark the other night I followed a bicyclist who had an extra red light fastened to the calf of his leg. Looks like a good idea because it made him so visible. Are these legal? A.L.W., Lansing

ANSWER: It does not substitute for lawful bike equipment requirements, but does appear to be an excellent supplemental device. Especially on those bikes whose self-generating tail lights diminish in glow when the peddler is in a coasting or stopped position.

QUESTION: Since I drive a great deal naturally I get more exposure to accidents and more tickets for violations. I noticed some new printing on my last one that wasn't on before. It says: "Failure to comply with this citation may result in a suspension of your license to drive." Can this happen? S.G.V., Lawrence

ANSWER: It isn't true that traffic violations have to increase in direct proportion to amount of exposure. In fact someone driving as much as you should be more informed of correct driving procedures, existing laws and laws, and defensive driving tactics, and have a better record than the average. Especially with your alertness and perception of the new inscription on the uniform traffic ticket. This was inspired by action of our State Safety Commission when that group learned that many drivers who had failed to answer a court summons for a traffic ticket did not know this would bring about a timely suspension of their driving privileges. This new warning was approved by the legally constituted officials (or their representatives), working cooperatively.

QUESTION: My driving record has a point on it even though the judge dismissed the ticket when I saw him in court. I thought you had to be convicted, or "found guilty" before the point system applied? E.S.R.,

Why Should JBS Form Own Party?

June 23, 1972

Editor, Charlevoix Courier

Dear Mr. Clock,

Your editorial of June 7, "Why Must John Birchers Subvert Existing Parties?" raises some questions.

Should membership in an organization abrogate one from political activity? How about AFL-CIO; Council on Foreign Relations; Americans For Democratic Action; American Legion; Elks; Masonic members—would you suggest their forming splinter parties? They are equally "semi-secretive" while their membership far exceeds that of the JBS.

How do you equate "less government, more responsibility and with God's help a better world" as political thought alien to American soil? These are the three tenets of the JBS.

Are there any "traditional Republican values" remaining? Please list them in theory matched by practice.

Responsibility begins and ends with individuals—from the man on the street, to the man in the factory, to the man in the pulpit, to the man in the newspaper business.

Have you read Gary Allen's book, "None Dare Call It Conspiracy"? It helps make many things "perfectly clear."

"Thou shalt not bear false witness" is a big order and it seems to me doubly so when one is fortunate enough to own a newspaper. Responsibility is a big word.

Thank you for your time. A copy of "None Dare Call It Conspiracy" under separate cover.

Sincerely,
J.C. Mathias
915 E. Sandusky St., Findlay, Ohio 45840

How Can Dem Get In Paper?

July 7, 1972

Mr. Bob Clock,
Charlevoix Courier Corporation,
111 Bridge Street,
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Clock:

According to "the Courier," the Charlevoix County Republican Committee formally disassociated itself with State Representative Richard Fritzsche. They also approved resolution authorizing the chairman to endorse a candidate and support him at his discretion. The Courier goes on to mention by name, the candidate who will undoubtedly receive the chairman's endorsement.

The purpose of my letter is to state that Charles A. "Tony" Duerr has the endorsement of the Charlevoix County Democratic Committee since he first announced his candidacy for State Representative, 10th district. Since our candidate has no opposition, perhaps you feel we, the Democratic Party are not worthy of "front page" news. Now, I ask you, how can a Democrat get his name mentioned in your paper?

Very truly yours,
Clem Wagner, Chairman
Charlevoix County Democratic Committee

(Editor's note: Mr. Duerr's candidacy already has been reported in the Courier.)

Vigilance Is Price Of Freedom

Editor, Charlevoix Courier

Canada's Dominion Day July 1 and the United States' Independence Day July 4 are two outstanding reminders that freedom and liberty may not be taken for granted.

That vigilance is the price of liberty is a proven truth as history has shown. The fine good people of Germany and Spain awakened too late.

Mr. Clock, these words are written due to your timely editorial in Wednesday's June 28 Charlevoix Courier on "Welch Does Thinking For J.B.S."

The factual quoted information taken from "The Blue Book" is required reading.

Your editorial is a significant contribution to needed watchfulness and active guarding of the freedoms of our democracy.

Clockwise

With the tourist season hard upon us once again, the Courier is reprinting a "Clockwise" column which appeared June 29, 1969. Read on for a nostalgic visit to days past when the traveling public shared living quarters with field mice and fought for survival against the elements with only a wood stove and a cord of wet firewood.

By BOB CLOCK

Thanks to the modern motel, life of the highway traveler has changed radically in the past 20 years. Vacationers undoubtedly are more comfortable today, but some of the adventure of taking a long journey by car has been sacrificed to steam heat and terrazzo showers.

For one thing, few people travel today without reservations. Some motel chains even will wire ahead across the country for you, making sure you'll have lodging all the way from Charlevoix to San Francisco.

When I started driving it was pretty much a gamble whether you'd find something for the night or not. If you didn't, you'd have to sleep in a home or one of those now-forgotten tourist cabins. The motel hadn't been invented yet.

If you stayed in a tourist cabin, conditions were primitive at best. Most tourist cabins were built by enterprising farmers who threw up a half dozen or more eight-by-eight shacks, and presto! They were in the tourist business.

You usually got sulfur tasting water from the farmer's well and washed in a tin basin. If you bothered to wash, plumbing was non-existent, with one outdoor toilet serving the entire transient community. Heat was supplied by a wood stove and there usually was an abandoned icebox somewhere on the premises to keep your beer cold. Otherwise you put it in the lake. If there was one.

And if you were the first customers of the season you got to chase all of the field mice out of the dresser drawers. I'll never forget a rainy day I was driving with a friend, Fred Shaw, across the Ontario wilderness from Ottawa to Georgian Bay. The temperature had been dropping steadily, the car heater wasn't working, and by the time we reached Gravenhurst we were both ready to call it day.

Suddenly a big sign reading "Heated Cabins" appeared dimly ahead through the rain-streaked windshield. We pulled off the road and stopped near a lighted building which looked as though it might be the office. We called the owner from his supper and he allowed as he had a cabin which might suit us. He climbed into his pickup truck and we followed over a deeply rutted road to a water-logged shanty on the banks of a river. We all ducked inside and the owner pulled a string illuminating a single dim bulb dangling on a cord in the center of the kitchen.

"It's all I've got left, but she's good and snug," he said gleefully, thumping a rusty sheet metal stove with the palm of his hand. "Plenty of firewood on the porch. It's a little damp with this rain, but I've a little lamp kinkling up at the house. Warm you up in no time."

The day was already well spent, so we decided to take the cabin.

The landlord was right about the stove. It was a regular little old black furnace once we got it going, using kindling and shredded newspaper which mice had left in one of the dresser drawers. A few sticks of damp wood from the porch added to the blaze and soon the little stove began to glow. You could see flames flicking up the inside of the rusty flue through pin-point holes.

We sat down to soak up the warmth, but I shortly found ourselves edging away from the stove.

"I think we need a window open in here," Fred said by and by. "It's getting a little warm."

"Must be well open the door too," I said. "The oil cloth on the table has started to blister."

Apparently the damper on this particular stove had been in an earlier conflagration, because I couldn't figure out why we had to let the fire burn itself out as the temperature inside the cabin soared. I checked once with a little thermometer across the room from the stove and found it registering 104 degrees. When I stepped outside in the rain to cool off I saw the whole water-soaked cabin was steaming like a sauna bath.

In 20 minutes the fire died and by 3 o'clock in the morning the temperature inside the cabin sank to 40 degrees. A family of field mice left of its own accord (we could hear them sneezing on their way out) and Fred and I followed them very shortly.

Old hotels catering to the traveling public sometimes are quite interesting. Once in Ann Arbor I stepped into one of the restrooms of an ancient hostelry and sank through the floor up to my knees. I examined the floor later and discovered it was made of Sunbust orange crates.

"There is another hotel in Canada that always gives me the shivers. The first thing that catches your eye when you enter one of the upstairs rooms is a huge coil of rope wrapped like a serpent around one of the bedposts. In the event of fire you throw one end of the rope out the window and scramble down to safety.

The management also has a quaint ritual they go through as soon as you get in bed. Downstairs someone fills an old chest of drawers with water. The several members of the hotel staff take turns pushing it across the lobby, slithering into one wall and then another, until it reaches the room to time of the potted plants. All night long you can hear its rusty casters creaking and groaning and the water sloshing back and forth in the drawers.

Each morning I've checked the lobby without success for some sign of their nightly reveals. They must keep the dresser hidden in a closet somewhere and get the whole gang out early with mops to clean up the mess. It's possible they're drowning field mice, but that's an awful lot of trouble when it's so easy to freeze them out.

MISSING CHIEF

And then I wrote...

It was my teenage daughter who complained that I am the only man in the nation who is not letting his sideburns grow.

There is a reason. I have queer sideburns. So far, only my barbers have known for sure. Why should I let the whole world see?

Honest. I think those other guys look great with hair down their cheeks. They look like Scarlett O'Hara is waiting for them to come home — and they're not sure they'll go, the dogs. But such cavalier grooming is not for me. You see, ever since I can remember, I've had this thing...

My mother said my barber to the two other barbers, "look at this kid. I never saw anything like it before. His hair grows straight down the left side and straight back on the right. Run across the street and tell Charley to 'emore. I want him to see this."

And that's how it's been all my life. I need a haircut on the left side two weeks earlier than I need on the right. My left eye is covered with shaggy hair while my right eye is bare. That right ear has been washed twice as much as the other one.

When haircut money was hard to come by, I naturally didn't go to the barber until the right side needed it. In the meantime, Mother had me wear a peaked cap tilted rakishly over my left eyebrow. I put my left elbow on my desk and rested the left side of my head in the palm of my left hand. I even maintained this protective coloration while walking between classrooms. People stared but I told them I had an earache.

The ideal arrangement, of course, would have been to get one haircut in two installments. For a 41 haircut, I'd go 50 cents for the left side one Saturday of the month, and the other 50 cents for the right side the third Saturday. But I could never find a barber to go along with this. Generally speaking, they are a surly lot. On their part too much, I guess.

I have been in several friendly barbershops in my time. When I was a teenager, my favorite trimmer was named Milken. He had several pool tables in the rear of his establishment. A guy didn't mind waiting to get his haircut because the time playing 9-ball. The only trouble was that I frequently lost and by the time Milken said I was "next," the haircut money was gone. I would pull the cap over both ears, and have two earaches, until the next payday.

After World War II, when I was a crusty veteran, I discovered the barbershop in the ancient Harrington Hotel in Port Huron. It was across a basement hall from the taproom. A guy could wait his turn at the bar. I used to go downtown for a haircut on Saturday morning and get back home Sunday morning.

Why I Don't Grow Sideburns morning. I kept generously allowing people to go ahead of me. "I'm in no hurry," I'd explain, "I'm waiting for my right side to catch up with my left side."

But I digress. I started to explain to my daughter why her square old man doesn't let his sideburns grow. It is because I would look lopsided. The left sideburn would grow down toward my shins while the right sideburn grew

Archeologists Seek Grave Of Leif Erickson's Kin

Did Norsemen discover America 400 years ago?

Does the Viking victim of an Indian arrow still rest along a Labrador shoreline?

Dr. William Fitzhugh of the Smithsonian Institution hopes to find out this summer, or at least to uncover more clues in what may be one of the most intriguing mysteries since Indians laid eyes on their first paleface.

Norsemen had massed eight of them found sleeping beneath canoes overturned on a beach.

The 400 or so Vikings aboard their ship were impressed with the large trees and 700-foot hoodlums they had found overlooking a long inlet now called Melville Lake. Only painstaking pondering of descriptions in old Norse sagas has led today's investigators to what they think is the inlet.

But finding the grave will require the sharpest detective work hunting out even the vaguest disturbance of nature's hand on the shore — a depression in shore gravel, an out-of-place growth of fireweed, rock broken or moved apparently by man.

The archaeologists don't expect to find any sign of the wooden crew or pair of crossed blades. They are looking for Vikings said they left marking the grave. But there is a chance that the Vikings, hurrying in their fear of the Indians, may not have dug a grave but merely covered the grave with a cairn of rocks.

Such a cairn might survive undisturbed. Dr. Fitzhugh believes, especially if the Indians' curiosity was overcomen by their kindly superstition of the cross.

ANOTHER BODY FOUND

Hopes that some indication may have survived the severe environment as been increased by a report of another body found on a nearby island some 10 years ago. Supposedly fishermen uncovered a grave containing a leather coat, leather shoes, and a sword bearing the date 1501—the year a Portuguese explorer, Miguel Corteal, disappeared.

She said since the weather was so awful they didn't do much to entertain their guests but that all enjoyed a good visit.

This may be a summer for everybody getting reacquainted since they have little opportunity to enjoy the usual pleasures of nature. Mrs. Margery Coleman, Leo Carey's daughter, has been entertaining her aunt, Mrs. Guy Weller of Ithaca, Mich. and Mrs. Weller's son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Weller, along with their daughter, Alese. 3. The variances heretofore granted pursuant to the above petition are hereby vacated.

4. A variance from the provisions of Section 602 of Ordinance No. 203 is hereby granted, waiving the height restrictions imposed by said Section to the extent of 49½ feet to enable the construction of a condominium substantially as set forth in the Site and Erection Plans dated June 30, 1972, as prepared by Davenport & Associates, of the said Grand Rapids, Michigan, said height to be measured from an elevation which is the average of the surface elevation of Michigan Street as it abuts the premises to the elevation of the highest point on the flat roof of the structures proposed to be constructed on said premises.

5. A variance is hereby granted from the requirements of Section 603 of said Ordinance, waiving the front-yard setback requirement of twenty-five (25) feet to a setback of eight (8) feet in order to erect a wall not to exceed a six-foot height above the gutter elevation along U.S. Highway 31, (Michigan Avenue) provided that not more than one foot of said wall facing the Highway be exposed; said wall to be constructed substantially in accordance with the drawing prepared by the said Davenport & Associates, dated June 30, 1972, and denominated Job No. 7112-16.

DNR Seeks Whopping Cutback in Deer Kill

The Department of Natural Resources is recommending that Michigan's 1972 take of antlerless deer be cut back 48 percent from last year's quota, down to only 9,800 animals for the Nov. 15-30 firearm season.

Plans for the reduced harvest will go to the Natural Resources Commission for action at its July 13-14 meeting at Caberfae Lodge, Cadillac.

In the case of the Upper Peninsula, the DNR is calling for a 90-percent drop in this season's antlerless deer quota. That recommendation accounts for the fact that fawn production above the Straits has been badly and seriously reduced in the last four winters which took a high toll of deer during yarding seasons and sharply undercut survival of young animals in the spring.

400 D.N.P.
 In view of the situation, the DNR is proposing that this fall's antlerless deer season in the Upper Peninsula be limited to the southern part of Menominee County below U.S. 2, and even there it is recommending that the harvest of these animals be modestly set at 600.

Throughout the remainder of the Upper Peninsula, bucks-only hunting would be the rule this fall. As DNR game men explain it, most of the region does not have enough surplus deer to make it worthwhile, from a practical management standpoint, to open any other areas to antlerless hunting this fall.

For the northern Lower Peninsula, where antlerless kill quotas have been cut nearly in half during each of the last two seasons, the DNR is calling for another substantial reduction—43 percent in the 1972 take of these animals.

Plans to scale down that region's harvest of antlerless deer to 4,980 animals are part of the DNR's recent efforts to promote deer build-ups in areas of northern Lower Michigan where the range shows the potential for carrying more whitetails through the crucial winter period.

Under this approach, boosted by the DNR's stepped-because of the steadily deteriorating condition of the region's winter range.

Instead, they're looking ahead to 1973 at this point, hoping that this fall's proposed, virtual closure of antlerless deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula will help produce a good fawn crop next spring.

The age structure of the herd is now largely made up of older animals because the past four severe winters have made such a "bust" of fawn survival in the Upper Peninsula.

It is pegged to the DNR's attempts to keep southern Michigan's deer populations at maximum levels compatible with "people" interests in that densely-populated part of the state. More than anything else, the DNR's proposed quota for the region is programmed to holding car-deer accidents down as much as possible.

Last year, about 4,800 of these accidents were reported in the southern Michigan. Statewide, the DNR's proposed antlerless quota for this fall represents only a little more than one-fifth of what it was in 1969, owing to reduced kill levels which have been set since then for northern Michigan.

14,000 IN 1971
 Preliminary estimates from the DNR's traffic survey last season indicate that Michigan's deer hunters took about 14,000 antlerless deer in 1971 out of their quota of 19,000.

The survey placed last season's antlerless harvest at 3,000 in the Upper Peninsula, 2,000 in the northern Lower Peninsula, and 4,000 in southern Michigan.

Results of the same survey point to a back kill of 45,000 for Michigan hunters in 1971. That figure, 11,000 bucks were shot in the Upper Peninsula, and 25,000 came from the northern Lower Peninsula, and 13,000 were harvested in southern Michigan.

HOPE DIM
 Reflecting back on the deer picture for the Upper Peninsula, the DNR says it is not holding out any big hopes for a major, long-term upswing in whitetail numbers

As an experiment, the DNR is proposing that antlerless hunting in the southern part of Menominee County be regulated by a camp or party permit system. Under that system, each party of four hunters covered by a permit would be allowed to take one antlerless deer for the group.

A total of 800 party permits will be issued for the Menominee County area.

In many state game areas, heavy gun pressure early in the season leaves hunters

Boss, Elzinga Rites Solemnized

Sharon Kay Boss became the bride of Charles H. Elzinga in a double-ring ceremony July 15 at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, the Rev. Albert F. Mansen officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Boss of North Point, Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Elzinga, 1200 State-st., Charlevoix.

They repeated vows they had written themselves under a cedar arbor entwined with garden flowers. The pews were decorated with cedar boughs entwined with pink and white garden flowers. The altar featured arrangements of delphiniums, pink carnations and daisies, against a background of cedar boughs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon sheer, fashioned with Empire bodice, high neckline, bishop sleeves and an A-line skirt extending into a chapel train with a wide ruffle around the bottom. The bodice was with Chantilly lace, with accents of Chantilly lace on the skirt. A Juliet-style cap of lace held an elbow-length veil of imported illusion and she carried a bouquet of multi-colored garden flowers.

An informal reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

THERE'S MORE to sailing than meets the eye, as these Flint area Explorer Scouts discovered last week. There's a lot of work involved. But one does have moments of relaxation when the boat's in port. Here the entire crew of Flint Explorers pause for a moment before eating dinner to pose on the deck of Prevailing Winds II.

Flint Scouts Explore Lakes in Own Ketch

Charlevoix's City Dock had an unusual visitor last week as the Prevailing Winds II, a 48 foot diesel powered ketch, spent a few days here.

The yacht is a first of its kind. It was designed by Harrell Industries especially for the use of Explorer groups associated with the Boy Scouts of America. The 18-ton fiberglass hull will accommodate 22 Scouts. Prevailing Winds II was the first such ketch out of the mold, and is one year old.

Tall Pines Council of Flint, Michigan owns the ketch, and charters it out to interested Scout groups throughout the midwest. Each group has the boat for one week at a cost of $500.

SLOW PITCH
The first round of the men's slow pitch is just about decided. Medusa clinched their division despite losing to Woodshed during the week. Meanwhile Woodshed only had a game with Howards standing between them and their division title.
Andy's used their typical late inning rally to beat Portside Sports 4-1. Three late inning runs did the trick.
The Airport continued to improve as they beat Howards 5-2. Ron Himebaugh and Rick Rickard exchanged home runs. Al Seese collected three hits to pace the winners.
Woodshed proved, at least in their first showdown with Medusa, that they will be the team to beat for the title as they won a 10-4 verdict. Home runs by D.J. Faust, Bernie DeVries, and Al Wojan greatly aided the cause.
Tim Doan's two homers and brother Ralph's three hits paced Topsiside to a 17-1 win over Freedman.
Airport Bar won a well-played contest with Townhouse by a 3-1 score. Beano Archery and Jack Niswander had two hits each for the Airport Roger Crain's four hits led American Mold to an 15-9 win over Portside. Krug Lieberman had two homers in a losing cause.
Howards scored five sixth inning runs to break away from Andy's and post an 11-3 win. Louis Upton of the winners led all hitters with two home runs.
Howards edged Jim's Standard 8-4. Marie Karakin, Dave Raich, and Rick Rickard all homered for the winners.

Le Havre

A BOATYARD CONDOMINIUM ON CHARLEVOIX HARBOR

CONSTRUCTION is scheduled to start in August on Le Havre condominium, to be located on the south shore of Round Lake on the former Robert Hamilton property. Architect for the project is H. Jack Begrow of Charlevoix. A full boatyard operation will be maintained in front of the dwelling units, planned for both sides of Alice-st.

Allstate Invests in County

Allstate Insurance Companies have invested more than $100,000 in bonds in Charlevoix County, according to Regional Manager Donal C. Bolton.
Charlevoix County investments are part of more than $50 million in bonds held by Allstate in 40 counties in Michigan, Bolton pointed out.
Local Allstate investments involved the Charlevoix and Antrim County schools, said Bolton.
Other Allstate investments have helped build university housing, parks, sewer and water systems, municipal parking structures, and airport improvements.
"It is Allstate policy to support the growth and development of areas in which we do business by investing in local communities and industries," said Bolton. "We are a corporate citizen in each of the communities in which our offices are located. Like all citizens, we will share in continued growth and prosperity."

LA HAVRE condominiums will have sea-faring touch since much of the present Hamilton Boatyard will be retained. The boatyard will be operated by Joel Arvillia and Brian Seymour of Charlevoix.

Old Jewelry Is Feature of Antiques Fair

Antique jewelry restoration is one of the so-called lost arts that has been found again by at least one of the exhibitors at the Petoskey Antiques Fair to be held in the 4-H Building of Emmet County Fairgrounds July 23 through 28.
Richard E. LoBuono of Madera Beach, Fla., will demonstrate his craft during the four-day antiques show and will have antique jewelry and hand-made jewelry restorations on display for sale.
Antique jewelry requires handcrafting of replacement parts in order to retain the "feel" of the original piece when restoring a missing jewel, bead or scroll. This is one of the specialties of LoBuono.
In addition to antique jewelry, there will be furniture, jade, ivory, oriental rugs, clocks, dolls, silver, depression glass, art glass, pressed glass, lamps, and American primitives at the Antiques Fair.
The Petoskey Antiques Fair will be open from 10:00-10:00 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, July 22-27.

Second Condo Planned

LaHavre to Rise On Hamilton Site

Work is scheduled to begin in August on the second condominium on the south shore of Round Lake at the site of the present Hamilton Boatyard.
The new housing structures will be called Le Havre, according to the developers, James Craig and Robert Collins of Ann Arbor and Charlevoix.
The condominiums will be located on each side of Alice-st., with 26 units slated for construction in three phases.
The first Round Lake condominium, The Wharf, is nearing completion on the south side of the lake near Ward's Boat Livery. Construction is scheduled to start shortly on a third condominium, La Croft, at the foot of Dixon-ave. on Lake Michigan.
Craig and Collins both have expressed an interest in retaining the "boatyard" character of Round Lake. As a result, they have planned their condo units on only half of the Hamilton property. A complete boatyard operation will be continued on the shore, under the management of Joel Arvillia and Brian Seymour of Charlevoix.
In addition to dockage, boat utilities and boat service, new facilities will include complete marine supplies, a ship's store, dockside showers, Gulf oil products and commodities such as ice, beer and wine.
Also planned are classes in sailing, daily sail boat rentals, big boat charters and dockside catering by Grey Gables restaurant.
One, two and three-bedroom units will be available, with prices ranging from $2,500 to $65,000. They will be built around a swimming pool, with each unit commanding a view of Round Lake and adjoining waterways.

Arrangements will be made to allow the owners to lease their apartments by the week or weekend through a rental management service.
Ski and Shore Properties, Inc., are handling sales of LeHavre condominiums.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

When I was a kid in Detroit, an old lady lived in our neighborhood who wove a waste paper basket on her head, lit her home with kerosene lamps, drew water from a hand pump in the yard and tied a handkerchief over her mouth whenever she went outdoors.

We kids said she "had bats in her belfry," although few of us knew what a belfry was and none of us had ever come face to face with a bat.

The same can't be said of kids in Charlevoix today, particularly if they live in older neighborhoods where colonies of bats have taken up residence under the dark eaves of ancient homes. They come out just at dusk, swooping blindly across the darkening sky, catching mosquitoes and other unfortunate insects.

And occasionally one will find its way indoors.

Let me tell you how it happened at our house the other night.

Judy was out at a church meeting and I was left to babysit. As soon as it was reasonably dark outside, I told Danny up to his crib and told the girls to get ready for bed. I stretched out on the chaise on the side porch to catch up on some reading.

All was quiet for a few minutes when I heard footsteps in the dining room. It was Allison.

"Daddy, there's a wasp in our room and I can't sleep," she informed me tearfully.

I assured her that it was absolutely impossible for a wasp to have gotten into the house and told her it was a figment of her imagination. I also let her understand that spankings and unkind words were in the offing if she didn't lie herself off to bed.

Five minutes later Jennifer was standing in the doorway.

"Daddy, there's a big moth in our room and I can't sleep," she informed me dismally.

I assured her that if there were a moth in their room it wouldn't hurt them.

"Moths are just big, friendly bugs," I lied and Jennifer went back to bed.

A few minutes later Danny awoke unaccountably and started to cry. I trudged upstairs, picked him up, burped him and put him back in his crib. Then, since he was still fussing, I stretched out on our bed and proceeded to "talk" him to sleep. But I fell asleep before he did.

The next thing I knew, Judy was standing in the middle of the room screaming: "There's a bat in the house!"

I sat up groggily and glanced about me.

"Which way did he go?" I asked.

"I don't know," Judy said. "but he just made a pass at me. Get the smelt net."

On my way downstairs I glanced in the girls' room just in time to see an eerie winged creature swoop over Allison's crib.

I lost no time racing to the back porch where we keep the smelt net and back upstairs. I flipped on the light in the girls' room and saw that Jennifer was awake.

"Are you going fishing this time of night?" she asked, noticing the net.

"Cover up your head," I answered. "There's a bat in here and I'm going to catch him."

She dutifully pulled the blankets up, but they were scarcely enough to stifle her anguished sobs. I scoured the room from top to bottom but couldn't find the bat.

"He got out the same way he got in," I told Judy when the search was ended.

"Let's go to bed."

Ten minutes later I was fast asleep when Judy screamed again.

"He's back in here," she shouted.

"Turn on the light," I commanded.

"I'll get the smelt net in the hall."

But when the light went on, it revealed a good-sized bat traveling in a circular pattern that brought him just over the bed. I couldn't sit up without bumping into him and for a good two minutes we lay there spell-bound. Finally I yanked loose the blanket and threw it at the bat, hoping to trap him. But I missed and the balled up blanket knocked over the lamp.

While Judy struggled to get the lamp lit I snuck out into the hall and fetched the net. Then girded for battle I returned to our room. The bat was still making wide circles over the bed and Judy was wrapped up like a mummy in the sheet. For five minutes I stood in the middle of the room, swiping the net first one way and then another trying to catch our elusive houseguest. Everytime I came close, the bat dodged and I found myself with a netful of thin air.

Then suddenly either I did something right or the bat did something wrong, because Mr. Bat ended up quivering and squeaking in the folds of the net. I trotted him downstairs and left him, net and all, on the front porch.

When I got back upstairs, the light was out.

"Now aren't you glad I took up smelt dipping?" I asked Judy.

There was no answer. She was asleep. Exhaustion, I guess.

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: What does my boyfriend mean when he says he can tell the intersection he is approaching has a stop sign for traffic coming the other way? How did he know that was a stop sign - the printing wasn't visible from where he was sitting?

ANSWER: He has evidently learned the language of the shapes and colors of traffic signs. In this instance it was an eight-sided red sign which always means a complete stop. Rectangular signs give regulations as well as directions. Round yellow and crossbuck signs indicate railroad crossings. A yellow diamond is a warning. A yellow triangle means yield the right-of-way. He sounds like the kind of fellow who'll be alert to the meaning of the new signs we'll soon be seeing in Michigan, based on the manual on uniform traffic control devices.

Jim's Journal

By JIM REUS

Within the halls of sterile academia today there is great debate over the origin and development of personality and intelligence in individuals. Most social scientists believe that environmental factors are prime determinants in intelligence and personality—hence, the criminal is not responsible for the crime he is more properly the victim of fate.

But against the main trend there are a few notable exceptions, led by Arthur Jensen of Berkeley and Richard Herrnstein of Harvard. These men have dared to venture forth in this era of enlightened liberalism that personality and intelligence may be primarily due to genetic factors. The debate on the issue has been hot and heavy, since the outcome will have profound effects on racial problems and future trends in American education.

To settle the question, social scientists have been throwing at each other a lot of data and chi squares—to say nothing of a few nasty names. Although the question is still very much up in the air, it seems to me these scientists could learn much from observing our family's two dogs, Joshua and Thor.

That's right, folks, this week's journal is about dogs. But don't worry, I'm not going to write anything gross or controversial like Clock's treatise on the mating instincts of his female dog, Holly. No sir, this essay is written strictly for the advancement of science—it's something you'll want your kids to read. Besides, both my dogs are males, so you can read on without worry.

Joshua is a St. Bernard puppy and Thor is a five-year-old Labrador Retriever. But to make this really scientific, the case histories of each dog are as follows:

Joshua:
Normal, healthy, St. Bernard canine

Joshua and Thor

who suffered typical childhood dog diseases. Age: 6 months. Head: bilaterally symmetrical, normal. Heart: normal sinus rhythm. Blood pressure: normal, no evidence of arterial or venous disease. Lungs: normal, no rales. Abdomen: normal, no masses. Genital-Urinary: normal. Rectum: normal, no hemorrhoids. Mental and Emotional: he likes the water and likes to retrieve.

Diagnosis: This dog thinks he is a Labrador Retriever.

Thor:
Normal, healthy, Labrador Retriever canine who suffered typical childhood dog diseases. Age: 3 yrs. Body examination (same as above): normal. Except, mental and emotional: he hates the water and does not retrieve, likes to go on lakes in the snow.

Diagnosis: This dog thinks he is a St. Bernard.

These trusty canines have been subjected to extensive psychiatric therapy, which has shed considerable light on the problem. After several sessions on the couch, Thor revealed he suffered a traumatic experience early in life. It seems that Mrs. Reus, the dog's owner (when we were going to free dogs and give them their maintainable rights?), pushed Thor into deep water after a stick against his will when he was very young.

Ever since that day Thor has refused to enter the water, and probably continue to refuse all his life. He also refuses to do tricks on command. Apparently, he objects to the role of dogs in today's society; he believes a dog, if he wants, should be allowed to do more than fetch sticks and bark at strangers. Thor is currently active in Dogs' Lib, and is organizing a neighborhood chapter of NOD (National Organization of Dogs).

Here is a case where clearly environmental factors played the determinate role in developing personality and intelligence. But consider also the case of Joshua.

Unlike Thor, Joshua hasn't suffered any traumatic experiences. He has grown up with the water and loves to swim and retrieve. He has yet to be told that St. Bernards do not swim and do not retrieve. This problem has been the cause of considerable consternation for Miss Susan Reus, the dog's owner (when ARE we going to give dogs their inalienable rights?).

Apparently the neighbors have been complaining because Joshua is often out in the lake chasing waterskiers; when they fall Joshua tries to retrieve them. The dog has almost drowned on several occasions, and it is no fun to chase down in the middle of the lake a St. Bernard who thinks he can swim but can't.

Here we have a dog quite content with the traditional role the canine plays in our society. In fact, he is too content and overdoes his role. Clearly this dog's personality and intelligence were largely determined by environmental factors.

These two cases seem to offer conclusive evidence that intelligence and personality are shaped by environmental, not genealogical, factors. If only those Harvard and Berkeley psychologists would take heed. In the tradition of Jonas Salk and many others, I guess this will just have to be another U-M first. I'll entitle my doctoral thesis "Environmental Parameters in Personality and Intelligence Development." I can see it all now: world famous authorities will come to observe Josh and Thor. The treatises will shatter academia; I'll be famous; people will come from miles to hear me speak. . . . and I owe it all to the dogs.

School Bells to Ring Sept. 5

Tuesday, Sept. 5, was established as the opening day of the 1972-73 school year and the same date set as a full day of school for students at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

Cummings

rolls. The only personal property actually owned by the Cummings, is the 74 acres comprising the "Anchorage". The man who controls business properties he has never seen, smiled when I called this to his attention.

I brought up the grants he has made to medical science. Let there be no doubt on this matter. Others may donate to charities, but Cummings gives to worthy causes. Why did he give $50,000 to help establish an intensive cancer unit in the hospital, which stands on land that was a pasture when he was a shoe clerk in Montreal? His gift of $14,711 to every man, woman, and child, in our community represents his respect for us in the same intangible sense as a painting on a small stone.

He has watched Charlevoix grow and progress in the past 12 years and is impressed by the "let's chip in and do it" spirit of its people. We did not come begging with our hand out. He saw the need and responded. Can we, the citizens, industries, organizations, businesses, and civic clubs do less?

Pictures fade, memories dim, and plaques tarnish. We are not artists, but we can paint a picture for Cummings which will etch itself indelibly in his memory. When he reads that Charlevoix went over the top for this cause, as worthy as life itself, we will each have applied a brush stroke to the smile and look of pride on the face of the foremost judge of human art. I can hear him flip the paper on his knee and say, "I knew they would!"

firm of Manson Jackson and Kane relating to its findings at the Middle School here; heard Mrs. Gail Weimer and Dale Fassett of the Intermediate School District speak on the proposed new learning center program approved for the local schools; approved the transfer of Harry Anderson from the Middle School to the High School where he will teach distributive education and work with Robert J. Cook in implementing the special Vocational Education program and received a copy of Richard Donaldson's committee appointments for the 1972-73 school year.

In a report of the School Building Obsolescence Survey relating to the 45 year old building now in use as a Middle School, the board heard Richard's survey that "the exterior of the building gives a much better appearance than the quality of interior educational space and its supporting services."

He then went on to give the detailed report of the company's findings when it made a survey of the structure.

The lengthy report listed site limitations and inadequacies, structure heating and fire safety limitations and inadequacies, limitations and inadequacies of the building in offering a complete education program and limitations and inadequacies of the building to promote educational change with the recommendations that the structure be scheduled for abandonment or remodeled and converted to some other use within a maximum of 10 to 20 years.

The report concluded with some financial considerations and guidelines to bring the building up to present day building standards.

Acquisition of a site (20 acres) would cost from $350,000 to $500,000 and the remodeling of the building to meet state standards, $400,000 to $800,000 for an estimated total of from $750,000 to $1.3 million. The wide variance would depend upon the extensiveness of the remodeling undertaken and the number of years the board might desire to extend the life of the building.

In conclusion, Richards said that these costs do not reflect the educational limitations and inadequacies that would continue to exist in the building.

While no conclusions were reached, the board did ask Richards to make a survey of property owned by the school district and to submit recommendations for its best use.

The possibility of converting the existing high school to a Middle School and constructing a new high school at some future date was discussed but no decision reached.

Mrs. Weimer and Fassett spoke at length on the proposed learning center program and what can be accomplished under the program. Aides would assist the program which would be open to all children with learning problems. With the use of aides, teachers are free to test children, get at the root of their problem and give them special attention. Aides, meanwhile, could work with other students in the program, it was explained.

The need for the aides was being questioned. Under the proposed program, the Intermediate School district would underwrite the cost of teachers in all three schools and aides for the elementary and middle schools with the local board paying for one aide on the high school level. It was decided to continue with the program.

Hearth & Home

Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Lynde of Waukegan are coming Aug. 1 to stay in the house of their cousin, Tom Dammann. Tom and Sara Gay say the house will be full since the Lyndes are bringing all their children and friends, but since they can accommodate 17 or 18 people, they aren't worried. Haile Dammann has been in Miami at the Democratic Convention and is coming home to rest before going to work for George McGovern, the Democratic nominee. Dammann, who is a regular correspondent for the New York Times, enjoyed a little chuckle at the expense of his paper. It seems he wrote an article, which will be printed in the Sunday Travel Section at the time of the Republican Convention in Miami, which was first turned in to the Times when the convention was slated for San Diego. In his article he went to great lengths to impress upon the Republicans all the do's and don'ts of conventioning in San Diego, where he lived for 28 years. He also mentioned that they should hold the convention at the Race Track as that was J. Edgar Hoover's favorite spot. Of course, he had to re-write the article after Mr. Hoover's death and the changing of the convention site to Miami. Mr. Dammann says the article will now feature the happiness of the San Diego people to get rid of the Republicans.

5 B & E's Remain Unsolved
Police Chief Jack Mol reported Monday that he is continuing his investigation into a series of S. Bridge-st. breakings and enterings early last week without much success.

He says the three B&E's and two attempted B&E's might have been the work of persons who were simply passing through town.

All of the break-ins and attempts occurred within a five-block area from Phil Martin's service station south to Juliette's Restaurant.

A screen was cut at Andy's The World, 1108 S. Bridge-st., giving access to an unlocked door. Some $40 was taken.

At Seymour's Antiques, located on Green-st. just off Bridge-st., the building was entered but no money was kept in the building. Mrs. Michael Seymour, the proprietor, was unsure whether any merchandise was missing.

Jim's Shell station at 1308 S. Bridge-st. was entered by breaking a window on the east side of the building. A total of $15 was missing.

Glass in a rear door at Juliette's Restaurant was broken, but the building was not entered.

Oil Slick
The Perry Avenue Bathing Beach was closed to swimming because of an oil slick on the water, according to Police Chief Jack Mol.

However, the beach was reopened Saturday after a filtering basin was dug to contain oil flowing from an unused pipeline originating at the old power plant.

Ferris Wheel Yanked Her Long Hair
Leonard Fuller of Charlevoix, particularly if you have long hair.

Mrs. Fuller was a passenger on the Ferris wheel at the former Kroger parking lot during the Venetian Festival when her long hair became entangled in the machinery. Every time the wheel went around, Mrs. Fuller's head was drawn closer to the pivot on which the chair was suspended.

She and her two small children tried frantically to signal the operator to stop, but the wheel made several turns before they were able to attract his attention.

By this time, Mrs. Fuller's head was drawn sharply to one side.

When the operator noticed her predicament he stopped the wheel and Mrs. Fuller managed to disentangle herself.

Mrs. Fuller thinks the incident might serve as a warning to others with long hair when riding Ferris wheels.

BUGGED BY potato bugs? They're for the birds! So says artist Peggy Midener of East Jordan, Conn. Urban, Mrs. Midener's niece, and her house guest Ronda Rose of Canada, look on as Mrs. Midener goes about her daily task of picking potato bugs and feeding them to the birds.

Artist Working On Fair

Peggy Lovejoy Midener, wife of Walter Midener, Director of Detroit's Society of Arts and Crafts School, is spending the summer and the Midener's summer home in East Jordan. She is currently planning a commissioned art work.

For the first time Peggy will be assisting the Portside Arts Fair Committee in its program for summer art lessons for adults and children.

"I have always thought the Portside Arts Fair Committee commendable," Peggy explains, adding that she is teaching a small class of advanced adult painters this summer.

Niece Connie Urban conducts Wednesday morning and afternoon art classes for children and young adults.

The 10th Annual Portside Arts Fair will be held Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5 and 6. Art class students along with professionals will exhibit their work at the fair. This year's Portside Art Fair will pay special tribute to Sarkis Sarkisian, famed Detroit painter whose personal efforts helped establish the highly successful exhibition in East Jordan ten years ago.

Library Notes

by Eleanor Ratigan

There is a bargain shelf at the library this week - a bargain in good entertainment and good reading.

Starting off with "Tracy and Hepburn," an intimate memoir about the one couple everyone knew of but never really knew anything about. Written by Garson Kanin, who has made important contributions to nearly every field of the entertainment world, this is certainly one of the best books about actors ever written. It is a warm and loving profile of two unusual people. An enchanting book which deserves the wide acclaim it has received.

"The Other" by Thomas Tyrone is a horror story in every sense of the word. We won't recommend this to everyone and we won't reveal the plot except to say that it deals with handsome young twin sons swept up in the life of a Connecticut town in the 1930's. If you can handle goose pimples and shivers and a terrible uneasiness as the plot develops, you won't want to miss this one.

"My Name is Asher Lev" is the finest bargain on our bargain shelf this week. Written by Chaim Potok who gave us "The Chosen," this is a moving and beautiful story about a child prodigy, a child genius who is torn between his desire to please his parents whom he loves so much and his fanatic desire to paint which he cannot control, even if it means disobeying his parents and breaking their hearts. You will follow Asher Lev through his tortured life.

BOYNE HIGHLANDS 526-2171

AMONG the visitors in town last week was Kohei Yamaguchi of Tokyo, Japan, an exchange student who has spent the past year as a senior at Billingham, Wash. Yamaguchi was a houseguest of Rev. and Mrs. Carl M. Gunn of Pine Point and Dallas, Texas. Mrs. Gunn insisted that Yamaguchi visit Charlevoix before returning to the Orient in August.

Pat Paulsen Now At T.C. Playhouse

Smiling, rubber-faced Pat Paulsen, direct from the New Hampshire primary, returns to the Cherry County Playhouse July 26-30, to star in "Three Men on a Horse," a classic farce about a greeting card writer who inadvertently gets involved in horse racing.

Paulsen is known across the country not only from the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour, but also as one of the prime presidential candidates of the 1968 and 1972 election.

Unfortunately, his stance as a common, ordinary, simple saviour of America's destiny did not win him the nation's highest office in '68, but then this is another year - and another show.

Last year, in "Play It Again, Sam," Pat broke all house records, selling out every performance before opening night, so it is advisable to make reservations as soon as possible.

Pat Paulsen in the hilarious comedy, "Three Men on a Horse," runs July 26-30 at the Playhouse. Tickets are $5.00, $4.00, $3.00, $2.00, $1.00. Performances are Tues. - Fri. at 8:30 p.m., Sat. at 5 and 9:30 p.m., Sun. at 7:30 p.m., and Thursday's matinee at 2:00 p.m. Seats are reserved for all performances this season, including matinees.

Red Cross Flood Aid Approaches $14 Million

The cost of Red Cross aid to the hundreds of thousands of victims of June floods in 12 states has reached $13,538,089, according to Jason Snyder, county Red Cross director.

The major portion of the expenditures required for those made homeless by Tropical Storm Agnes' flooding is along the Eastern Seaboard.

In addition to providing food and shelter, Red Cross has assisted 41,142 families, helping them to replace clothing, household furnishings, aiding with home repairs, health and medical expenses and maintenance in temporary living quarters.

Red Cross officials estimate that over 58,000 flood affected families will need such assistance before the relief operation is completed.

In flooded Pennsylvania communities, 41 Red Cross shelters are still housing 3,889 persons. In the state of New York, 1,983 flood victims are being cared for in six shelters. Thousands of additional flood victims and workers are receiving food daily from the Red Cross.

With relief operation still far from complete, American Red Cross volunteer chairman, E. Roland Harriman has called for a generous over-subscription of the special Red Cross disaster fund campaign goal of $10 million.

Abandoned Cars Target Of County Cleanup Drive

Charlevoix County is one of seven Michigan counties from which abandoned automobiles and farm machinery are being removed this summer, fall and next summer in an attempt to improve county safety and scenic conditions and to recycle valuable materials.

Abandoned vehicles can be a dangerous playground for children, as well as being an eyesore.

The project, directed by the Michigan Student Environmental Conference of Lansing, is a part of the Student Environmental Health Projects financed by a Michigan Department of Public Health grant to the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

It involves a survey along all roads in the county, to locate abandoned and junked vehicles.

The locations of the vehicles are marked on county maps by the survey team, hired for the summer as part of 90 Michigan high school and college students employed in the overall project.

Karen Potts and Robert Crosser, of Petoskey, and Robert and Janet Mertz of Pellston, the survey team in Charlevoix County, have or will distribute release forms to owners of cited abandoned vehicles. The forms, once completed and returned to project workers, allow the vehicles to be hauled by Michigan Department of Corrections workers to central collection locations in the county.

The hauling will follow routes set up by the survey team on county maps. There is no charge for removing the vehicles, and no damage will be done to private property. Owners cannot be paid for releasing the vehicles, however, since small numbers of abandoned cars have no economic value.

After the vehicle hulks are removed, the area will be cleaned up. The hauling will follow routes set up by the survey team on county maps. There is no charge for removing the vehicles, and no damage will be done to private property. Owners cannot be paid for releasing the vehicles, however, since small numbers of abandoned cars have no economic value.

Charlevoix Area Inhabited 1,500 Years B.C.

By JIM REUS

Charlevoix has been a center of population much longer than most people in town would care to remember, according to the recently completed excavations of archaeologists from Michigan State University.

The excavations, which were conducted on the Pine River Channel at the site of the old Beach Hotel on W. Dixon, were begun in 1971 and finished in May and June of this year.

The excavations uncovered a total of 2,550 square feet of village, and 7,650 cubic feet of earth were sifted through 1/4 inch screen.

According to Charles E. Cleland, Curator of Anthropology at MSU, the excavations reveal there were three distinct periods when the Pine River Channel area was inhabited.

BEFORE CHRIST

The earliest traces of habitation on Pine River date back to peoples of the Late Archaic period (ca. 1500 B.C.). These parts of the site were characterized by the fact that they occurred deeper in the sand than more recent occupations.

Generally the tool inventory of this period consisted of large chipped stone knives and scrapers, as well as long thin leaf-shaped projectile points made of very high grade flint. Occasional traces of red chert, a mineral used as points by these early inhabitants of Charlevoix, were also uncovered.

WOODLAND INDIANS

More productive than the Late Archaic period were the Middle and Late Woodland occupations of the Pine River Channel Site. Each period of occupation is characterized by distinctive types of pottery and stone tools, which enabled archaeologists to assign the artifacts accurate dates.

The Middle Woodland peoples were present at Pine River between A.D. 400 and A.D. 600, and their pottery indicates they represent groups common to the northern Great Lakes, known as Laurel Culture, as well as groups common to southern Michigan and Illinois, known as Havana Culture.

The Pine River Site is the most northern known distribution of Havana tradition peoples in Michigan. It is one of the few sites in Michigan with traces of both northern and southern cultures, indicating that Charlevoix may have been a focal point of interaction between these varied populations.

BANDED POTTERY

Following the Middle Woodland occupation of Pine River, the lands adjacent to Pine River were used by peoples of the early Late Woodland period (ca. A.D. 600 to A.D. 1000). A piece of banded pottery found at the site was dated by Carbon-14 to A.D. 1000-80, very close to the date expected for pottery called Mackinac banded.

As in the Middle Woodland excavations, samples distinctive of both northern and southern populations have been dated to the Late Woodland Period. Artifacts recovered from the Late Woodland occupations include some very large, intricately decorated pottery rims, three of four chipped and ground stone axes and a number of hide scrapers and stone drills. Flint arrowheads were the most common tool found on the site; over 45 were the most common tool found on the site; over 45 came from one 10-by-10 foot square, and seven were recovered from one fireplace. Some interesting artifacts of native copper were also present, including a large fishhook, a sewing awl, and three beads.

These artifacts span a period of the Late Woodland period for which there is no data, making the Pine River Channel a very important site.

DIET STUDIED

Aside from material items, the archaeologists studied cultural features such as fire pits, food pits, and house pits—approximately 80 features were defined through differences in soil coloration. One half bushel basket quantities of soil were taken from each of these features and put through a process known as flotation, designed to extract preserved seed and bone from the soil. From this data anthropologists hope to learn about the diet of the ancient peoples during the seasons of the year.

Although final analysis of the recovered materials has not yet begun, Curator Cleland has made a few speculations about the nature of the Pine River settlements.

The Pine River site is probably not the result of one large village or meeting place at a specific period in time. Rather, it is probably the result of use by groups of varying size over many seasons and during the course of a long period of time. The types of tools found also indicate the ancient Charlevoix functioned as a hunting and flint workshop camp, since the frequency of arrowheads and waste chippage far exceed that of other artifact classes.

ITEMS CATALOGUED
At this time the museum staff at MSU is busy cataloging the between 300,000 and 400,000 items taken from the Pine River Site. After the samples have been processed, final analysis of the material will begin. Consequently, it will be two or three years before a finished report on the Pine River Channel is prepared.

According to Dr. Cleland, the excavations were very successful. Much of the success in the project was due to Thomas Hanna, Charlevoix City Administrator, and Leonard Dubey, Director of the City Maintenance Department, who loaned the MSU team personnel and earth-moving equipment. Dr.

Cleland also stated that the project could not have taken place without the co-operation and foresight of Ralph Hess, owner of the Pine River Channel Site.

If you send me to Lansing, you'll get one more vote for welfare reform. And that's the truth.

And that's why this is brought to you by a lot of people for the election of Ostling.

Tiny Greensky Church Is Cathedral of Spirit

BY OSCAR ERICKSON
A delicious dinner was hosted by the ladies of the Greensky Mission Church recently for area real estate association members. The site, impressive in its simplicity, fully merits its recognition as a National Historic Shrine.

Jay Oliver said grace in the Ottawa Indian language. His mother approaching her 96th year, was introduced and acclaimed by all as guest of honor. Indeed she was, sitting there on a plain wooden bench, her face wreathed in a happy smile.

After dinner, the real estate board members adjourned to the small church of hand-hewn logs. Oliver traced the history of the Ottawa Indians and their Mission to the rapid audience occupying the original pine pews. Lately cathedrals cannot better convey the spirit of mankind than does this simple Mission in its rustic setting.

Peter Greensky, founder of the Mission, was born near Bay Mills and attended the mission school there. After first establishing a mission at Old Mission Peninsula, he moved with a group of 20 families to found the present Mission, near Susan Lake, which is named after his wife.

Early in the construction period, which took ten years, services were held in an elm bark chapel. The doors and windows were floated from Traverse City to Oyster Bay and carried a mile to the wilderness church.

The families lived on the further shore of Susan Lake and came to religious services by canoe. Some of the original worshippers, whose feet trod the still visible path from the landing to the church, repose in the small cemetery established in the land they loved.

Oliver explained that the arched council trees are symbols of the first families of the infant Mission. The totem pole, which stands some distance from the church, does not represent idolatry, as some believe, but is the family crest of a particular clan within the tribe. This is the "Thunder Bird" Totem. Mrs. Oliver is of the "Thunder" clan.

After we sang an Indian hymn, "NUGUHOWIN," Oliver observed with a whimsical smile that his ancestors were also involved in real estate, an involvement which is misunderstood by many today. The only issue from the beginning, has been the Indians original entitlement to the land and not the compensation for it.

Hearth & Home

By MEGAN ADAMS
Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Chuck and Jeanne) and Whitehouse were visited over the weekend by an old friend from Darien, Ill., Barbara Kimble, Barbara and Jeanne, being old golf partners from back home, happily spent their time golfing. Miss Kimble was shown Charlevoix's golfing facilities, and all three enjoyed the evening festivities of the Venetian Festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cunningham (Don and former Gale Forbidge) have been spending their time between the Hal Forbidge home on M-66 and Mrs. Virginia Cunningham's home at Pine Point. Gale spent a week here, and Don drove up from Mt. Clemens to spend the weekend and pick up his wife.

Another visitor with the Cunningham's has been Miss Madia Miranda, exchange student from Brazil who graduated last June from the Charlevoix High School. She has been visiting her parents in Florida for two weeks. She will stay until July 31 and then return to Brazil on her scheduled charter flight.

Miss Shirley Gibson of Mill Valley, Calif., is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gibson of Charlevoix.

Driggett's Stables (James and Peg Driggett) was the scene Saturday of a horse show put on by the Northwest Barrel Benders and sponsored by many Charlevoix businesses: Andy's Grocery Store, Schroeder Drugs, Kusina, Pontre, Pay's, Lieberman's, Grey's Boot Shop, Jim's Shell Service, Airport Auto and Trailer Sales, Herrington Texaco Station, Andy's Tire World, Mr. Robert Hoffman, the Charlevoix Coop, Erber Auto, Bergeon's, Parsel's, and the Charlevoix County State Bank and the First State Bank.

Contributions were for trophies, which were given in all events for first, second, third and fourth place, as well as a high-point trophy for the day. Contributions also made it possible to retain the services for Mr. Herbert W. Wright of Bay City, who judged the events. Mr. Wright contributed to the trophies, as well as furnishings for necessary place for the horse show, is well known in this community not only as a riding stables but also in the winter for its sleighing facilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Troat are visiting relatives in Two Rivers, Wis.

At the lunch break refreshments were served by the Lions Club of Boyne City, under the direction of Al Kasson, who resides there. Receipts were donated to all charities, with special emphasis on the Leukemia Research Fund.

Afternoon events were judged by an electric timer in the following categories: Poorman's English Pleasure (open to all ages), Western Pleasure, and Jumping (any type saddle, many obstacles) as an added attraction, judging also took place in the walking horse class, which was also open to everyone.

Sharon Marriage of Boyne City, who is in charge of publicity for the Barrel Benders (Northwest Barrel Benders Club) attended this event. She says that Barrel Benders is a group of people who are just interested in horses and has as its prime purpose sponsoring shows throughout the summer season in order to improve the quality of horse shows in general and to develop better speed horses. She claims to have one of the fastest horses in Northern Michigan and rides in all the shows herself.

THANKS to the efforts of the Charlevoix Garden Club, the city's parkways are prettier than ever this summer. This attractive garden plot is located at the end of Michigan ave.

Our senior citizens deserve to be free of worry.
And that's why this is brought to you by a lot of people for the election of Ostling.

Big City Woes Invade Michigan's Small Towns

Drug traffic, zoning disputes, abuse of natural resources, racial tensions - dilemmas once peculiar to the city are now shared by rural communities.

Construction of a $200 million hydroelectric plant by citizens of Ludington, Mich. (population 9,021) troubled over the threat of warm water to Lake Michigan fish. A telephone counseling service is established in Shelby, Mich. (population 1,703) to assist young people beset by drug, pregnancy, and emotional problems. Voters in Jania, Mich. (population 5,361) finally resolve a long-disputed sewage disposal issue.

to train rural leaders to solve these problems, Michigan State University's Extension Service has created a three-year travel program called "Horizons."

Approximately 35 people between 25 and 35 years of age are selected in three-county groups. The program consists of about 150 discussion hours over a three-year period. Two pilot groups are now in the second year of the program; the others are in their first.

Chosen for their potential as community leaders, the participants are from diverse social and economic backgrounds. In one group, for example, there is an auditor for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, dairy farmer, attorney, county treasurer, homemaker, restaurant operator, manager of an automobile salvage business, township supervisor and clergyman.

"We already have a fair amount of autonomy and responsibility. What we're getting from New Horizons is a broad exposure to the human resources in our communities," one participant explained. "Without this communication between various occupations and income levels, people tend to develop tunnel vision," said another. New Horizons grew out of an MSU Farmers' Study program sponsored by the Michigan Foundation. It is now part of the University's Center for Rural Manpower and Public Affairs.

Each participant receives a fellowship for a portion of the program cost, and is asked to contribute $75 per year to cover the rest. Travel seminars are an additional expense.

BUSINESS PAYS
"We try to see that eligible participants aren't excluded because of inability to pay," explained Dr. David Cole.

Spring Lake Art Fete Set
Charlevoix area artists and craftsmen are reminded that Spring Lake is planning its third annual Arts and Crafts Festival Aug. 18 and 19.

The fair will be held on Buchanan St., south of the village hall.

Persons wishing to enter should contact Karen Spencer, P.O. Box 239, Spring Lake, Mich. 49566.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
A public hearing will be held before the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix on Monday, August 28th, 1972 at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chamber in the City Hall in said City to consider certain proposed amendments to Ordinance Number 203, being the zoning ordinance of the City of Charlevoix, such proposed amendment being to re-zone and re-classify from Residential II to Restricted Office District I zoning the following described property, owned by Julius W. Gilbert on Michigan Avenue:

"In the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, Beginning 988.5 feet East of the point where the North line of Petoskey Avenue intersects the East line of Michigan Avenue; thence East on North line of said Petoskey Avenue 66 feet; thence North 173.25 feet; thence West 66 feet; thence South to place of beginning, the same being known as Lot 3 in Block 4 of Fox and Eaton's unrecorded Plat of Addition to Village (now City) of Charlevoix, Michigan, ALSO, beginning 1054.5 feet East of the point where the North line of Petoskey Avenue intersects the East line of Michigan Avenue; thence East on North line of Petoskey Avenue 130.7 feet; thence North 173.25 feet; thence West 130.7 feet; thence South 173.25 feet to the place of beginning, the same being known as Lots 4 and 5 in Block 4 of Fox and Eaton's unrecorded Plat of Addition to Village (now City) of Charlevoix, Michigan, located on Government Lot 3 of Section 23, In Town 34 North, Range 8 West."

program. Along with the county coordinators, they assess their counties' situations and suit the program accordingly. Topics this year ranged from rejuvenation of welfare programs to preservation of farm lands and improvement of vocational education programs.

A particular merit of New Horizons is its flexibility, Cole said. The participants are free to challenge and change parts of the program that seem weak or irrelevant. One group for example, wanted more small group interaction, so their schedule was altered to allow it.

Other suggestions are under consideration. One participant wants a time period set apart for personal communication and group dynamics. Participants analyze their value systems and their roles in public decision-making. They also work on speech-making and conducting meetings.

A clergyman-participant said, "I had been in self-evaluation programs during my clerical training, but seeing the others in the group struggle to understand their values was enlightening. It gives me some idea of what kinds of things we can't jump into in this community."

Another participant recalled a session when a group of student "freaks" came to talk about drug education. "A lot of us were teased off by these long-haired and informal - especially when they sat cross-legged on the desks. But I think we're beginning to sense a meeting of the minds rather than being conscious of physical features."

A second facet of the first year's training is becoming acquainted with local and state government. An assistant to Gov. William Milliken spoke to the group about the problems of planning priorities in Congress, assessing property tax, and zoning. He also pointed out that letters and other expressions of opinion from the electorate really are a barometer for elected officials.

PLAYLEGISLATOR
In another session, a lobbyist discussed his functions, explaining that laws are passed "not like the civics books say." In another, a Michigan senator appointed mock senators and clerks, handed out an agenda, and let the New Horizons participants play "legislator for a day."

Speakers are selected from both the Extension Service and six Michigan universities. Each speaker is critiqued by the group.

"I can draw from a wide staff of extension leaders who in turn have contacts," Cole explained. "Sometimes we simply use people from the local community."

In one group, for example, high school seniors, administrators and board members from a four-county area discussed the advantages and inadequacies of their school systems.

CHANGES MADE
The participants themselves design the second-year at the end of the dry for summary evaluation. Another feels the travel seminars are superficial and wants in-depth coverage instead. Another wants more local participant planning.

IDEAS FLOW
What do the participants especially like about the program? "I really enjoy the personal communication with the resource people," one participant declares. "I always make a point of walking to dinner with one of the speakers."

"It's also nice having the speakers available for follow-up information," said another. "I can reach people in facets of government and education I wasn't previously acquainted with." Another participant bikes having the printed handouts that speakers usually bring. "We can use their ideas when designing our own local programs."

In addition to the group sessions, participants are urged to read a large number of books. All can be borrowed from the university's New Horizons Library.

During the 10 months between sessions, there are independent study programs available, including "The Cost of Clean Water," "Migratory Farm Labor Dilemmas," "Speechmaking" and "Drug Abuse."

As the distinctions between rural and urban life styles merge, New Horizons members will be prepared for fruitful decision-making.

Skipper Martin, who is usually as cool as a paid-up endowment policy, was near panic, yanking lines and swinging the tiller first one way and then the other. "I thought we should abandon ship, but I kept my thoughts to myself."

Then suddenly the emergency was over. One by one the Rebels skinned past us and we headed for less crowded waters near shore. Martin glanced wistfully at the white sails growing smaller in the distance. "If we had kept our cool, we might have won," he observed ruefully.

Pollution at Ferry Beach Alarms Area Residents

Bacteria Count Shows Increase

If pollution of Lake Charlevoix in the Ferry Beach area gets much worse, the District Health Department may find it necessary to close the beach to swimming, the City Council was told Monday night.

The water pollution problem was brought to light after Dave Fowler submitted a petition to the council signed by 28 residents of the Ferry Beach area asking that sewer lines be extended to homes along the shore. The homes in question are located in Charlevoix Township.

Dean Mikulski, director of District Health Department No. 3, told the council that water at all of the city's swimming beaches is checked weekly.

He said the coliform count at Ferry Beach has been climbing over a period of several years and that if it gets much higher the Health Department will have no other choice but to close the beach. He said coliform is an "indicator organism" associated with the presence of fecal matter in the water.

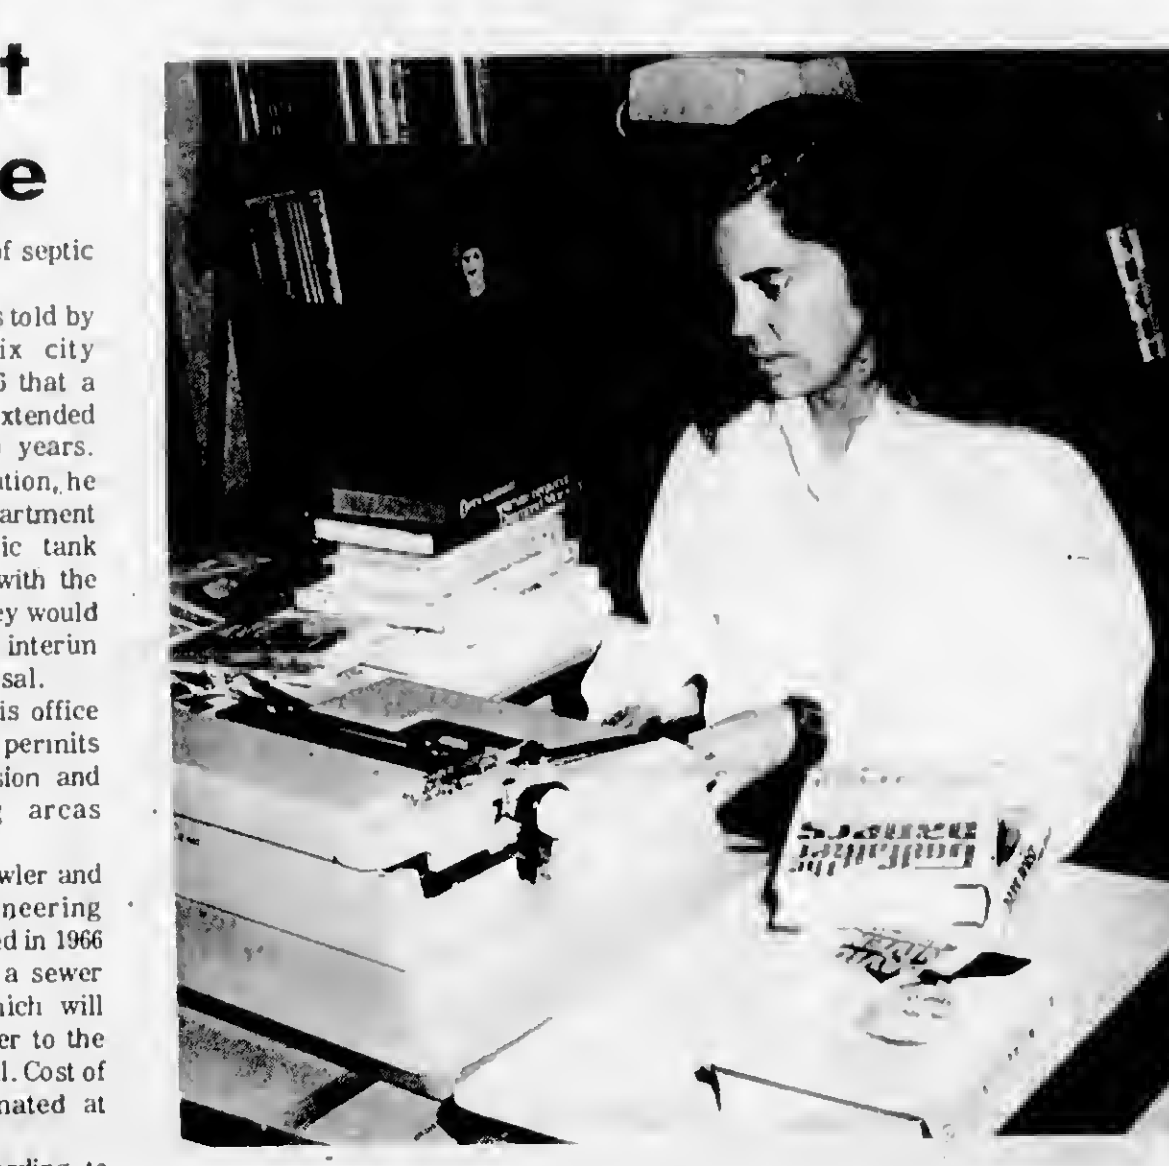

Mikulski noted that the coliform count was high last year and again this year, although it appears to be leveling off.

He said the count fluctuates as weather and water conditions change. This year's high water table also might be responsible for the high count, since high water adversely affects the operation of septic tank drain fields.

Mikulski said he was told by a former Charlevoix city superintendent in 1966 that a sewer line would be extended into the area in two years. Based on that information, he said the Health Department approved many septic tank permits in the area, with the understanding that they would be used only as an interim means of waste disposal.

However, he said his office has stopped granting permits in lakeview subdivision and all other low-lying areas around the lake.

The council told Fowler and Mikulski that engineering studies were completed in 1966 on the first phase of a sewer extension project which will take the May-st. sewer to the top of the Eaton-st. hill. Cost of that project is estimated at $250,000.

MARY BETH WALLICK is new librarian at the Charlevoix Library. A 1965 graduate of Ellsworth Community School, Miss Wallick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wallick. A graduate of Central Michigan University with a B.A. in political science and minors in library science, Miss Wallick has been librarian at the Fenton Middle School for the past three years. She succeeds Miss Dorothy Ormstead who plans to spend the summer in Charlevoix before returning to her native Nebraska.

'Lovely Walloona' Found In Bridge-st. Basement

Turn back the clock 71 years to the summer of 1906 at the tiny Charlevoix County hamlet of Clarion near the shores of Walloon Lake.

The Rev. L.B. Carpenter has completed his morning service at the Methodist Church and the parishioners, including Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Hemmingsway, are leaving the church.

The Hemmingsways are among the first resorters to inhabit the shores of Walloon Lake. On Sundays, they travel by boat to Walloon Lake village, where they hire a horse and rig to carry them over the hill to Clarion.

This Sunday the Carpenters have invited the Hemmingsways to dinner. Mrs. Hemmingsway, an accomplished musician, has tucked away in her handbag a copy of a song she has written entitled "Lovely Walloona." It is intended as a gift for one of the Carpenters' daughters, Ruth, who is studying music.

After dinner, Ruth sits at the piano and plays the music while Mrs. Hemmingsway sings the lyrics.

Before she leaves, Mrs. Hemmingsway autographs the music: "Miss Ruth Carpenter. Compliments of the composer."

Through the years, Ruth Carpenter cherished her autographed copy of "Lovely Walloona," even before the Hemmingsways' son, Ernest, became one of America's foremost authors.

Miss Ruth Carpenter eventually inherited Archie Belding, a young schoolteacher who was to become Charlevoix County superintendent of schools and one of Charlevoix's first real estate agents.

"Lovely Walloona" traveled with Mrs. Belding when she moved from Clarion to Charlevoix and she played it from time to time for relatives and friends.

Then mysteriously, the music disappeared. Mrs. Belding searched her home ut

Gov. Hedges Again, Still Likes Ostling

Gov. William G. Milliken made the following statement Thursday:

"There have been widely circulated reports in the 103rd legislative district that I have endorsed Ralph Ostling in the Republican primary. In view of these reports, and in view of the criticism that one of the candidates has made of me, I think it would be useful for me to state my position.

It is true that the incumbent, Mr. Friske, has not been supportive of me or my programs, including those of importance to northern Michigan nor has he supported much of what the Republican party stands for in Michigan today.

Although Mr. Friske in his campaign has chosen to be critical of me, I do not think it would be appropriate for me to formally endorse any candidate. But I do personally favor Mr. Ostling. I consider him to be an excellent candidate and highly qualified to effectively represent the citizens of the 103rd district.

However, Republicans have three candidates for the nomination as state representative from the 103rd District — Rep. Richard Friske, Ralph Ostling and Rodney Edwin Parker. All GOP county officers are unopposed: Harvey C. Varum, prosecutor; Philo E. Sumner, sheriff; Clarence F. Rabach, clerk; Anah H. Potter, treasurer; Grover Genet, register of deeds; Ronald G. Geer, drain commissioner; and Mary C. Feindt, county surveyor.

On the County Commission, races have developed in the second and fifth districts. In District 2, GOP candidates are Clyde Cunningham, Frank Novotny Jr. and Rosa Rosenthal. In District 5, Continued on Page 16

Local, State Races On Primary Ballot

A number of state and local races will be on the ballot in the Primary Election Tuesday, Aug. 8, according to County Clerk Clarence Rabach.

Democrats will have a choice between Charles E. Antilla and James E. McNamara as Congressman from the 11 District. Philip Ruppe is the sole candidate on the GOP slate.

However, Republicans have three candidates for the nomination as state representative from the 103rd District — Rep. Richard Friske, Ralph Ostling and

Jury Size Proposal Is on Ballot Aug. 8

Michigan District Judges Association reminds the voters of a proposed constitutional amendment, proposal A, which will appear on the ballot Aug. 8.

The amendment would give the legislature greater flexibility in protecting the rights of Michigan citizens both as consumers and as taxpayers.

The association according to Legislative Chairman, Judge Kerby states:

"The adoption of the proposed amendment would not cause any change in the historical right to trial by jury. In one sense, the proposal actually strengthens the right by conditioning the right to a jury of a larger size (12 persons) on the severity of the crime involved rather than on the type of court involved, which varies from place to place within the state."

Presently, a person accused of any crime has a right to a trial by a jury of 12 persons when the case is tried in a "court of record" (for example, the circuit court). If the trial occurs in a court which the legislature designates as a "court not of record" (for example, the district court), the jury may consist of less than 12 persons.

The size of the jury today does not depend in any way upon the severity of the crime. This means that persons accused of minor traffic cases in the recorder's court of Detroit have a right to a 12 person jury whereas those accused of more serious offenses in the district court and remaining municipal courts are now tried by six member juries.

Under the proposed constitutional amendment a jury of less than 12 persons would be allowed to hear all misdemeanors for which the possible punishment does not exceed one year's imprisonment—regardless of the type of court involved. If the crime carries a more severe penalty (including all felonies), the jury would have to consist of 12 persons, regardless of the label someone attaches to the court.

Another major area would allow for the protection of the rights of homeowners, farmers, and small merchants against unscrupulous or unfair business practices by out of state corporations. This would become possible if district courts were made "courts of records".

CLARENCE WAY, an employee at Brumms' Studio and Showroom on the Lake Michigan shore at Norwood, showed visitors during openhouse Sunday how tiny wire filaments are braided together to form birds and flowers.

NORMAN and Judy Brumm pose in front of their new Japanese-styled workshop and showroom at Norwood. Both artists, the Brumms have gone into the business of creating decorative birds and flowers from copper with a finish of glass enamel. The shop employs 16 persons.

Hearth & Home

By MEGAN ADAMS 547-2852

Open house was held Sunday at the home and new studio, showroom and workrooms of Norman and Judy Brumm of Norwood. Over 150 guests attended, arriving from Ellsworth, East Jordan, Petoskey, Boyne City, Traverse City, Charlevoix and Norwood. Cherry punch was served.

The greenhouse was a point of deep interest to the guests, with its exotic collection of several hundred varieties of orchids, mainly collected by the Brumms in Mexico and Guatemala, though there were one or two varieties from India.

The Brumm home was thrown open to the inspection of the guests, including a vast interesting collection of shells and butterflies from all over the world. Also on display were several of Norman Brumm's watercolors mounted for viewing in the new showroom opened to the public.

Interested guests toured the workrooms of the enameling studio where employees were at their regular work stations, ready and willing to explain and demonstrate, if desired, their special work processes, such as the use of the kiln, the acetylene torch, the application of the enamel, and the making of finished bases from stumps and roots collected by the Brumms from the Upper Peninsula. Judy Brumm explained that these stumps were from virgin timber, some of which must be over 200 years old.

The Brumms, who are well known not only in this area but throughout the United States for their achievements in enamel work of birds and flowers which are not only artistically pleasing but correct from a botanical and ornithological standpoint, have just recently completed their new, expanded workrooms and showroom situated in Norwood on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan. The new showroom is now open to the public Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Heath Patrie, son of David and Audra Patrie of M-31 South, has just received his amateur radio license. He says his call sign is WN8NIM, and all amateurs are welcome to phone at 547-2412.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Maxwell returned home on Tuesday afternoon from 10-day vacation trip, visiting briefly with Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Baker and family at Marne, traveling through Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and at Minot, North Dakota.

Friske and I Are Against Same Things

R-1 Charlevoix, Mich. 49720
July 25, 1972

The Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.

To the Editor:

I find the charges against Rep. Friske, by a number of people in this area, to be somewhat amusing.

Some people have charged that Rep. Friske does not know the U.S. Constitution. These people had better read the Constitution once in a while.

In the main, his vote on legislation has been based on constitutional principles.

Whether people like it or not, Rep. Friske has been trying to stem the growth of big government. He has been fighting against the federal government encroaching on the rights of the people and the state and fighting against the state government encroaching on the rights of the people.

Rep. Friske's knowledge of the constitution is far superior to that of the vast majority of people.

Some people have charged that Rep. Friske does not represent the people. I wish those people would speak for themselves since he has represented my views quite satisfactorily. He has voted against tax increases. He has voted against irresponsible increases in the state budget. He has voted against welfare legislation that would allow welfare recipients to take advantage of the taxpayers. He is opposed to attempts by the state to grab control of the schools from the people. He is for law and order, and against gun legislation.

Representative Friske does indeed represent me.

Some people have charged that Rep. Friske is a Fascist. His voting record clearly shows that he is opposed to Fascism, as well as Communism or any form of Socialism.

The Communists refer to their enemies as Fascists. Because one is anti-Communist, does not make him a Fascist.

It should be mentioned here that the Fascist charge is probably due to Rep. Friske's having been born in the "wrong" country and having served in the "wrong" armed forces. There are people around here who are small minded enough to hold that against him. It does not matter to them that he is honest, hard working and a loyal U.S. citizen. They too could have served in the "wrong" country and been born in the "wrong" country and served in

CC Thanks Belvedere

Dear Bob:

This is a long overdue letter of appreciation and heart-felt thanks to the Belvedere Club of Charlevoix, Michigan.

The Belvedere Club is a private club, yet graciously offers the residents of Charlevoix and our Chamber of Commerce use of its facilities twice a year.

The Belvedere Club is a private concern, pays taxes in Charlevoix, and is an asset to our community. Being a private club, the Belvedere in essence owes absolutely nothing to the Chamber of Commerce. Yet, each year when the Chamber comes "knocking", they graciously open their arms with a "heartly welcome."

The Belvedere Club lets the Chamber of Commerce make use of their lovely casino twice each year for our spring and fall dinner dances. Their charge... nothing!

It is also a little known fact that the Belvedere Club of Charlevoix is one of the largest investors in our Chamber of Commerce.

It is because we so appreciate the Belvedere Club's genuine interest in Charlevoix that we are writing this letter of appreciation.

Sincerely,
Richard Martin-President,
Thomas E., Merta-Exec-Dir.

the "wrong" armed forces.

Rep. Friske has been accused of not being a Republican. This charge stems from the fact that he is not a "yes" man, has stepped on the toes of some big wigs in the Republican party, and places the people, the state and the country above the Republican party.

Men like Richard Friske are all too rare in this country.

AF Mother: B-52 Plaque Beautiful

6275 Mills Creek Lane

July 19, 1972

Mr. Thomas Merta, Mgr.,
Chamber of Commerce
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Mr. Merta,
Last July 1971 we attended the memorial services during your Venetian Festival when the plaque in memory of the nine men who lost their lives in the B-52 which crashed into Lake Michigan was dedicated. One of the nine was our beloved son, Lt. Dennis Ferguson.

Last Saturday and Sunday (July 15 and 16) we visited your beautiful Charlevoix because I had to come to my son's "grave."

We just want you to know that the plaque looks beautiful on the rock it was erected on. I brought a few flowers all the way from my own garden, we took a few pictures, shed some tears and came back home.

We plan to come again next year. Just wanted you to know we think it's beautiful. Thanks a million.

Sincerely yours,
Julia Ferguson

Questions Ostling Support

Mr. Robert Ostling, Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Editor:

An interview with Ralph Ostling, reported in the July 20 issue of The Torch (Central Lake) contains the following statement: "We learned that although he (Ostling) has refused monetary support from the Michigan Education Association in order to refrain from incurring obligations, he does endorse the M.E.A.'s plan for financing school operations."

An article which appeared in the July 28 Grand Rapids Press quotes Dr.

Charles Oppy, who is Ostling's campaign chairman, as follows: "Oppy confirmed that M.E.A. is furnishing office help including computerized addressing of campaign literature."

Since many people, including teachers who contribute to M.E.A., are wondering about the sources of Mr. Ostling's campaign financial support, I would like to publicly ask Mr. Ostling to make a full and complete report in the press, of M.E.A.'s contributions, monetary or in whatever form, to his political campaign. This should be done now, no matter who wins the Republican nomination on Aug. 8.

Yours truly,
Rosemary Horton

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: For some reason I've noticed more "deer crossing" signs along the side of the highways lately than I ever used to. Chances are I'm getting more observant, but how do officials determine where to put them?

ANSWER: The "deer crossing" signs you see along the highway are put there by the Department of State Highways at the request of the Department of Natural Resources. When a citizen feels there is a special hazard at a certain highway location because of the number of deer present in the area, he should ask the DNR to investigate if warning signs should be added. Signs are usually placed in areas where there is a heavy concentration of deer.

Rep. Friske Gives Conservatism a Bad Name

Rev. Harold Kohn Analyzes JBS Tactics

Charlevoix COURIER
Editorial page

Charlevoix Courier, Wednesday, August 2, 1972 Page 15

Mr. Bob Clock, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Mr. Clock:

In a few days the 103rd District Republicans will elect their nominee for the 103rd seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. Among the three running will be one, Richard Friske, who gained the seat claiming to be a "Republican" and a "conservative."

Although he held title in common with the Republicans and true conservatism, he has now quarreled openly with Republicans, from Gov. Milliken too many of his former supporters in his own district, and has shown himself to be a legislative worker for the John Birch Society and its program while supported by our taxes. In the opinion of many of us he has grossly abused his office even sending out John Birch propaganda, using tax money for printing expenses, perhaps the worst harm he has wrought is by giving conservatism a bad name in Michigan.

Friske is a reactionary wearing a conservative label either to obtain votes under false pretenses or because he does not comprehend the meaning of American political conservatism. The fact is, many leading conservatives in America consider the John Birch Society, of which Friske is a member, one of conservatism's worst enemies.

JBS ASSAILED
Why is it that such conservative newspaper columnists as Jim Fitzpatrick, Russell Kirk, and William F. Buckley, Jr., denounce the John Birch Society? Because they believe the John Birchers, who wear the conservative label, make all conservatism look either silly or insane. Buckley is one of conservatism's most articulate spokesmen, yet he has described the propaganda of the JBS as "paranoid and unpatriotic drivel," and Buckley has suggested purging such radical rightists from the conservative ranks.

Of course, after that, the JBS unleashed a virulent attack on Buckley. In the October 19, 1965, issue of the National Review, Bill Buckley and his conservative editors announced that they had finally concluded that the John Birch Society represented a threat to the conservative movement and that it did so because the John Birchers actually supported the myths of Robert Welch, the JBS founder. Buckley and his editors added that the "John Birch Society is rapidly losing its originality and its originality is its strength." By definition, political "conservatism" means a dedication to the preservation of all that is best in our tradition and our system and using it to build a better nation. Friske and his John Birch associates have other aims, foreign to our best political traditions, and especially alien to the highest expressions of conservatism. I mention but a few.

NO DIVERSITY
While pretending to be loyal to the ideals upon which America was founded, the John Birch Society actually opposes one of the basic elements of American life. From the very beginning the founding fathers profoundly believed there is strength in diversity. Their fathers before them came to these shores with the hope that each could be himself, and love America in his own way.

From the beginnings in colonialism to the founding of the Federal Government to the present hour, we have tolerated astonishing differences in religion, race, culture, social standing, and political thinking. This diversity, which sociologists are political philosophers call "pluralism," has marked America as unique among the nations, and has been one of its chief sources of strength.

But diversity irritates and angers John Birchers, and especially Friske. If one does not agree with them, one is unpatriotic or a "Communist sympathizer," and again and again other conservatives who do not see all political matters precisely as John Birchers see them have felt John Birchers' wrath.

We have witnessed in our own district the vicious attacks of a leading Birch, Richard Friske, on non-Communists, but on his fellow Republicans, especially some of those conservatives who worked for him in the last general election. When the Republican governor of this state makes a proposal with which Friske disagrees, he resorts to JBS tactics and calls it "madness."

The foolish and evil sneering of the name of Richard Nixon as a communist sympathizer by the John Birch Society and its representative, Friske, when Nixon's credentials as an anti-communist are beyond question by reasonable and responsible men, shows how far out of touch with reality Friske and his gang can be.

UNFAIR METHODS
The conservative tradition at its best encourages earnest political debate. It has discouraged reckless accusations of opponents, groundless suspicions of the patriotism of all those who hold divergent views, and childish name-calling, rumor-mongering and political smears as substitutes for rigorous work on the issues. Not only does the JBS detest toleration, but its methods of opposition are alien to the best American political customs and are more appropriate to totalitarian systems.

GROUP EGOTISM
While American conservatism has little or nothing in common with Marxist-Leninist Communism, the John Birch Society has a great deal in common with it. The California Subcommittee on Un-American Activities stated in its 1963 report that anyone "familiar with the organization and techniques of the Communist Party must immediately note the close similarity between the two implacable enemies—the Communist Party and the John Birch Society—and goes on to list some of these resemblances: the monolithic structure; deceptive "front" organizations; each owns its own bookstores for spreading its ideology; each maintains operations through small cells distributed throughout the country. The Communists call their "clubs," and the JBS calls theirs "chapters." Each publishes a monthly list of directives that order the current activities of members. Especially, each unleashes a barrage of rumor and suspicion against those who disagree with its philosophy or practices.

LANGUAGE MISUSED
It should be added that both communism and the JBS have methods and aims that would have horrified Jefferson and Madison, who wrote much of the original Constitution, methods and aims that are inappropriate to a free people and are aimed at suppression of freedom.

Conservatism at its best seeks to use language to build bridges of understanding across the gaps that separate a people. The John Birch Society-like communism and fascism—uses language to cleave wider gaps in human understanding, to place the most deceptive and atrocious labels on their opponents—such as "label" Dwight D. Eisenhower as "a dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy."

Historic American conservatism has sought to unite communities in order to accomplish good for localities and for the nation. The John Birchers use divisive tactics on the community level and throughout the nation, employing rumor and character assassination, spreading suspicion, fear, and hatred. (Read "The Blue Book" by Robert Welch, the JBS "bible"). The Politician by JBS founder Robert Welch; "Birchism Was My Business" by Gerald Schomp, former paid state coordinator for the state of Florida, who tells why he left the JBS.)

While American conservatism has seen most forms of social conflict as matters to be understood and, if possible, mediated, the JBS in general, and Rep. Friske in particular, has seen such conflict as something to be increased and differences as excuses for a fight to the finish. This attitude makes it impossible for a John Birch to work well in a cooperative group, such as a legislative body, for the public good.

Law-making takes "cooperation: no legislator can pass a law alone. It requires cooperation a person must be respected and taken seriously. While an intelligent and articulate conservative legislator will be listened to respectfully by most of his colleagues, John Birch Richard Friske has utterly ruined his chances of getting anything of value done for Northern Michigan by his advocacy of the silly John Birch Society program rather than seeking the good of his district.

At its best, American conservatism has reached out to others, embracing many shades of opinion when it has used the word "patriotic." But the JBS has been narrowly, neurotically, egotistically, including only its members and those who agree with them as "true patriots."

The grotesquely bloated group-egotism of the John Birch Society is either laughably silly or tragically insane, depending upon which John Birch you are observing at the moment. When you read a public letter from a Richard Friske which says, "Should you indeed oppose the philosophy of the John Birch Society then perhaps your ideas of patriotism should be evaluated," you laugh. For Friske to say that only the JBS and those who agree with it at all points are for real patriots is the sort of childish boasting one hears among little boys on the playground—especially if they are frightened little boys. (Confident fellows don't need to boast.) But when an entire organization brags of its superiority and declares that only those who agree with it are patriotic, and threatens those who hold divergent views, it is less laughable and more alarming. Such group egotism is a disease that has sickened whole societies—such as Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, and Communist Russia. Psychiatrists call the symptom "delusions of grandeur" and the disease "paranoia." To many of us who read the John Birch Society literature, the JBS seems less an organization than a disease-paranoia wrapped in the American flag.

"OTHER DIFFERENCES
While American conservatism holds that voting is a basic right of mature citizens, that freedom and the voting privilege are related, that majority votes should be considered valid in the nation, that as far as rights are concerned "all men are created equal" and that unjust racial discrimination would end in America, the John Birch Society's "American Opinion" magazine has denied that voting is a basic right of human beings; has said there is no direct relationship between voting and freedom; has said there is no direct relationship between majority rule and freedom; has said that voting rule is foreign to American ideals (June

And as a typical idealistic, naive, liberal, freaky, college student who's ready to solve the world's problems, I guess it's my duty to expose this evil menace to the community.

Now when most people think of sexism they think of discrimination against the fairer sex (that is, women, for those of you who are confused by today's style trends) instead of it is of the later, i.e. female chauvinism, that I write about today.

Dave Sheppard, Courier ad man, was first to notice the discrimination: "I look at all the Miss Charlevoix collected just by winning the queen's contest," Dave remarked last Wednesday morning. Good-looking and myself agreed with Dave that the area merchants were very generous to the Venetian Queen.

The problem simply stated then is that the queen contest offers a considerable income to the winner, but this income is only available to females since only women enter the contest. To eliminate the discrimination all that is necessary is that a male enter the contest. And I can think of no better candidate than the Courier's own Dave Sheppard.

Dave, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sheppard of Ronulus, has been associated with the Courier for the last year. Astaty 6 ft. 4 in. and 210 lbs., the dark haired, brown eyed ad man graduated from Ronulus High School in 1967. Since high school Dave has taken courses at several universities. His favorite sports are swimming and sailing. Mr. Sheppard's future plans include "getting rich."

In discussing the specifics of the contest, Dave said the plans to go topless in the bathing suit competition, revealing his 46 inch chest.

"That oughta get me some votes," the future candidate was quoted as saying. Dave did say, however, he would wear a t-shirt if necessary to avoid controversy.

Mr. Sheppard will also have no problem answering the extemporaneous questions he will be asked during the contest. He is well known around the Courier office for his ability to sound intelligent in discussion.

WELFARE REFORM
The flagrant abuse of the basic purpose of the welfare program make it necessary to resort to other methods of caring for those who are not physically or mentally capable of surviving in our society. It is essential to seek out those people who are abusing and defrauding the system. I feel the key reasons for the deplorable situation we now have are: (1) Poor administration—allowing those people not actually in need of assistance to be paid on the rolls. (2) Availability of too much easy money for anti-poverty programs—money that ends up in the hands of those administering the programs rather than helping to create an incentive for those

The John Birch Society is doubly dangerous because it wears the innocent label "Conservative," as a conservative cause is more hazardous if it is labeled "Aspirin." And the JBS further multiplies its poison potency by wrapping itself in symbols and slogans of patriotism and religion, declaring itself to be "for God, country, and family." The worst evils ever perpetrated on the human race have been done in God's name—Gentiles killing Jews and Jews killing Gentiles, Protestants murdering Roman Catholics and Catholics destroying Protestants. Ch-I-C-O Book Sale Set Aug. 10-12 at Library

The second annual Project Ch-I-C-O Book Sale will be held at the Charlevoix Public Library, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Aug. 10, 11, 12, from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Hundreds of books, both new and old will be offered for sale at bargain prices. Weather permitting, they will be arranged on outdoor tables in front of the library, where sidewalk shoppers can browse through the book offerings at their leisure.

Book bargain hunters will remember last year's sale as an outstanding opportunity to pick up old, odd and unusual books and periodicals as well as many recent hard-cover and paper-back books for prices from 15 cents to $1.00. In case of rain, the sale will be indoors in the library.

The sale sponsored by the Charlevoix Woman's Club which two years ago adopted Project Ch-I-C-O as their Community Improvement Project, in accordance with the program of the national General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The name Ch-I-C-O stands for Charlevoix Indian Children's Opportunities. The object of the fund is to provide Indian children with whatever type of assistance is needed to help a child stay in school, broaden his learning opportunities or continue his education beyond high school.

The drop-out rate among Indian students in this area has been much higher than the general average. Often the point at which help is needed is in the early elementary grades. These needs can best be met by having funds readily available, locally, on a private personal basis.

CORRECTION - CHARLEVOIX

The Colwell & Co., Realtors advertisement which appeared in July 26, 1972 Charlevoix Courier was partially in error.

The error was the "1,500 ft. of prime Lake Charlevoix frontage with 32 acres selling at $325,000" is in no way associated with the Villa Nuava property as was indicated in the advertisement.

The above property is actually for sale but with no association to Villa Nuava.

Then the question arose as to how many members constituted a majority of the quorum present.

After Hansen was assured that the condominium would have 32 units instead of the planned 35 and that two parking spaces would be provided for each unit, he called for another vote. Then he cast the deciding vote in favor of issuing the permit.

The condominium will be called "The Dunes" and probably won't get under construction until the spring of 1973, Steffes said.

Serving with Duke on the multiple dwelling study committee will be Robert Winchester, Don Berlage, William Cockfield and George Richardson. The council extended the moratorium on the granting multiple-dwelling building permits by the city administrator until the committee completes its work in 90 days.

Gallagher

Was Fired

John A. Gallagher, former chief engineer aboard the Beaver Islander, wants to set the record straight.

Contrary to rumors circulating in Charlevoix, Gallagher, 62, says he did not "take an early retirement."

He said he was fired by Tom Erber, president of the boat company, so that he could be replaced by a younger man.

Gallagher's duties aboard the Beaver Islander have been taken over by Jerry LaFreniere of St. James.

Gallagher said he was told his dismissal had the approval of the entire board of directors of the boat company.

However, he claims Directors Clyde Fogg of Beaver Island and Fred Anmond of East Lansing were unaware of the move.

Waterfront Art Fair Is Saturday in East Park

ONE OF THE 150 exhibits of the Waterfront Fair on Aug. 12 will be Andrew J. Oberla, a retired Tawas City businessman. Here Oberla shows Mrs. Jack Rader of the fair committee one of his sculptures. The sculpture is of an eagle, with the wings done in wood and the head and tail done in stained glass. Working with wood-stained glass combinations is Oberla's specialty.

Artists Carefully Screened For 14th Annual Event

By JIMREUS

For one day each year East Park in Charlevoix becomes the showplace for the work of some of Michigan's and the nation's finest artists. Charlevoix's Waterfront Fair, the largest outside metropolitan areas of the state, will be held this year on Saturday, Aug. 12, all dusk.

From 10 a.m. till dusk artists of all ages, from all walks of life, and of all schools of art will be exhibiting their work in the park. Variety seems to be the theme of this year's display. Retired businessmen and tired housewives, college students and elderly gentlemen, amateurs and professionals alike, are among the scheduled exhibitors for the fair.

This year's fair, the 14th annual display sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, is a work of art in itself. For in choosing the exhibitors, the jury selection panel sought to give variety and balance to the fair, making sure there is something of interest for people of all ages and life styles.

Each artist who applied to exhibit at the Waterfront had his work evaluated by the jury panel. The panel, composed of experienced professional jurors, was completely autonomous from the Waterfront Fair Committee. It was the panel's responsibility to screen the hundreds of exhibit applicants, keeping in mind the continuity of the fair while evaluating the work according to its subject matter and originality.

Two exhibits of special interest at the fair will be a collage by Grace Hartigan and an oil painting by Marino Marini.

Grace Hartigan, one of the nation's foremost women artists, will have a position as early primary teacher and two others who will be assigned to the Middle School, John Houting who will teach math, grade, and David D. Moyer who will have a physical education assignment.

Miss Smith is a 1972 graduate of Alma College with a Bachelor of Arts degree and an elementary provisional certificate. She did her

Dollars Hold Key to County Road Problems

Flower Arranging Is Topic

Members of the Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Kenneth McLean in Norwood. Co-hostess was Mrs. Fritz Puffball.

A most interesting lesson was given by Mrs. Shirley Lusk on Flower Arranging which is a most fascinating hobby.

Once your enthusiasm and interest are aroused you will never again be able to pop flowers carelessly into a vase. You will develop a critical eye. You will want to make a beautiful picture instead of a haphazard grouping. You will strive to put your flowers into a harmonious container with some sort of plan, thought, and design. Mrs. Lusk said. Study line arrangements and learn to make a few flowers tell a story, she said. There are weeds along our roadides that need only to be touched with your imagination. Vegetables and fruits can also be used.

Mrs. Lusk made several arrangements using roses, daisies, mockorange, feverfew, and foliage in a variety of containers, baskets, plastic containers, and ceramic holders. Leaves can be cut with scissors for interesting shapes. She also gave a home recipe to use for a preservative for flowers, and suggested useful fillers such as chicken wire, oasis, and extra bits of foliage. It was a most timely lesson since our gardens are at last producing cut flowers that can be used. So remember, flowers are gay and beautiful and arranging them should be pleasant and also beautiful.

Library notes

There are excellent new books to report this week, beginning with "The Complicity of Age." This is the masterwork of France's leading woman writer, Simone de Beauvoir. It is a moving and thought-provoking study of the universal problem of growing old. Are the old really human beings? The author has covered a thousand years and every aspect of the subject. In dealing with what she calls "Society's Secret Shame," or what the aging members of the world must endure and suffer, the author has been communication with scholars and authorities everywhere, including America, Italy, England, Russia and China.

When Miss de Beauvoir declared that she was going to write a book on the subject of old age, everyone cried: "What an extraordinary idea! It's so morbid, so dismal, so sad!" And this is precisely why she wrote the book, to give a wholly truthful account of the state of these outcasts and of the way in which they experience it in their daily lives. This brilliant author feels that this conspiracy of silence must be broken and she calls upon her readers to help break it.

"Jonathan Livingston Seagull," the slim 90-page book with the lovely dust jacket, is an inspiring little sermon filled with magnificent photographs. Richard Bach is a writer and pilot. He is the author of "Stranger to the Ground," which has already become a modern classic. Everyone of his refreshingly unorthodox campaign the twists of fate that test Eddie's influence and integrity and the suspense of a long election night—all these make for a timely and engrossing novel of politics and power in America today.

Dale Repudiates Censure of Friske

Antrim County Republican Convention Chairman, Malcolm Dale, in a news release to all news media in the 103rd district repudiated the pronouncement by the Antrim County Republican Executive Committee that the Republican party was disassociating itself from Rep. Richard Friske.

Dale, a leader of the John Birch Society, charged that "the small courtesie clique of party bosses who took this action are trying to confuse the people for they certainly do not reflect the opinion of the majority of republican precinct delegates who are the duly elected representatives of the people in the county level."

"The evidence of this," he said, "lies in the fact that these representatives of the people adopted a resolution by a better than two-thirds

Auto Club Campaigns To Cover Trucks

Automobile Club of Michigan is reviving its citizens - information - gathering campaign started last fall to help urge passage of a state law requiring covers for trucks hauling loose cargo such as gravel.

The campaign began last October to help passage of state legislation requiring trucks hauling loose cargo to have covers.

A state-wide Auto Club survey made this spring indicates that 50,000 windshield breakage claims caused by debris from uncovered trucks cost $5.5 million a year in Michigan.

"The cost of replacing windshields does not include the damage done to tires, headlights and car bodies as the result of uncovered trucks dropping everything from gravel to scrap metal on roads," states Richard R. Dann, Auto Club executive vice president.

An editorial in the August edition of Motor News now being sent to the homes of over one million Auto Club members points out that two bills stalled in Michigan's Legislature would require dump trucks to be covered while moving on highways.

They are Senate Bill 1940 before the Highways Committee sponsored by Sen. David A. Plawewski (D-Deerborn Heights) and House Bill 4922 before the Road and Bridge Committee sponsored by Rep. James F. Smith (R-Davidson).

The Motor News editorial cites an Associated Press story which states the two bills are opposed by the Teamsters and the trucking industry.

"We have already sent state senators and representatives directly concerned with the proposed legislation results of our most recent campaign and are prepared to send them results of our new effort," states Dann.

He says that any motorists whose vehicle has been damaged by an uncovered truck and wishes to participate in the information-gathering campaign can do so by filling out a card at any Auto Club office. The card asks the following information:

(1) Name painted on the side of offending truck, (2) truck license number, (3) location of incident, (4) date and time of day, damage to place, (5) type of cargo such as gravel, debris, etc.

Auto Club states that all reports to its office will be collected and given to offending truckers and legislators concerned. All motorists concerned who have a complaint about uncovered trucks are asked by Auto Club to write to state senators and representatives urging passage of legislation requiring covers.

Colorful Art Fair in Store

CHILDREN of Waterfront Fair visitors get a chance to do some artwork of their own on the canvas for young artists. Here three young future artists diligently work away while mom and dad pursue the displays.

IF YOU'RE willing to take the time from viewing the many artworks on display, there is always an artist available to do a quick portrait sketch.

artists, recently visited the Charlevoix area. Enchanted by the area, she decided to loan a collage to the Waterfront Fair as an exchange for the many wonderful memories she has of Charlevoix.

Her style is uniquely personal, "neither abstract nor realistic," according to Samuel Sachs, Chief Curator of the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. In any event, the collage is a fine example of a fine artist's work.

The oil painting by Marino Marini will be on loan to the Waterfront from the private collection of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings. Known as a sculptor as well as a painter, Marini lives in Italy. His work has won him international acclaim.

There will be a large number of high quality prints at the fair. Leather craftsmen and glass blowers will also be represented. Many craftsmen will be performing their craft before the visitors to the fair.

To insure the Waterfront Fair is well organized, the Waterfront Fair Committee has been planning the event for months. Named to special assignment in preparation for the fair were Mrs. Richard Martin who enlisted senior hostesses; Mrs. Fred Davidson, distribution of posters; Mrs. Paul Osterberg, junior hostesses; Mrs. Jack Rader,

Probation in

IRS Tax Suit

Charlevoix Attorney Norman D. Ance has been sentenced to two weeks in prison and placed on probation for two years for willful failure to file income tax returns for 1965, 1966, 1967, and 1968 were dismissed.

Ance appeared before Federal Judge Noel P. Fox in Grand Rapids July 31.

Ance actually was sentenced to one year in prison, but Judge Fox suspended all but two weeks of the term. He will serve his two weeks in prison at the end of the probationary period, at the discretion of the court.

The suit was the result of an investigation by Internal Revenue agents in Petoskey. The investigation disclosed that Ance had willfully failed to file income tax returns from 1959 each year thereafter until 1970.

During this 11 consecutive year period, Ance had gross receipts totaling $228,093.25 and taxable income totaling $102,596.23, upon which he should have paid a tax of $28,131.77.

Ance says the figures are high, since the amounts were taken from his checking account and included sums of borrowed money.

The IRS says it is initiating collection activities to recover taxes, applicable penalties and interest owed by Ance for the entire period.

lay out of East Park; Mrs. Edward McNamara, program; Mrs. James Driggett, arrangements; Mrs. Julius Gilbert, publicity; Miss Fran Martin, publicity; Mrs. J. J. Olsen, applications, and Mr. and Mrs. William Staffel, advisors.

Mrs. Walter Midener, a former exhibitor at the fair, has served this year as an advisor to the committee.

The day of the fair is long for members of the committee who arrive at East Park beginning at 6 a.m., and remain there as late as 11 p.m. to clean up. The committee members make sure the fair is well run and enjoyable for artists and visitors alike.

If by chance there is inclement weather on the day of the fair, the high school gymnasium has been reserved for the display. In the past 14 years, the Waterfront Fair has never had to be moved indoors. And with a little luck, there will be no need to move inside on Aug. 12.

The moment an exhibiting artist arrives, he will be greeted and given an identification number. Junior hostesses will then help him unload his exhibits, instruct the artist as to where his exhibit will be located, and then help him set up his work. Throughout the day junior hostesses and committee members will be available to aid exhibitors in any way possible.

For the artists, the Waterfront Fair is a great opportunity to compare their work with that of their colleagues, and to evaluate trends in the art work of established as well as up and coming young artists. It's also a chance to sell some work to the many interested people who will be browsing through the park. And when the day is done, there will be plenty of junior hostesses and committee members on hand to assist the artists in packing up their wares.

The fair offers lots of excitement for visitors. Leather craftsmen and glass blowers will be working throughout the fair. Many artists will be doing portrait sketches for interested visitors. The Waterfront Fair offers visitors the combination of cultural enlightenment and an enjoyable experience.

Arriving in Charlevoix, visitors will find plenty of parking in the old Kroger Parking Lot, courtesy of William Kusina. An information booth will be located in East Park for visitors. Lay-out maps of the park, detailing locations of the 50 exhibitors, will be available at the booth.

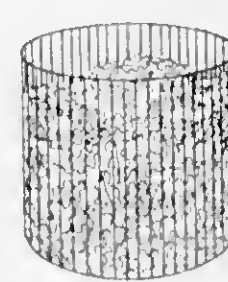

Amongst the myriad of art displays, there is one canvas which will be of special interest to children. It is called the young artists' canvas. On it children who come to the Waterfront may offer their creations to the fair. Hand-drawn, to be hung in the galleries of the fair, the canvas, which is an object of interest for adults as well as children. Because of the variety and high quality of exhibits for this year's fair, the 1972 Waterfront Fair promises to be a real success. An interesting, delightful and edifying time will be had by all who attend this Saturday's show: the perfect finishing touch on another wonderful Charlevoix summer.

DNR OK's Drastic Cut In Firearm Deer Kill

Michigan's 1972 harvest of antlerless deer will be held to 9,930 animals, about only one-half of last year's quota, under regulations approved last week by the Natural Resources Commission for this fall's Nov. 15-30 firearm deer season.

The Commission, acting upon field and aerial recommendations of the Department of Natural Resources, all but closed the Upper Peninsula to antlerless deer hunting for the '72 season, and voted to limit this fall's antlerless take to 4,980 animals in the northern Lower Peninsula and to 4,210 in southern Michigan.

As a result of last week's action, the southern part of Menominee County below US-2 is the only antlerless deer hunting area to be found on the Upper Peninsula's map for this season. Its antlerless quota stands conservatively at 640 animals, and efforts to reach that figure will be tested under a special camp or party permit system.

Elsewhere throughout the U.P., the Commission's sweeping moratorium on antlerless deer hunting takes account of the hard, cold realities of the lost four winters which have drained off a large part of the region's annual fawn crop since 1969. This year, that situation went from bad to worse, leaving the region with a fawn crop which DNR wildlife biologists describe as being practically "nil."

The Commission's virtual closure of antlerless hunting in the U.P. this fall carries with it the hope that the region's herd will - with the grace of an easier winter - be able to produce its first good fawn crop in five years. For the third straight year, northern Lower Michigan's programmed take of antlerless deer has been cut nearly in half under a continuing effort to boost deer numbers where that region's ranges show it can carry more whitetails through the crucial wintering season. As part of this positive plan, the Commission voted to restrict about 60 percent of the region to bucks-only hunting this fall. Much of that area covers the southernmost part of northern Lower Michigan where range conditions seem to offer the best "bounce-back" potential for deer.

It also includes tracts of forest lands where the DNR's newly accelerated program of deer habitat improvements has sprouted winter food supplies for more animals.

This season's approved antlerless deer harvest for southern Michigan compares closely with last year's overall figure. Again, it is primarily aimed at minimizing that region's toll of car-deer accidents which hit 4,800 in 1971. In what may turn out to be the forerunner to quality deer hunting in that part of the state, the Commission OK'd an experimental daily permit system for the Gratiot, Saginaw and Shiawassee River state game areas. DNR wildlife officials are hoping to spread hunter success in the two test areas throughout the firearm season under this plan for controlling gun pressure. In sizing up this fall's deer hunting picture as a whole, DNR wildlife officials look for a kill of about 55,000, including some 45,000 bucks and 9,930 antlerless animals. They explain that reductions in antlerless deer quotas tend to also hold down the harvest of bucks.

Last season, Michigan hunters took an estimated 49,000 bucks and 14,000 antlerless deer. Those sportsmen figuring in this fall's harvest who stop to have their animals examined at any of the DNR's roadside biological checking stations will be handed free, four-colored patches identifying them as successful deer hunters.

In other action of interest to hunters, the Commission last week set Michigan's 1972 bear and small game seasons essentially in line with last year's shooting regulations. The Commission did, however, adopt an important new rule for all successful bear hunters, which requires them to register their animals at DNR field installations within 72 hours of filling their licenses. The same check-in requirement covers land-

Rain caused havoc with the past week's schedule as only three nights of softball action was completed. Anyway, the games played went like this:

SLOW PITCH
Topside won the ball game even though they did lose the home run hitting contest. Scoring in every inning they beat Howard's 19-7. Ralph Doan had two home runs and Phil Skelton one for Topside while Howard hit four with Bernie Komrat collecting two and Louie Upton and Dave Kaseh one.

FAST PITCH
First State Bank made its initial victory in the '72 season an important one as they edged first round champ Novaks 3-2. They made three first inning runs stand up and then hung on for the big victory.

Later in the week they fell back in their old ways as Potter's got them by a 4-2 score. Both pitchers turned out to also be the hitting heroes as Jim Potter got two for the winners and Nate Boss picked up two for the losers.

Sept. 20 Deadline For Bear Permits

Sportsmen are reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that they have until Sept. 20 to mail hunting permit applications for the Oct. 13-19 bear season covering parts of Gaylord and Mio districts in northern Lower Michigan.

In a change from the last three years, permits for that short season will not be issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Instead, this season's permit holders will be randomly selected in a drawing on or around Sept. 25 if the number of applications exceeds hunter quotas for the two northern areas.

These quotas, as set recently by the Natural Resources Commission, make 500 permits available for the Gaylord District and provide another 350 bear-hunting permits for the Mio District. This season's permit quota for each area is the same as last year when a total of 54 bears were taken in the two districts. DNR wildlife officials look for another conservative bear harvest this season in the two areas, comparable to the 1971 figure.

The Oct. 13-19 bear season will cover the same counties as in 1971—Emmet, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Osego, Montmorency, and Alpena in Gaylord District; Kalkaska, Crawford, Oscoda, Alcona, Roscommon, Ogemaw, and Iosco counties in Mio District.

Cub bears will again be protected in each of these counties under a bin which also covers all bear hunting seasons in the Upper Peninsula.

This season's bear-hunting permit applications for the Gaylord and Mio districts are open to sportsmen who are 14 years and older.

As a requirement for submitting those requests, applicants must purchase 1972 bear-hunting licenses or sportsmen's licenses for this year.

Selected local dealers will be supplied with the regular 1972 bear licenses by the first week of August. Sportsman's licenses for this season will be in the hands of all dealers throughout Michigan late in August, well ahead of the Sept. 20 deadline for postmarking permit applications.

Group Told Loopholes Will Hike Property Tax

The proposed "property tax relief" amendment to the state constitution circulated by the Michigan Education Association and supported by Gov. William G. Milliken could double property taxes within three to five years.

This information was given members of the Northern Michigan Counties Association by Frank Olegis, Grand Traverse County, during a meeting July 20 at Traverse City.

In his review of the proposed amendment Olegis pointed out the stated purpose of the amendment was to get equal education and tax relief under a 26-mill property tax limitation. He mentioned several loopholes. One was the provision that schools, as well as other governmental units, could levy additional taxes with the approval of the electorate. One of the prime objections to the present financing of schools through property taxes is the inability of poorer districts to finance education equal to that of richer districts. This provision of the amendment would continue present inequities.

Although the amendment stipulates these additional taxes which may be levied by schools, counties and townships may not exceed six mills there are exceptions. These provide limitation shall not apply to taxes imposed for indebtedness and that such taxes may be imposed without limitation as to rate or amount. From the wording of the proposed amendment it would appear that a city, village, community college district, charter county, charter township, charter authority, or any other authority, would also be able to levy additional taxes with voter approval.

He pointed out that one provision of the amendment is the statement "Shall not exceed 26 mills on each dollar of the assessed valuation of property as finally equalized..." He referred to the continuing increases in assessed valuation of local and real personal property being made by the State Tax Commission through the equalization process.

Assessing officers throughout Michigan placed the assessed value of all personal and real property at slightly more than $24 billion in 1969. This figure was increased to just under $30 billion by the State Tax Commission. In 1972, assessing officers placed the value of all property at approximately $40 billion. The final figure of the State Tax Commission was just under $44.5 billion. Of the 83 counties in Michigan, all but 10 in 1972 has the property evaluations of local assessors increased on the state level. This practice could, within a few years, increase the actual tax dollar cost to double what it is today.

Olegis told of the difficulty he encountered in attempting to find a copy of the amendment and suggested members obtain copies for personal study.

A second proposed amendment will permit levy of "an income tax at flat rates or graduated as to rate or base," which may also levy the same type tax, "as provided by the state legislature." In a report on welfare reform, George Parr, vice-president of the organization, said there is growing support for putting welfare recipients to work. He also brought out that welfare families in the large cities and southern part of the state are being encouraged to migrate north.

President Weldon Johnson stated that in a broadcast report of the Democratic Convention recently held in Miami Beach, the statement was made that 27 percent of the delegates were on welfare. "Is this a healthy, or unhealthy situation?" he asked.

AUG

GEORGE NIPSON, founder of the Charlevoix Chemical Co., has found Charlevoix a good place to do business. He started with a capital investment of $6,000 three years ago. This year he expects to gross about $300,000.

Charlevoix Chemical Co. Is Featured by Magazine

One of the city's newest industries—the Charlevoix Chemical Co.—was featured in a recent edition of Maintenance Supplies Magazine, a nationally circulated trade publication.

The company is owned by George Nipson and is located in the Industrial Park on U.S. 31 North. Founded three years ago, the company rang up gross sales of $50,000 the first year, $115,000 the second year and $220,000 in the year just ended. Nipson expects volume to approximate $300,000 this year.

The firm specializes in general maintenance and janitorial supplies, industrial chemicals, dry cleaning materials, coin-op supplies and swimming pool chemicals. Before going into business on his own, Nipson was a salesman in southern Ohio for the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., later becoming district manager of a four-state area.

After Virginia-Carolina merged with Mobil Oil Co. to become Mobil Chemical, Nipson became a regional sales manager covering the entire East Coast.

"The work was satisfying in some ways," Nipson recalls, "but the pace was not to my liking. My wife, Virginia, and I didn't particularly like the East Coast and the constant traveling I had to do was getting to be too much. I felt like I was getting old before my time, and I began questioning if what I was doing was really worth it to myself and my family."

Nipson hit upon the idea of starting a distributorship in Charlevoix where he and his family had spent many summer vacations.

"In looking at the business market in the area," Nipson told the magazine, "we noted that there wasn't a good all-around maintenance supply distributor. For example, the distributor that had many of the dry-cleaning accounts in the area was in Flint, 175 miles south of here. Deliveries were made only once a month."

"Another factor we considered in the possibilities of starting a distributor business was the diversification potential. This area is relatively sparsely populated, with no urban centers of several hundred thousand people or more. Thus the ability to corner a good share of a number of markets seemed feasible.

"So, with my background in chemicals and with the clear need for a diversified distributor in the area, we decided to make a go of it."

Nipson's first employee was Frank Risley, whom he hired as a driver and salesman. The second year he took on Ron Zednick in the same capacity. More recently he has hired Mike Meier to handle warehousing duties and make local deliveries.

Nipson's wife, Virginia, is bookkeeper. "We've come quite a way in only three years," Nipson told Maintenance Supplies Magazine, "and we feel we're going to go a lot farther as we develop and expand and new markets."

"We've filled a need, and we've done it with service. Even though it's been a lot of work and a demanding experience, it's been far more gratifying than all those plane trips on the east coast."

Door-to-Door Sales Target of New Law

On Jan. 3, 1972, a new law went into effect in Michigan giving to consumers added protection from abusive sales practices that take place in their homes.

Today Michigan consumers have the unconditional right to rescind any contract made in their home for the sale of goods and services over $25.

This right to rescind runs for three business days after you sign the contract in your home. The law does not cover sales of insurance, agricultural equipment, horticultural products, sales made pursuant to pre-existing revolving charge accounts, or sales made pursuant to prior negotiations of a local business establishment.

The law requires the contract taken in the home to contain a prominent disclosure that it is such a contract and that the consumer has a right to cancel by giving written notice to the company's address listed. The consumer is precluded from using the courts.

Finally, this new law recognizes that there will be some occasions when an emergency develops in the home, such as the furnace breaks down in wintertime, that a consumer who requests goods or services in such situations will not be given the opportunity to cancel their obligation to pay for these goods or services.

Any seller or holder of a contract who later sues a consumer on a contract solicited in his home must also prove that they were at all times in compliance with the law, otherwise they are precluded from using the courts.

Some of the newest uses of the Michigan State University Computer Center is the production of three dimensional maps. The maps, which show such data as elevation, rainfall and land use, can be obtained in a variety of sizes and at a fraction of the time needed for the production of such maps by hand.

Life Style Is Changing for Migrant Workers

BY JIMMEIS
Jaime is a two year old Mexican American. For generations his family has worked in fields across the nation as "migrant" farm help. But there is a good chance Jaime will never work in the fields picking fruit.

The technology of the industrial revolution which left the migrant behind over 100 years ago is only now coming back to him. With inventions like the "shaker" for the cherry crop, there is less and less demand for migrant help. A "shaker" simply shakes the cherries into a catch-all below, doing the work of several migrants in just a few minutes.

For Jaime, the inventions mean he will have to find another way of life. In a few years when machinery like the "shaker" is commonplace, there will be no work for migrants.

OLDSTYLE LIFE
But right now the old life style is still very much alive within Jaime's family.

Migrant children learn very early in life to respect their elders, the church, and hard work. Migrants still travel in groups of several families: each group having its own "crew leader" who is responsible for finding the group a place to work and live in each of the several crop states. Left to themselves and without any land to call home, migrant workers have lived within their own society for years: a society within a society.

The transition for the migrant from his present culture to modern-day culture is not easy. If he is to make the transition and he must to survive—he must be educated, both culturally (many migrants still only speak Spanish) and academically.

To achieve that end the State of Michigan established the Michigan Migrant Project Program. The program consists of nine centers throughout the state which operate during cherry picking time and exist solely for the benefit of migrants.

The Elk Rapids Migrant Center at Lakeland Elementary School in Elk Rapids is one of the nine centers throughout the state.

The program there consists of day care work for pre-school age children and classroom work for older kids.

"Our job is to help migrant families in any way, at any time, and under any circumstances," says Aldo Borja of the Elk Rapids center.

The circumstances and times when the center staff work are quite often unusual. At first many migrant families conditioned by years of discrimination, were hesitant to take advantage of the program. Many growers are also uncooperative before they learn of the functions of the center. It takes a lot of convincing just to bring the children into the center.

Once in the center, teaching the children does not proceed like in an average American school. Children of the same age usually are at quite different grade levels, so there can be no set class pattern of work.

The age and ability differences present problems to the staff, but none so great that they can't be worked out. The staff of 40 is large enough so each child receives much individual attention; there is a bilingual aid for every five children among the younger groups.

But the migrant center is more than just an educational program. An infirmary with two registered nurses on duty is open each day. Children receive health check-ups and if necessary are referred to a physician for treatment. Dental care is also available.

Adult migrants are referred to the Traverse City center where they may receive free medical, legal, and dental aid. As much as can be done for the migrants is done at the centers. The program has had its successes; next fall 50 migrants will enter state universities, having qualified by passing G. E. D. tests which demonstrated they had the equivalent of a high school education.

But there are still many problems. When a child is old enough to pick, which is typically about 12, he leaves the school for the fields.

Families cannot afford to keep children in school, but are beginning to realize they must stay in school if they are to have a future. At the school a boy can receive two good meals each day, and more important a chance for the future.

In the week before the cherries are ready for picking, migrants of all ages attend classes. Some of the students are as old as 18. But when the cherries are ripe, the oldest student is at most eleven. The rest have gone to the fields.

There is talk of adult education courses during next year's cherry season. This will help, but educating the migrant will still be a problem for concerned government officials. The families are in Michigan for only six weeks, and within that limited period only so much can be done.

But the problem is already severe. There are many more workers in Michigan than there are picking jobs available. These people, many of whom are unskilled, must go on to another state in hopes of finding employment.

Although Jaime may never work in the fields, his problems, as with the migrants, are far from being solved. Though migrant centers like the one at Elk Rapids can help pave the way into the future, Jaime will have a hard time switching from one culture to another.

For government officials, it seems, the plight of the migrant workers, far from being solved by the onset of modern picking machinery, is only beginning.

How Many Conservatives Are Waiting for Champ?

Although the Courier must go to press Tuesday morning before the election returns are in, it is not too early to comment on this year's race in the 103rd Representative District.

Whether residents of the district realize it or not, Michigan's 103rd has become something of a pivotal point in state and national politics.

For almost two years, the people of the district (formerly the 106th) have been represented in Lansing by Richard Friske, a man whose political philosophy is straight out of the 19th Century.

His views on almost every subject harken back to a time when America was a simple agricultural nation, underpopulated, under-mechanized and about as sophisticated as butter and bread.

Urban problems resulting from the industrial revolution, and more recently from automation, are beyond his comprehension. He doesn't understand the meaning of "technological unemployment" and probably never will.

In Friske's book, every able-bodied man should work, whether jobs are available or not.

He describes the state welfare burden, but gives away his cherry crop rather than hire pickers.

He laments abortion reform and the teaching of sex education in the schools. Yet he would like to do something about over population in the inner cities where most of the welfare cases originate.

He conjures up the spectre of a Communist world take-over at a time when relations between the United States and the major Communist nations have never been better.

He wants total victory in Vietnam, when anything better than an armed truce is clearly out of the question.

He begs for a strict construction of the Constitution, without realizing the Constitution is a living document that has been subject to many interpretations over the years.

The amazing thing about Rep. Friske is that he has as many followers as he does. People who never gave a hoot nor a holler about politics in years past are wearing Friske buttons and parading through the streets with Friske bumper stickers on their cars.

They have found their champion at last.

What bothers us is how many more ultra conservatives are waiting across the country for their champions to come to the fore? When and if they do, America is in for darker days than it has ever known in the past.

They Missed Boat Parade Once Again

Grand Blanc, Mich. Aug. 1, 1972

Mr. Clock:

Subject: Boat Parade.

For 40 of the 42 years of the Boat Parade we begged the City of Charlevoix to have the parade on Saturday night, as we always had to return on Sunday to a job early Monday a.m.

This year my family cheek and checked to plan a wedding that weekend which could have been either Saturday or Sunday.

After all plans are made and guests are there for the wedding, we see on the front page of the Courier that it will be on Saturday and we have the wedding planned for Saturday, so once more we missed the Boat Parade.

We were all quite disappointed. We had arranged for a lake view room at the Lodge and sent out invitations to entertain while our guests and we watched the parade. It was such a "let-down."

I do wish the City Fathers could make up their dear minds a bit "before." We are still for the Saturday night show.

Yours truly

Mildred M. Scott (Mrs. Hugh)

1067 Greenbriar Hills Dr., Grand Blanc, Mich. 48439

(Editor's note: The City Fathers don't really have a great deal to do with the Venetian Festival. The Chamber of Commerce accepts all the praise and blame. As a matter of record, the Boat Parade has been on Saturday night for several years now, just so weekenders are able to enjoy it along with resorters and townspeople. For some unfathomable reason, the Chamber of Commerce held the Venetian Festival a week early this year. Traditionally it has been held the last weekend in July.)

The Beavers Wait

"I can only stay away from the Beavers just so long. Then I have to go back."

The speaker was Sandy Beadle, our good friend from Holly and Ann Arbor. We were standing on the Beaver Island dock in Charlevoix, waiting for the last of the freight to be hauled aboard.

Then, with a picket fence of travelers lining the rail, the Beaver Islander would slide down Pine River channel and head north for America's fabled Emerald Isle in the middle of northern Lake Michigan.

Sandy, who was a senior when I taught at Holly High School, is in her mid-20's. She arrived in Charlevoix about one hour before boat time, having advertised for a ride in an Ann Arbor newspaper. Her driver promised to pick her up in Charlevoix Sunday morning.

Her first stop was the Courier office, where we hustled her up to the house for a cup of coffee before the boat left. We also insisted that she eat something as a hedge against sea-sickness. She would only accept one slice of French bread.

Like most girls in their mid-20's, Sandy is worried about her figure. "If it gets rough, I'll take a dramamine," she promised.

Judy and the kids walked her down to the boat. It was late leaving so we had time to chat.

Sandy works in an Ann Arbor.

laboratory drawing graphs for $2 an hour — enough to pay for food, lodging and cigarettes in that high-cost-of-living town. Last year she washed bottles in the same lab, so she feels she has come up in the world.

Sandy also is a poet of no mean ability. Her work has appeared in University of Michigan publications.

Several years ago after moving to Ann Arbor from Holly, Sandy had a problem with drugs. But she's off them now. She figures that life can be healthy enough without the use of mind-expanding chemicals.

Besides, there's always at least one trip a year to Beaver Island—a mind-expanding experience if there ever was one.

Unlike most of us, Sandy is a backpacker. She carries all of her camping gear and provisions in a canvas and aluminum pack securely strapped to her back. She camps in the island's parks and lakes along the island's moist, hard-packed roads in the shade of towering birches and hemlocks.

Who needs drugs?

It is a wonder psychiatrists don't start prescribing Beaver Island as a cure for patients beset by the curses of the work-a-day world.

As soon as the Beaver Island clears the pierheads, mainland worries become smaller and smaller, just like the vanishing Charlevoix shoreline. The jangle of telephones, the clatter and whirr of machinery, the roar of highway traffic—all are replaced by the pleasant slap of waves against the bow as the Beaver Islander churns toward her home port.

Life on the island is the next thing to idyllic. Perhaps because of their isolation, the Islanders welcome all travelers like long-lost kinsfolk. If you don't feel at home on Beaver Island, there's a good chance you'll never feel at home anywhere in the world.

Sipping beer in the cool recesses of the Shamrock or the Beachcomber on a sunny afternoon. Swimming in the surf in the village park. Hiking or peddling a bicycle down the island's pleasant, tree-shaded byways. Launching at the Castaways with a dockside view of St. James Harbor. Dining out at the Grele M. Bedding down at night with the sound of the surf in your ears. Or camping out like our Sandy does, under the stars. The spell of Beaver Island is difficult to translate into words.

If you thrive on elbow-to-elbow crowds and are turned on by the racket and excitement of big cities, you probably won't like it. But if you savor the gentle things of life—the piney scent of deep woodlands, vistas of endless blue water and the no-strings-attached friendship of the island's Irish inhabitants, then Beaver Island awaits—just beyond the horizon.

If it Fits

By JIM FITZGERALD

"I tell you this, Buster. No one ever shot the star on livesizes by mail. You had to be there."

I mean, how about that Bobby Fischer? He won a chess game and he wasn't even there. He wasn't even there sitting in his special chair in New York to Beykjavik because there wasn't a chair in Iceland that fit Bobby's rump right.

Fischer wrote a chess move down on a sheet of paper flown from Sweden for the occasion. He put it in a sealed envelope and had it delivered to his opponent, Boris Spassky, at the chess arena where hundreds waited to watch the big match. Thousands more wanted to watch on TV.

Spassky read the note, conceded defeat, and left. Fischer showed up an hour later to take a bow and drink some orange juice flown in from Florida.

There was no one there except Gudmundur Arnarsson, deputy referee of the match. He was still trying to get his name spelled right on the official score sheet.

Sort of reminds you of the time Ty Cobb mailed that stolen base to the New York Yankees, doesn't it? Or that time Arnold Palmer sent a birdie to the National Open via Western Union (of course) it was never delivered because it was a weekend but that wasn't Arnie's fault).

Jacks is my game. (The Birds is coming).

My kids share the popular opinion that jacks is a girl's game. Which is nonsense. The should just ask Mary Margaret. If she has come out of seclusion yet. Championship jacks takes a lot of stamina and gut-level coolness. I'll never forget that battle with Mary Margaret.

First there was a terrible argument about the playing field—wood, concrete or Reynolds Aluminum? We finally compromised and played on our kitchen floor which had all three surfaces. The roll of the jacks determined how the ball would bounce and whether your knuckles were scraped, splintered or waxed.

Then there was posture. I favored the kneeling position because it allows greater reach. But Mary Margaret insisted that we sit on one buttock each, and playside saddle. We finally compromised by alternating the two positions during the first two weeks and sitting Indian style the third week. It is terribly difficult to play jacks sitting Indian style, unless you don't have any knees.

Mary Margaret wanted to use red jacks and a blue ball. This was spite. She knew I detested red and blue. I wanted green jacks and a white ball.

Again, we settled the dispute by alternating. But it wasn't easy.

The arguing went on 15 weeks and finally went to binding arbitration by Johnny Miller who was deputy referee until 8 o'clock each night when his mother made him go to bed.

Once the match began, Mary Margaret's dad started taking pictures with his Brownie while I was doing eggs-in-the-basket. I walked out and didn't return until he agreed to crouch in the kitchen cupboard and shoot his pictures through an opening in the breadbox.

That'll give you an idea of the strain I was under. But I won, mostly because Mary Margaret was no match for me in the impromptu, or free figure competition. She conceded defeat when I tossed the ball high, put all 5 jacks in my mouth, spit them into my shirt pocket one at a time, and then caught the ball before it hit the floor.

I'd like to see Bobby Fischer mail that in.

Nixon's

July 25, 1972

Dear Mr. Loeb,

In answer to your letter stating that Nixon is getting us out of Vietnam, so why vote for McGovern. I was with the Catholic World Relief Service for two years in Saigon. I know the oppression the people are suffering with the Thieu government. I know the Catholic Bishop of Saigon has asked that United States leave AND withdraw their support of the Thieu government which has imprisoned thousands without trial for no more reason than being for peace.

Nixon is withdrawing our troops but is continuing support for Thieu's government. He also continues to kill hundreds each day with bombs from planes based in Thailand. He is only changing the color of the corpses. McGovern's pledge is to withdraw completely, including support for the corrupt and oppressive Thieu government. Believe me, the people of South Vietnam that we are trying to help agree with McGovern.

Sincerely,

Hospital Drive Falters

With only a little more than a week remaining, the Charlevoix Hospital drive to raise $175,000 for coronary and intensive care units is still about $75,000 shy of the goal, according to Floyd McCarthy, fund raiser.

The formal drive will end Aug. 20.

McCarthy said that everyone pledging $1 a week—or $156 during the three-year pledge period—will be listed in an article in the Charlevoix Courier after the drive is over.

McCarthy said one of the major problems in securing pledges is a lack of workers. Instead of the needed 75, he has only 35.

"If everyone who's working will complete their cards and if the prospects will help by committing themselves the first time they are contacted, our workers could see more people," he said.

"With everyone doing his part, there is no doubt but what we will end up with a successful completed fund. However, if many wait to let the other person do their part there is a real possibility we could be $25,000 to $30,000 short."

Faces Charge Of Forgery

Thomas Michael Bennett, 27, of Manistee, was to be arraigned in District Court Monday on a charge of forgery.

Bennett is charged with cashing a forged check for $3,250 at the Charlevoix County State Bank. The Bank of Nevada draft was drawn on the first National City Bank of New York.

Police Chief Jack Mol says most of the money was placed in a savings account with the County Bank, although the depositor, using the name of Charles R. Zake, accepted $750 in cash.

City Balks on Wharf Permit

Attorneys Will Decide Who Owns Antrim-st.

A building permit for the second section of the Wharf condominium on Round Lake was stalled again Monday night when the city council agreed that it needs more information on the Antrim-st. right-of-way and the total land area involved before reaching a decision.

Timberlee, Inc., the developer, presented revised plans to the council, providing for two parking spaces per unit on the council recommended.

However one of the parking lots and a swimming pool are located on a portion of lake shore property which City Attorney Robert Hoffman says is a continuation of Antrim-st.

Fred Hall, representing Timberlee, said he would have the company's attorney get together with Hoffman in an attempt to resolve the impasse.

The second section will have 20 units, in addition to the 11 now nearing completion. Parking spaces will be provided for 63 cars, slightly more than the recommended two-to-one ratio.

Thomas Duke, chairman of a newly organized committee to study changes in the city's multiple-dwelling ordinance, recommended against issuance of the building permit on grounds that the parking spaces are too small, "except for Model T's and motorcycles."

The spaces measure 8 1/2 feet by 18 feet, giving them 153 square feet. The city recommends 160 square feet for parking spaces in business and professional areas.

Duke said some of the parking spaces at The Wharf are laid out in a way so that they are unusable.

He said it seemed The Wharf developers are being penalized, in view of the fact that building permits for other condominiums have been issued without fanfare.

Mayor Edward Hansen said it is Timberlee's best interest to have all the questions answered before the permit is issued, particularly ownership of the foot of Antrim-st.

In other condominium business, Alderman Sam Supernaw asked that the council reconsider the granting of a building permit to two weeks ago to Ron Steffes who plans to build a condominium on Michigan-ave. He said Steffes will have 26.9 units per acre, a greater density than the proposed Crift condominium nearby. The motion was not seconded.

In other business the council:

Opened bids from three contractors on the extension of water line to the Kit Carson property on M-46, a water main loop through Boulder Park and a line down Taylor-blvd. to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate school office. Low bidder an all three projects was W. A. Porter of East Jordan, who bid $34,712. Other bidders were Wilson and Mayhew of East Jordan and G and L Contracting of Traverse City. The bids were sent to committee.

Filed an objection with the U.S. Corps of Engineers to a plan to construct 11 floating docks into Round Lake in front of The Wharf condominium. The council said the docks would be a hazard to navigation.

Incumbents Win Commission Seats

Incumbents won re-election to the County Board of Commissioners in the only two districts with races.

In District 2 (Morion, Norwood, St. James and Peaine Townships), Clyde Cunningham was re-elected with 188 votes. Frank Novotny Jr. received 52 votes and Rosa Rosenthal 39.

In District 5, incumbent commissioner Ralph Richardson narrowly squeaked past Aaron Brock by a vote of 89 to 83. Karl Waldner, vying for the same seat, received 52 votes. District 5 includes Evline and Wilson Townships.

Bircher Angers Dems

At their county convention Friday night, Charlevoix County Democrats went on record as refusing to back the party's candidate for the 11th Congressional District seat, James E. McNamara of Negawee.

The convention's resolution, forwarded to the party's district convention at Manistee this weekend, states that he is refused to back McNamara's based on his public statement that he will not support the Democratic platform, that he will probably write in the name of Gov. George Wallace in the general election and that he is a member of the John Birch Society (as stated in his campaign literature) whose philosophy is in contrast to that of the Democratic party.

At the same meeting, Charles A. "Tony" Duerr of Charlevoix, Mrs. Jean Rosewig of Wailoon Lake, Martin Paul and Peter Johnson of Boyne City were elected delegates to the Democratic State convention.

Hicks Elected Bank VP

Orval J. Hicks has been elected assistant Vice President of the Charlevoix County State Bank, E. D. (Pat) Howley, president, has announced.

Hicks, who is presently with the Michigan National Bank in Lansing, will assume his new duties in Charlevoix Sept. 5. He is a graduate of Michigan State University and has completed several educational courses through the American Institute of Banking. He is a veteran of 16 years in the banking business.

Hicks and his wife, Bonnie, have two children, Jody, 12, and Joy, 7.

"It is our aim to continually expand our staff and facilities as needed so that we may give the best possible service to Charlevoix area residents," Hawley said.

Ralph Ostling

Ralph Ostling Wins GOP Nomination; Friske to Tell Plans

What does an unemployed state legislator do with his spare time?

That's the predicament Rep. Richard Friske will find himself in come Jan. 1.

Friske, who has represented the 100th District in Lansing for the past two years, was defeated in the Aug. 8 primary, losing to his fellow Republican Ralph Ostling of Roscommon, 7,957 to 6,776. Rodney Parker, another Republican from Lake City, garnered only 2,372 votes.

The three men ran in the newly reorganized 103rd District, which stretches from western Charlevoix County to northern Isabella County.

In a telephone interview with the Courier after the election, Friske said he has plans for the future, but he won't be ready to make them public "for a week or 10 days."

That means an announcement from Friske Orchards in northern Antrim County could be forthcoming yet this week.

Friske said he does not intend to run as a write-in candidate and he has no intention of forming a third party. But he would not commit himself immediately as to his future plans.

He did say, however, that he will continue to fight government interference in private matters until "my dying breath."

Shortly before the election, Friske announced that he was giving away his entire cherry crop, worth about $3,000 rather than knuckle-under to price raises set up by a cherry growers' association.

The "giveaway" attracted national attention and Friske said he has received 150 letters—many from California—commending him for his stand.

The orchardist said it "did my heart good" to see the droves of pickers swarm into his orchards and carry off the cherry crop.

He chided the Courier which criticized him last week for depriving pickers of jobs, insisting that he deprived no one of a job but gave food to the needy instead.

He said both he and his wife feared the inexperienced pickers might damage the trees. They were relieved when they found only six branches broken.

Although Ostling's vote total was greater, Friske managed to carry more counties than his opponent, ringing up victories in Charlevoix (1,015 to 868); Clare, 886 to 601; Kalamazoo, 642 to 384; Missaukee, 649 to 473; and Oshtemo, 1,032 to 733.

He also took Gilmore Township in Isabella County 41 to 21.

Ostling's major support came from his home county of Roscommon where he outpolled Friske 2,357 to 840.

Ostling also carried Friske's home county—Antrim—where he received 1,490 votes to Friske's 1,283.

A retired Roscommon School teacher, Ostling also captured Crawford County where the vote was 596 to 538.

Stall Zoning Ordinance

Mrs. Ottinger, Cohorts Take County to Court

Circuit Judge James M. Fitzpatrick has signed a temporary restraining order preventing the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners from taking any action on county-wide zoning pending the outcome of a hearing.

The surprise move came as the result of a lawsuit filed Friday by Karl Waldner, Rosalie Ottinger, Willis Peters, Angel Beasars and Phyllis Miller who charge that the hearing was advertised for three weeks in both the Northland Press, published at Boyne City, and in the Charlevoix Courier. At least three of the plaintiffs, Mrs. Ottinger, Peters and Mrs. Beasars, attended the hearing.

The suit also charges that no public hearings were held prior to an informal presentation of the ordinance to the Board of Commissioners July 15.

The plaintiffs charged that unless the temporary restraining order were granted, they would be "deprived of their right and opportunity for publicly making suggestions resulting in amendment, revision, additions or deletions" to the ordinance.

All members of the newly organized Citizens-Information Service, the plaintiffs are represented by attorney Earl Langlois of Manistee.

William Mercer, county planning director, was astounded by the lawsuit, which charges that its office scheduled public hearings on the ordinance Aug. 14 and Aug. 28, neither of which has been advertised in local newspapers as required by law.

Mercer said that no meetings had been scheduled for either date and that the only public hearing on the ordinance was held last Thursday at the Court House.

That hearing was advertised for three weeks in both the Northland Press, published at Boyne City, and in the Charlevoix Courier. At least three of the plaintiffs, Mrs. Ottinger, Peters and Mrs. Beasars, attended the hearing.

The suit also charges that no public hearings were held prior to an informal presentation of the ordinance to the Board of Commissioners July 15.

Artrain Due In Petoskey

The Artrain, a mobile art museum, will be in Petoskey for four days, Aug. 17-20.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is also sponsoring a local professional artists' exhibit at the Petoskey Railroad Depot while the Artrain is in Petoskey.

Mercer said Monday that Circuit Judge Charles Brown has tentatively set a hearing on the action Sept. 21.

He said he is mystified by the lawsuit, since all the defendants live in townships or the City of Charlevoix, which already have zoning ordinances and will not be affected by the county-wide ordinance if it is adopted.

More than 80 persons attended the zoning hearing last week, which was conducted by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. At the end of the meeting, a show of hands indicated that 57 persons favored county-wide zoning and 17 persons were against it.

Mrs. Ottinger was one of the speakers against the ordinance. She said the hearing had not been duly advertised and objected to a section placing a time limit on the "razing" of a building. The board explained that "razing" refers to the demolition of a structure, not construction.

One of the speakers in favor of the ordinance was William Parsons of Norwood Township. He said his township has been zoned since 1961 "and it has protected many people."

A resident of Springwater Beach said the only thing wrong with the county-wide zoning ordinance is that it is coming 30 years too late.

Hospital Campaign Needs Your Help

(The following is an open letter to the people of Charlevoix by Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raiser Floyd McCarthy.)

By Floyd McCarthy

The hospital drive to raise funds for the new coronary-intensive care units is in grave danger of not reaching its objective. The fund probably won't even reach the $175,000 goal and there is an additional need for about $35,000 in equipment. For this drive to be a success we really should raise a minimum of $210,000.

Whether we reach our objective or not all those who have worked so diligently to make the program what it is will be recognized. In an article the week following the close of our program everyone who has a minimum of at least $1.00 a week for three years of $156.00 will be listed by name. The community at large should know those who believe enough in providing adequate health care to share of their time and money.

Medusa Cement Co. just gave a pledge of $7,500.00 to our drive and their local union "United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers" AFL-CIO 140 gave their picnic fund for this summer which totaled $456.00. We now have reached a total of $140,000 with only one week to go to completion of our drive. The final report for the drive will be made to the Board of Trustees of the Charlevoix Area Hospital on Saturday afternoon Aug. 19. If it is possible for you to make a gift before Saturday would you call Mr. McCarthy at 547-4332 or drop in at the office in the basement of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

If all workers will process all of the cards they now hold and if everyone would try to make a commitment before Saturday, I believe we could still have a complete fund by that date. Please, won't you commit now?

THE CH.I.C.O. book sale at the library last week netted $451.95 for the Charlevoix Indian Children's Opportunities. The money will be used to help keep Indian children in school. Approximately 2,500 books were donated for sale. The annual sale is sponsored by the Charlevoix Women's Club, which already has started collecting books for the 1973 sale. Anyone with books to donate may leave them at the library in boxes or bags labeled "book sale." Above, Mrs. Janice Dietrich and Mrs. Margaret Duerr wait on customer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Miles and Mrs. Mary Ellen Goldstick opened their homes last week to members of their families now residing in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thrasher of Buffalo, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Goldstick and daughter, Debbie, of Rome, N.Y., and Miss Ellen Goldstick of Boston all converged on Charlevoix at the same time.

According to Mrs. Miles, they chose the day of the storm to make a trip to Beaver Island and all the "city land-lubbers" packed. (Old Lake Michigan can still show its strength).

After that, they spent their time more safely visiting old friends, and then Mrs. Thrasher and Mrs. Goldstick, via Traverse City to Atchison, Kan., to attend the Class of 35 reunion of the Atchison High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Lynn of Los Altos, Calif., left Wednesday after spending a week visiting their cousins, the Edwards Goldens.

Jordan Group Told Why Wild River Status Nixed

The Jordan River Watershed Commission met on Wednesday evening, Aug. 2, to discuss the future of the Jordan River as a designated "Wild Scenic River."

Under the most recent DNR thinking, entire river systems instead of merely the main branches are to be included in natural river designations. The DNR Commissioners want all tributaries in the Jordan above Rogers Bridge included in the plan.

The DNR commissioners say they will not accept the proposal unless management zones are on both sides of the river are extended from the proposed 200 feet to 400 feet.

And finally, the DNR commission asked for a specific limitation on the number of canoes to be allowed on the river. The original proposal stated the restrictions could be imposed in case a problem arises.

Chairman Pray then turned the meeting over to DNR officials for discussion.

Norman Smith, Chief of Office Planning Service for the DNR, said the Act (Designating the Jordan a "Wild Scenic River") states that the entire river system and a 400 ft. strip on each side of the river must be included in the action.

Harry Doehne, in charge of Rivers and Shoreline Management Section of the DNR, said that the inclusion of the Jordan's tributaries was the first time it was done in the nation.

The feeder streams, he claimed, are important. He then said the 400 ft. strip was not a 400 ft. setback. But rather, the DNR was demanding that a 400 ft. strip be included in the management program for the river.

Approximately 2/3 of the Jordan's tributaries are on private land. The rest are on state land. The new DNR demands mean that an extra 22 miles of river frontage must be added to the current 64 miles of river frontage in the Jordan River system. The number of property owners in the system will be increased from 56 to 101, and 3000 acres of land must be added to the management program if the Jordan is to be designated a "Wild Scenic River."

In response to specific questions, DNR people said the watershed would not be closed to all vehicles. The 400 ft. strip of land was not being given to the state according to DNR officials. The land must merely be zoned and controlled at the local level.

There were no setbacks planned at present, but these plans are subject to change. Other DNR suggestions included a sanitary code for the area and possible restrictions on hours for fishing and canoeing.

DNR officials stated that at the present time there was no need to limit the number of camping permits.

'Bad Press' on Rowdiness Cuts State Park Usage

Michigan's state park system has been seriously hurt by "bad publicity" on people problems this season, and it shows in latest attendance and camping figures, reports an official of the Department of Natural Resources.

Through mid-July, day use at state parks was down 17 percent from a year ago, while camper turnouts were nearly five percent off the record pace of 1971. At that point, daily attendance for those areas stood at 9.3 million, representing a loss of 1.8 million visitors from last year's count through the middle of July.

Campground registrations at state parks have slipped by about 10,000 this season, totaling 184,225 through the first half of July.

DNR Parks Chief O.J. Scherschligt told the Natural Resources Commission recently that the drop in daily visits and camper use is partly due to periods of cold weather earlier this season and a resistance to this year's fee increases for state park vehicle entrance permits.

However, he said what bothers him most is the impression that many would-be park users are literally being "scared away" from these areas by reports of the mass media which play up park disturbances.

Scherchligt pointed out that his Lansing office has been receiving many telephone calls from people who ask if it is safe to come to state parks. Meanwhile, state parks have also been getting a large number of calls with the same question being posed at the other end of the line.

The DNR official explained that most reports of confrontations at state parks last spring were "greatly exaggerated." He also noted that since then the DNR has beefed up its crowd control program at state parks by placing 46 extra seasonal rangers on duty for the remainder of the peak summer period.

The extra manpower, payrollled from a special $150,000 appropriation of the State Legislature, is enabling state park crews to run these public recreation areas with a firmer hand and a maximum of smooth operations and services, reported Scherschligt.

Although parks problems haven't been as serious as they have been headlined, there have been some cases of youth groups and family groups not seeing "eye to eye," particularly on the point of their campground activities.

Scherchligt stressed that he and his staff recognize that there is a generation gap among some park users, just as there are differences in ideologies and life-styles between age groups in many other areas of today's society.

As a result, he said, the DNR is adjusting its design criteria for state parks as a future move to provide, among other things, more space and departmentalized areas so that campers in general and different age groups in particular do not tend to rub each other the wrong way.

Common Council

July 31, 1972
8:50 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding, Aldermen present: Timms, Gill, Sundberg, Supernaw. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

The minutes of the July 17, 1972 meeting were approved as presented to the Council in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mayor Hansen read a proposal asking for the Mayor's appointment of a committee to generally review the proposed new Zoning Ordinance under the Williams and Works master plan and to consider the question of future multiple unit development in the City. The Mayor appointed the following committee: Thomas Duke as Chairman and Donald J. Berlage, William Cockfield, George Richardson and Robert Winchester. They were directed to report to findings and recommendations to the Council, Mayor and Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission within 90 days.

Motion was made by Alderman Supernaw and supported by Alderman Timms that the Mayor's appointment of the Committee be approved as presented. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Gill, Sundberg, and Supernaw. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

Motion was made by Alderman Sundberg and supported by Alderman Supernaw that the Common Council amend the original Resolution dated June 5, 1972 regarding issuance of any multiple dwelling building permits for new construction, by extending the moratorium for another 90 days to give the newly appointed Committee time for their study and recommendations. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Gill, Sundberg, and Supernaw. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

Dave Fowler read a petition signed by 28 people of the Lakeview Subdivision and surrounding area requesting sewer extension to their area in Charlevoix Township. They were advised by Council to petition the Township since they are out of the City limits and see if something can be worked out between the two municipalities. The City's first step is to service the May Street area and to go further would be a responsibility of the Township.

A proposal by Scheid Realty that the City buy at a cost of $47,000 approximately 6.62 acres of Jess Penn's property at the corner of Carpenter and Norwood Roads for development as a recreation center was turned down.

The request of Charlevoix Chemical Company to purchase property in Industrial Park Site was discussed. Action was deferred until the City obtains clear title to the land in question.

Ron Steffes' request for a building permit for multiple dwelling at 303-305 Michigan Avenue was discussed. Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Timms that his permit be granted. The motion was tied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms and Gill. Nays: Aldermen Sundberg and Supernaw. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

The Mayor was instructed by the City Attorney, Hoffman that he must cast a deciding vote.

Mayor Hansen asked Mr. Steffes if he would be willing to revise his Building Permit No. 127 to erect 32 units with two parking spaces per dwelling unit. Mr. Steffes agreed to this.

Motion was made by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Timms that Building Permit No. 127 (revised) per Mr. Steffes' agreement be granted. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms and Gill. Nays: Aldermen Sundberg and Supernaw. Mayor Hansen cast the deciding yea vote. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

Motion was made by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Supernaw authorizing the payment of $50,000 loan to the Electric Fund by the Public Improvement Fund. The Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Gill, Sundberg, and Supernaw. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

Mayor Hansen appointed Gerald Selph of 105 Eaton Avenue to fill the unexpired term of Conrad Klooster. Motion was made by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Supernaw that the Mayor's appointment of Gerald Selph as Third Ward Alderman be accepted. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Gill, Sundberg, and Supernaw. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $106,830.61 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Timms, Gill, Sundberg, and Supernaw. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Westebroek.

On motion the Council adjourned.

SEASON-END RACES
IN ALL LEAGUES
With the summer softball league coming to a fast close, the final couple of weeks should prove to be exciting ones. There appears to be tight races in every league.

In the Fast Pitch league all four teams are still in the running with three teams, Novaks, First State Bank and County State Bank all having only one loss.

In the Men's slow pitch it appears that Medusa and the Woodshed will go at it in the playoffs.

The Peanut league title is hotly contested with the Cubs and Braves both in the running and the Cardinals with an outside chance. Even the Kivans Youth league has a race with the Gold, Black, and Green Sox still in contention.

SLOW PITCH
The Woodshed won their big showdown with tough Topside 12-9 behind five home runs, two by O.J. Faust one each by Joe Beaudine, Bernie DeVries and a grand slammer by Bill Jory. Tim and Ralph Dean and Jerry Blisset and Phil Skeel each homered for Topside.

The Airport Inn won a protest game from Howards when Howards used a player not on their roster.

The Inn also fell victim to a hot hitting American Mold team 12-3. Larry Bergmann had two homers and Roger Sharrow and Ed Holm one each for the winners.

BEER WINE AND PACKAGE LIQUOR TO TAKE OUT

THE HALT and the lame as well as the sure-footed and hearty are expected to turn out again this Labor Day to walk the Mackinac Bridge, linking Michigan's Upper and Lower peninsulas. The 15th annual walk is scheduled to start at 7:30 a.m. at the fair plaza on the St. Ignace side and end 4 1/2 miles across the Straits in Mackinaw City. Another feature of the Labor Day weekend at the Straits will be presentation of "The Black Gown Tree" pageant at St. Ignace the afternoon of Sept. 13 at St. Ignace. The musical presentation is based on the life and explorations of Fr. Marquette.

Stroke Victims, Addicts Share Same Symptoms

Dr. Leo J. Bingley, internist at Burns Clinic in Petoskey, will warn Michigan physicians attending a meeting of the Michigan Heart Association at Schuss Mountain Aug. 22-27, is to educate the young people about the dangers of speed and LSD. We must tell them that drugs are not a good health practice, and that if, for example, they cannot get a tablet into a complete solution, the solids could embolize, cause a stroke and damage his brain.

Dr. Bingley is on the program along with Dr. Louis E. Hertz, chairman of the Michigan Heart Association's Stroke Council, and five other physicians, who will discuss "New Stroke Perspectives for the Practicing Physician."

Prevention of stroke, as well as new techniques of treatment, will be discussed.

"Back here in the boon-docks, people just can't believe that there are drugs around and they might be used," says Dr. Bingley, who lives in Harbor Springs. "But we have our share of young patients up here who are involved in drugs, not heroin or hard drugs, but local stuff like speed or amphetamines or LSD or the usual uppers and downers."

"The drug culture is an elusive thing," he continues. "Your patients may be suffering the effects of misuse of such drugs but they won't admit taking drugs or mention it in their histories. They may not even know what drugs they are taking."

"Physicians simply must be more suspicious, especially of young people with any symptoms of stroke. Young people do get strokes—but very rarely—and it is a fact that the hallucinogens or uppers and downers can trigger a stroke or cardiovascular symptoms that mimic a stroke," he adds.

A DEALERSHIP OPPORTUNITY BIG AS ALL OUTDOORS

America is discovering that yard care can be fun again. A well-kept yard is a well-kept home. And Case lawn and garden tractors are the key to this new world of outdoor fun. As a Case compact tractor dealer, you sell and service a proven product with the same kind of precision engineering, performance, durability and service that mark the big Case farm and construction tractors. You sell with confidence backed by the $400,000,000-plus Case Company, a division of Tenneco. Power ranges from 7 to 14 hp to appeal to a wide range of prospects. Both home owners and commercial 4-season attachment mowers, snow blowers, give you year-round sales potential. What does it take to be a Case compact tractor dealer? A capital investment on your part is minimal. Case provides wholesale financing with floor plan privileges to make it possible for you to sell from a full shelf. You can finance retail sales through Case Credit Corporation. The most important qualification for you is YOU. If you enjoy meeting people, selling them the fun of home care with Case equipment and providing their relatively minor service needs, you have the makings of a profitable dealership. We'll supply the product and service know-how as well as management training. Interested? Now is the ideal season to investigate the Case franchise. Call or write Jack Ziegler, J. I. Case Company, Wisconsin, 54986. My toll-free phone number is 800-558-0270.

Douglas Lake Scientists Wary of Snowmobiles

The University of Michigan Biological Station—the world's largest inland field station for teaching and research in biological sciences—is initiating a research program to determine the environmental impact of people in northern Michigan. "We've been teaching and conducting research here every summer since 1909," notes Prof. David M. Gates, who recently assumed the directorship of the 9,000-acre Station situated between Burt and Douglas lakes near Pellston. "During this span, we have worked in an essentially undisturbed wilderness with little outside influence on natural phenomena and have increased man's knowledge of the north Temperate Zone many times over."

But times have changed and the crush of civilization has caught up to the station, Gates says.

FORCES UNLEASHED
"Everywhere are vacation homes, boats, campers, guns, snowmobiles, and all-terrain vehicles, and at times the forces unleashed upon the north country are enough to scare you," the U-M scientist declares, adding that with the exception of a 2,000-acre game sanctuary, all of the U-M land is open to the public.

"As a result," he says, "we will now emphasize projects clearly related to man's impact." Gates, a U-M trained physicist who founded the subdiscipline "biophysical ecology," says a recent $130,000 National Science Foundation (NSF) grant has been instrumental in allowing the station to zero in on people-related problems.

18-MONTH STUDY
"The grant is entitled 'Environmental Impact by Man on Non-Urban Regions' and is intended to support several research projects for 18 months," Gates explains. "Under the provisions of the grant," he continues, "we will bring our work to bear on regional environmental issues by furnishing legislators, law enforcement personnel, State Department of Natural Resources personnel, and others with the results of our research."

"We don't want to become involved in litigation," Gates stresses, "but we do want to have objective input into the decision making processes, especially in regard to land use projects which might abuse the environment."

Specifically, the NSF grant will enable comparative studies of lake quality; an investigation into the effects of sewage effluent on a bog ecosystem; a comprehensive examination of the environmental impact of snowmobiles; a socio-psychological analysis of how human outdoor recreation needs, motivation, and behavior effect the environment; an exploration into the possibility that animals may serve as indicators of environmental quality; an evaluation of clear cutting as a technique for harvesting timber; and a study of the impact of off-road vehicles of all kinds.

SUMMER RESIDENT
No stranger to Michigan's north country, Gates spent 18 youthful summers at the station. His father, Frank C. Gates, taught plant ecology here from 1915 to 1954. Gates says one of the most "incredible and disruptive" changes to hit the area is the snowmobile. Nothing that most of the arguments both for and against the snowmobile have been largely speculative, the U-M professor says the station's study should discover how the device affects vegetation, soil and wildlife.

The comparative studies of lake quality represent a milestone for the Station in that the principal investigator, aquatic ecologist John E. Gannon, will conduct his research year-round. "With the help of a $36,000 NSF grant in recognition of the Station as a national research facility, we've finally been able to winterize our structures to the point that some students and researchers can work through the winter," Gates says. "Prof. Gannon will spend the winter here taking water samples periodically from Douglas Lake in an effort to establish a base line with which we can evaluate the quality of other lakes in the northern tip of the Lower Peninsula."

LOOK TO FUTURE
By knowing the exact level of eutrophication, or premature enrichment of a lake, the researchers can accurately predict the consequences of further lakeside development, Gates notes.

Hoods Still At Work

Burglars and thieves were at work in Charlevoix again Friday night.

Frank Rothschild of Michigan-ave. reported to police that a portable battery charger used to recharge his electric car was taken sometime during the night from in front of his home.

Also on Friday night Robert Schlemmer's warehouse on Cherry-st. was broken into.

"OH, MY achin' shell!" So goes the lament at the Reptile Gardens near Rapid City, S. D., where rides on the Galapagos Tortoise attract the younger set. The Edwin Drenth family, 606 5th St., East Jordan, toured the Reptile Gardens during their July vacation in the Black Hills. Brenda, Margie, Edwin, Steve and Tim viewed the Garden's herpetary wonders, including crocodiles, anacondas, numerous rattlesnakes, and the famous tortoises. (South Dakota Travel Section Photo)

Meeting on Roads Slated in Petoskey

Petoskey is one of four sites selected by the Department of State Highways for meetings where all interested citizens may voice their opinions on transportation plans and proposals for the northwestern Lower Peninsula.

The workshop meetings will be held in Manistee Aug. 21, in Cadillac Aug. 22, in Petoskey Aug. 23 and in Traverse City Aug. 30. They are a follow-up to public information meetings conducted by the Department in May in the same four cities.

State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafesh said the meetings are designed to foster a partnership between the Department and "concerned citizens" as the state develops a transportation plan for the area.

The Highway Department recognizes that changes in transportation facilities may have significant social, economic and environmental consequences," he said. "We want to involve the public in the planning process to insure that all their concerns are taken into account."

Department representatives will be on hand in each city to explain types of data used in transportation planning, time constraints, federal guidelines, environmental considerations, traffic projections for the area and other aspects of the planning process. Equally important will be views offered by citizens, either as individuals or as representatives of organizations or agencies.

The meetings will open at 1 p.m. and continue to 4 p.m., then resume at 7 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. They are being conducted in cooperation with the Northwest Michigan Economic Development District and Regional Planning Commission and other state agencies.

Date and place of each meeting is as follows: Manistee, Aug. 21 in City Hall council chambers, 70 Maple Street. Cadillac, Aug. 22 in Cadillac Junior High School library, 500 Lake Shore Dr. Petoskey, Aug. 23, in Petoskey Junior High School cafeteria, Howard Street. Traverse City, Aug. 30, in Northwestern Michigan College Administration Building, Room 131, 1701 E. Front St.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge W. Richard Smith:

Richard D. Beemon, 19, Flint, demanded examination on a charge of breaking and entering at the Little Shop Around the Corner. Bond in the amount of $500 was posted and the case continued.

David Mieras, 20, Charlevoix, demanded examination on a charge of breaking and entering at the Oleson Food Store and was bound over to the August term of Circuit Court. Bond of $500 was furnished.

Scott Cooper, 17, Charlevoix, waived examination on a charge of breaking and entering at the Oleson Food Store and was bound over to the August term of Circuit Court.

Thomas M. Bennett, 27, Manistee, demanded examination on a charge of burglary. Bond of $1,000 was furnished. Bennett is charged with cashing a forged check at the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Andrew Miller, 17, Chevy Chase, Md.; Catherine DeVuono, 17, Wilmette, Ill.; and James Douglas Stearns, 17, Winnetka, Ill., pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana. Trial will be held later. Bond of $150 each was posted.

Glenn L. McSwamy, 19, Traverse City, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of impaired driving and to a charge of fleeing a uniformed police officer. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, placed on one year's probation and surrendered his driver's license for 60 days. The driving charge was reduced by the prosecutor.

Robert D. Jones, 45, Charlevoix, was assessed $125 and surrendered his driver's license for 90 days on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Mark Passman, 17, Birmingham, pleaded innocent to a charge of possession of marijuana. Bond of $250 was furnished and trial will be held later.

Payrolls Higher, But Jobs Fewer

Employment in the private sector of the Michigan economy totaled 2,440,826 in March 1971, a decrease of $5,777 from March 1970, but payrolls amounted to nearly $3 billion, up $164 million, according to a report issued today by the Bureau of the Census, Social and Economic Statistics Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Wayne County had the largest employment, 902,430, a decrease of 20,275, and payroll, $1,962,568,000, up $42.6 million from a year earlier. The report, "County Business Patterns, 1971, Michigan," is the latest in a series of annual reports providing first quarter economic statistics for States and counties. It presents data by detailed industry classification on mid-March employment, first quarter taxable payroll, and the number and employment size of reporting units for those private, non-farm business firms reporting to the Social Security Administration under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (F.I.C.A.).

A special mail survey is conducted to obtain industry and county detail not reported to the Social Security Administration. About three-fourths of all employees in the United States are covered in the reports for the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Guam, and the U.S. Summary.

Not included are employees of Federal, State, and local governments, self-employed persons, farm workers and those employed in domestic and certain transportation services. The detailed reports are useful to business and governments in administration and planning, analyzing market potential, setting sales quotas and budgets, and measuring the effectiveness of sales and advertising programs.

Copies of the Michigan report are available at $1.25 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

EAST JORDAN attorney Madeline Dinu receives production model of "Kord Kaddy" she invented from Chuck Beaver, president of the Big Beaver Specialty Co. of Troy. The Kord Kaddy is a device for storing electric appliance cords in an orderly manner.

E. J.'s Distaff Attorney Patents 'Kord Kaddy'

What do you do with your electric appliance cords when they're not in use? Wrap them around the appliance, resulting in a bulky, unhandy storage? Throw them into a drawer where they become snarled and damaged?

Hang them on hooks in the pantry and hope that you get the right cord each time you use an appliance?

Mrs. Madeline Dinu of East Jordan, an attorney by trade, likes things orderly. She decided in 1959 that she had had up with a jungle of electric appliance cords long enough. So she sat down and invented a device to store appliance cords in an orderly manner.

The spool-type fixture, which she called a Kord Kaddy, was patented Nov. 12, 1963.

And last week Chuck Beaver, owner of Big Beaver Specialty Co. of Troy, delivered the first production models of the Kord Kaddy to Mrs. Dinu's office in East Jordan.

The device is made of strong styrene plastic and is deceptively simple. It consists of a wall mounting on which four plastic reels for appliance cords are attached.

When the appliance is in use, the cord -- reel and all -- is removed from the bracket. One end is plugged into the appliance and the other into an electrical outlet. The cord remains wrapped on the reel.

Beaver, who has set up a nationwide distribution system for the Kord Kaddy, says he already has produced 25,000 of them and his plant is equipped to turn out 3,000 a day to meet the expected demand. Mrs. Dinu will receive a royalty for each one sold.

The Kord Kaddy comes in five colors, poppy red, white, avocado, gold and copper.

Now that the Kord Kaddy is in production, Mrs. Dinu plans to start work on other inventions to make life more pleasant for the harried housewife.

School Board Approves Borrowing on Taxes

Among the host of issues that came before the Charlevoix Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night, was a decision to borrow up to $200,000 against anticipated taxes, the establishment of the operational and debt retirement millage for the coming school year, the approval of fall coaching assignments, the setting of a new minimum on the Building Trades house, hiring of a school nurse, the acceptance of bids for materials needed during the school year and a decision to have a walk-through in the Middle and High Schools before school opens.

The board also heard the goals set by Richard Donaldson, president of the board, for the coming school year and the future.

In preparation for the opening of the 1972-73 school year, the board voted to borrow $200,000 against anticipated income from tax sources. The money will be borrowed Sept. 1, 1972, and the notes retired March 1, 1973, when tax monies become available.

At the same time, the board voted to set the school millage as follows for the 1972-73 school year: 20 mills for general operation, 40 mills for the public library and 1.85 mills for debt retirement or a total of 22.85 mills as compared to 25.64 last year and 26.68 the year before.

The operational millage will include 9.5 mills allocated and 10.5 mills voted, the latter a decrease from the 13.19 mills approved by the voters. This is .99 less than last year and 1.29 mills less than in 1971.

There will be no millage levied this year for the Materials Center since this was turned down by the voters.

Charlevoix County officials are still pondering what they call a "Democratic crossover" in the 103rd District balloting.

Charles A. "Tony" Duerr, who was running unopposed on the Democratic ticket for a seat in the house, collected only 286 votes in Charlevoix County. In fact, the Democratic vote, failed to materialize in many townships which are normally heavily Democratic.

Friskie, a member of the staunchly conservative John Birch Society, thanked the Courier for all of the editorial support it gave him before the election.

Every time you wrote something against me, I picked up more votes," he laughed.

Don Carey was named head teacher for the coming school year. Her hours will be increased from 13 per week last year to 20 this year.

The Board voted to host a luncheon for non-certified employees, administration and board members at noon on Wednesday, Aug. 30. The site of the event will be announced later.

Friske Bolts GOP, Embraces AIP

Plans to Seek Undisclosed Post

State Rep. Richard Friske has bolted the Republican Party and has joined forces with the American Independent Party (AIP) to run as a candidate for some elective office in the November general election.

Friske was out-of-town Monday morning and was unavailable for comment. But a family spokesman said he would be an AIP candidate in some capacity.

Early reports had it that Friske was taking on the Republican Ralph Ostling, who won the GOP nod as state representative from the 103rd District in the Aug. 8 primary, and Democrat C.A. "Tony" Duerr.

However it is doubtful that the Antrim County orchardist and member of the John Birch Society will be able to get his name on the ballot under Michigan's election laws.

In the primary, Friske lost to Ostling, of Roscommon County, 7,957 to 6,776, with Richard Parker of Lake City picking up 2,372 votes. Democrat Duerr was unopposed.

A press release announcing his resignation from the Republican Party did not spell out how Friske plans to get his name on the ballot if he intends to take on Ostling and Duerr. Section 695 of the Compiled Election Laws of the State of Michigan reads:

"No person whose name was printed or placed on the primary ballots or voting machines as a candidate for nomination on the primary ballots of one political party shall be eligible as a candidate of any other political party at the election following that primary."

This would mean that Friske, who ran as a Republican Aug. 8, could not have his name printed on the ballots in the November election as an AIP candidate, although he presumably could still run as a write-in.

Democrat Duerr expressed disappointment at Friske's latest move. He said in a statement to the press Monday morning:

"It is regrettable that Rep. Friske has refused to accept the decision of the voters of the 103rd District and has chosen instead to continue his candidacy under the AIP banner. This will serve only to renew old controversies. It will make more difficult my effort to direct attention to the issues and force my Republican opponent to do likewise. I hope voters will realize my candidacy offers them a positive platform rather than a negative one of mere opposition to an extremist philosophy."

In July, the Charlevoix County Republican Executive Committee formally disassociated itself from Friske's campaign, largely because of Friske's failure to support Gov. William Milliken and President Richard Nixon for re-election. Antrim County Republicans also censured Friske on the same grounds.

Just before the election, Ostling was formally endorsed by Cong. Philip Ruppe. The governor withheld a formal endorsement, but said unofficially that he too favored Ostling.

In announcing his resignation from the Republican Party, Friske charged that "nearly $400,000 (had been) spent through the Michigan Education Association (MEA), labor unions and in outright tax dollars to defeat a handful of legislators whose only crime was that they refused to knuckle under to the special interest groups of the conspiracy in Lansing."

He claimed it was "unethical, immoral and against party principle" for Gov. Milliken as well as Cong. Ruppe and Cong. Cederberg to have come out openly against Republican incumbents in the primary.

Because of the response he has had since the primary from people across the nation as well as in Michigan, Friske said he felt "obligated" to speak out against the "conspiratorial forces" and the "lack of moral fiber" in Lansing and Washington administrations.

He said he plans to participate in the AIP campaign in Michigan and endorses the ticket and platform "100 percent."

Following is the complete text of his statement:

Ever since the political conspirators within the Republican Party, working in cooperation with the Michigan Education Association, were successful in engineering my defeat on August 8, literally hundreds of citizens have contacted me urging me to carry on the fight. You might be interested to know that this has included people from as far away as California and Texas.

"I must admit that my first inclination has been to return to my orchards and give up the battle. Those of you that came up to the Friske Orchards to pick free cherries a few weeks ago, can better appreciate what a terrific blessing I have both in my family and my agricultural interests. It's a terrific temptation to go back to them and forget the headache and abuse."

"But how can any man do that when he is fully aware of the fate that the international Santanic Conspiracy has planned for this nation and the entire world? When you consider the nearly $400,000 that was spent through the MEA, the labor unions and tax dollars to defeat just a handful of our state legislators in this election...legislators whose only crime was that they refused to knuckle under to the special interest groups of the conspiracy in Lansing...it becomes obvious that these men in high places are worried."

"They must be worried when they order men like Gov. Milliken and congressmen Ruppe and Cederberg as well as others, to come out openly against fellow Republicans in a Primary election. Beside being unethical, immoral and against Party principle, it will probe to be politically suicidal. It will polarize both major parties on the far left by excluding political conservatives. And yet it was done, and citizens of this state should ask themselves why."

"Perhaps the most prophetic thing I have heard recently came out of a newspaper totally unfriendly to me. This editor, wrote, and I quote, 'Michigan's 103rd legislative district has become something of a pivotal point in state and national politics.' He might have said that Richard Friske, or to be more exact, the philosophy which Richard Friske expresses, had become that pivotal point. I agree with this analysis, and some very powerful people, obviously, must also share this belief."

"For example, only a few weeks ago John Connally and

Cooper Resigns GOP Post

Charlevoix County Republicans elected delegates to the state convention in Detroit Sept. 2 and learned that William Cooper had resigned as co-chairman of Lower 11th at their fall convention Aug. 16.

Elected delegates were Ed Hansen, Ken Wojan and Robert Wise of Charlevoix and Art Rouse and George Wuerth of Boyne City.

Alternates are Oscar Stroud, Ron Geer, Mrs. Robert Wise and Mr. Edward Hansen of Charlevoix and Mrs. Art Rouse of Boyne City.

Cooper told the county delegates that he had resigned as co-chairman of the Lower 11th because he has been unable to secure the cooperation of county chairman, including Charlevoix County Chairman Robert Wise. He added that he was being denied information to do the job properly.

Cooper also was critical of the role Cong. Philip Ruppe and Gov. William Milliken played in the August primary. Both Ruppe and the governor broke precedent by endorsing Ralph Ostling for the 103rd district house seat over Rep. Richard Friske and Rodney Parker.

He said he feels the district could have defeated Friske without outside intervention. Wise said he sought endorsements for Ostling from both men.

Hospital Campaign Extended

Fund Raiser Floyd McCarthy has announced that the drive to raise $175,000 for coronary and intensive care units at Charlevoix Hospital has been extended until Oct. 1.

"We are officially closing our campaign Oct. 1, and feel that those who have not responded yet are in great enough number to guarantee a successful fund of $175,000 by that time," McCarthy said.

"Anyone still wishing to give may send their gift directly to the Charlevoix 'Area Hospital.'"

He said the drive presently is about $25,000 short of the goal.

McCarthy's role in the drive is now over, but he will return to Charlevoix in September to pick up the loose ends.

CHS Gets Lab Gear From Consumers Power

THE 750,000th person to visit Consumers Power Co.'s Environmental Center at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant checked in last week. In celebration, the company made a gift of new biophysics equipment to Charlevoix High School. Presentation was made by Bob D. Hilly, (second from right) manager of Consumer's Northwest Division, and William F. Wilson (left) field information specialist for the company. Accepting the gift were Bruce Morgan (right) CHS science teacher and students Ted Schantz and Carole Eizinga. The plant opened in 1961.

In ceremonies marking the 750,000th visitor to the Big Rock Point nuclear plant environmental center, Consumers Power Company today presented new biophysics equipment to the science department of Charlevoix High School.

Awarding the instruments, which will be used for classroom instruction and laboratory work, were company officials stationed in northwest Michigan.

Representing the school biology and earth sciences teacher Bruce Morgan and two Charlevoix High students, Ted Schantz and Carole Eizinga.

Attending the presentation were Bob D. Hilly, manager of Consumers' Power's Northwest Division, headquartered in Traverse City, and William F. Wilson, field information specialist in charge of the environmental center.

The spokesman, said the company is proud of its involvement in the Charlevoix community. Many local residents have maintained a deep interest in the nuclear plant, having visited the environmental center a number of times, he noted, and school science classes have regularly toured the site as part of their courses.

The biophysics equipment, the company said, is a token of the company's appreciation for the excellent relationship it has enjoyed with the community.

The Big Rock Point plant began producing electricity in 1962, and the environmental center opened in 1961. Among the attractions at the center is a unique multimedia, multiscreen presentation, "The Second Genesis," which explores the roles energy and technology will play in helping solve the problems of pollution. There are also films, exhibits, and literature describing environmental problems and their solutions, as well as nuclear generation of electricity.

Donaldson Tells It Like It Is

Richard Donaldson, newly elected president of the Charlevoix Board of Education, has some pretty firm ideas on how schools should be run. Here are some of the things he recommended to the Board of Education Monday night:

- Elimination of study halls.
- Have Food Service students serve Continental breakfast to students and faculty every morning.
- Creation of a broader sex education program.
- More extra-curricular activities for girls, such as a marching team or a drill team.
- Establishment of a "commons area" in the High School, equipped with pool and pingpong tables and pop machines.
- Creation of a smoking area in the high school to get the students out of the junks.
- The use of classroom teachers as guidance counselors.
- Construction of a new Middle School within five to eight years.
- The use of students in making signs and landscaping.

He also suggested that the board work for repeal of the tentative law and recommended a stronger management role for principals. He urged his colleagues to read a Michigan Chamber of Commerce report on education which appears on Page 15 of this week's Courier.

Drug Court Date Set

City police aided by sheriff's deputies, State Police and narcotics agents pulled off Charlevoix's biggest drug raid in two years last Tuesday in the building which houses Gov. William Cigar Store on Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

Quantities of LSD and marijuana were seized and nine persons were arrested on drug charges.

Scheduled to appear for arraignment before District Court Judge W. Richard Smith Aug. 31 are:

- Lee Simpson, 18, Charlevoix, charged with possession of LSD and intent to deliver LSD.
- Gregory Sikorski, 27, Charlevoix, charged with possession of marijuana and intent to deliver LSD.
- Robert Victor Etienne, 20, Charlevoix, charged with possession of LSD and possession of marijuana.
- Thomas Collins, 28, Charlevoix, charged with possession of marijuana.

All of the defendants except Mack have been released on bonds ranging from $500 for Collins to $4,000 for Simpson. Mack's bond is $3,000.

The Castro brothers have requested the services of a court-appointed attorney.

In addition to the Cigar Store, the building has an apartment upstairs and a pool hall in the basement.

Brown Weighs Zoning Case

Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown has promised a decision sometime this week on the merits of a lawsuit brought by the Citizens Information Service against the County Board of Commissioners seeking to stop the commission from taking further action on county-wide zoning.

Mrs. Rosalee Ottinger, who handles publicity for the anti-zoning group, charged that, in addition to the original complaint, members of the Planning Commission are serving in dual capacities and that Planning Commission officers have not been rotated. She asked that the new charges be added to the original complaint.

After the hearing, Willis Peters, vice president of the group, said that if the case is dismissed, Citizens Information Service will attempt to put county-wide zoning on a referendum ballot. Officers of the group in original complaint.

However, Langlois appeared briefly to say that he feels Citizens Information Service has been deprived an opportunity to express itself on the ordinance.

Representing the board at the hearing was attorney Donald Berlage, assistant county prosecutor.

The board was to have received the proposed county-wide zoning plan at its meeting last week, but the Citizens Information Service secured a temporary injunction halting deliberation on the proposal.

It was learned at the hearing that Citizens Information Service has fired its attorney, Earl Langlois of Mancelona, because he had failed to include all of the group's charges against county-wide zoning in his

Area Circuit Court Busiest in North

More cases were initiated in the 13th District Circuit Court (Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau) than in any other Circuit Court District in northern Michigan last year, according to the 1971 annual report of the Supreme Court Administrator.

The report shows that 1,009 cases were started in the 13th District in 1971, compared to 513 cases in the 33rd District (Potoskey area); 438 in the 26th District (Alpena area); 686 in the 34th District (Gaylord area); 401 in the 11th District (Soo area); 377 in the 22nd District (Tawas City area); 437 in the 28th District (Cadillac); and 695 in the 19th District (Manistee area).

Come Jan. 1, the 13th District will become part of a new district comprising Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The district presently served by Circuit Judges Charles L. Brown and James M. Fitzpatrick, both of Traverse City.

Candidates for the judgeship in the new Charlevoix-Emmet District will be W. Richard Smith, present District Judge, and Edward H. Fendler, judge of the present 33rd District, which includes Emmet, Mackinac and Cheboygan counties.

The 13th also led northern Michigan in the number of cases pending on Jan. 1, 1972, with 634; the number of cases disposed of in 1971 (952); cases pending on Jan. 1, 1972, 891; the number of cases pending more than two years (80); and the actual number of days court was held, 280.

However, the 13th District is the only district in northern Michigan served by two Circuit Judges; the rest only have one, as will the Charlevoix-Emmet court after the merger.

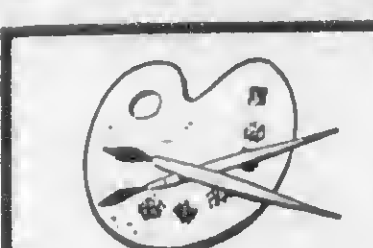

Court was held in the 33rd District (Potoskey area) only 50 days in 1971, the fewest days of any of the circuit courts in the northern Lower Peninsula. The 33rd District also had the greatest increase in the backlog of cases, 150. The increase in the 13th District was 57 cases.

Land Reform Bill Hearings Slated

Public subcommittee hearings of the State House Taxation Subcommittee on Assessment Practices will be held to discuss a land reform bill before the legislature.

The bill would create a state land use or development commission. It would establish a tax structure that would make possible the preservation of open space and farmland.

Introduced by State Representative Philip Mastin (D-Hazel Park), the bill would allow the created commission to inventory and designate areas of the state of critical environmental concern.

The committee would also survey areas impacted by key facilities, such as power plants and highways, and areas of development and land use of regional benefit.

The Mastin bill would seek to preserve and protect land which conserves or enhances natural or scenic resources; protects streams or water supplies; promotes the conservation of soils, wetlands, beaches or tidal marshes; enhances the value to the public of adjoining or abutting lands, forests, wildlife preserves, nature reservations or sanctuaries, or other open space.

The bill would enhance recreational opportunities; preserve historic sites, and retain in its natural state a tract of land of not less than five acres located in an urban area and open to public use.

"The proposal would develop a type of tax structure that would allow and encourage the preservation of open land and farmland," Mastin said.

A landowner could apply for a special "use value" assessment on his property.

The hearings on the bill will be held at the following times:

Aug. 23, 2 p.m., Middle School, 1441 Platt Rd., Milan;
Aug. 24, 2 p.m., Lecture Theater, Delta College, in University Center near Saginaw;
Aug. 25, 2 p.m., Leroy Township Community Building, Joppa near Battle Creek;

Aug. 30, 2:30 p.m., Commissioners' Auditorium, Oakland County Service Center in Pontiac.

Boyle-McDonough Rites Bring Throng to Island

St. James on Beaver Island, one of Michigan's smallest communities with an estimated population of 275, played host to one of the state's largest 1972 weddings Saturday when Jean Boyle of Kalamazoo became the bride of Gary McDonough of San Francisco.

More than 300 persons, mostly the couple's Irish kith and kin from across the country, jammed tiny Holy Cross Church chapel for the 2 p.m. ceremony, with dozens of others waiting outside on the lawn.

In the evening, between 500 and 600 persons attended a sit-down buffet supper in Holy Cross Hall across the street from the church.

"We have no way of knowing how many we served," commented Mrs. Joy Green, who was in charge of arrangements. "We should have counted the plates, but we didn't."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Boyle of Chicago, former residents of Beaver Island.

The bridegroom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Lawrence McDonough of St. James. Capt. McDonough is skipper of the Beaver Islander.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Fr. Herbert Graf of Holy Cross Church, assisted by Msgr. Victor Gallagher and Fr. Edward Donahue.

Mrs. Walter Wojan was organist and Barry Fischner was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Victorian-styled gown of flocked white tulle and carried a bouquet of red and white carnations.

The bride's sisters served as her attendants. Mrs. Sharon Campbell of Kalamazoo was maid of honor, with Mrs. Ray (Grace) Matela, Mrs. James (Theresa) Gasek, and Miss Sue Boyle, all of Chicago, serving as bridesmaids. They wore floor-length white gowns flocked with red and carried bouquets of white carnations. Flower girl was Lori Mc-

Donough of Grand Rapids, a niece of the bridegroom and ring bearer was John Matela of Chicago.

The bridegroom's brothers served as his attendants. Larry McDonough of Grand Rapids was best man and Groomsman were Kevin, Joe and Bud McDonough.

The bride is a graduate of Jean Bremer High School in Midlothian, Ill., and worked as a bookkeeper for the Upjohn Co. in Kalamazoo.

The bridegroom is a 1969 graduate of the Beaver Island School. After serving in the Air Force he attended the Northrop Institute of Technology in Los Angeles for two years. He presently is employed by the Buzzell Electric Co. in San Francisco as an electrician.

The couple will remain on the island for several days before returning to the West Coast via Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Out-of-town guests attended the wedding from California, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Charlevoix and Montague.

A post-wedding luncheon was held at the McDonough home on the island Sunday afternoon.

Although the Boyles left Beaver Island before Jean was born, she has been a frequent visitor on the island over the years.

REA Opens Watts Line

Beginning Aug. 15, 1972 Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company will utilize a "no charge" Watts telephone line during business hours. From 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday, customers in Michigan may call the company without charge.

Customers with Area Code 616 may dial 1-800-442-7141. When calling from Area Codes 313, 517 or 906, dial 1-800-632-7332.

The Watts line was established for the convenience of Northern Michigan customers. Customers are urged to use these numbers when attempting to reach the business offices in Boyne City. After Aug. 15 the business offices will no longer accept collect calls from customers, as the Watts line will become operative at that time.

A rehearsal dinner at the Weatherlane Inn Friday evening was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Albert Manson officiated at the double ring service. Baskets of snapdragons and candelabra formed a setting for the ceremony. Mrs. John L. Boss played a program of traditional music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Klooster, aunt of the bride, who sang the hymn from "Love Story," the "Lord's Prayer" and "So Love I Thee".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a floor-length gown of sheer tulle with a lace bodice and short sleeves. The long mantilla edged in lace was held with a crown cap. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Kris Brady served as maid of honor and Dextra Klooster, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of polyester green and white skirts and white bodices made by the bride and picture hats. They carried buckets of daisies.

Edwin Hyatt of Bay City served as his brother-in-law's best man. Larry Calay of Bay City was groomsman. Paul and Carl Klooster, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

A reception followed in the church parlors. Mrs. Conrad Klooster and Judy Potter served the cake and Paula Garner the punch. Also assisting were Candy Klooster, Marlene Cunningham and Sandra Way.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Maine. They will be at home in Bay City after Sept. 1.

The bridegroom will complete his Master's degree at Central Michigan University this fall and work at General Motors. The bride plans to attend Saginaw Valley College in the spring.

Library notes

For the past few weeks we have been concentrating new fiction and bringing special titles on the best-seller lists to the attention of our patrons. This week we would like to mention special and important non-fiction titles—all of them topical, entertaining and informative.

The first three books were contributed to the Library by the Woman's Auxiliary of the VFW.

"History of the Second World War" by B. H. Liddell Hart, was donated in memory of Mr. Lewis Brant. Written by the foremost military analyst of our time, it is an inclusive account of the great war. It is a magnificent work, based largely on a priceless personal collection of private documents.

"Songs of Man" is one of the most unusual books on the Library shelves. Donated by the Woman's Auxiliary in memory of Mr. Dale Stevens, it is a treasure-house of songs which reflect the spirit of man through the ages and from many lands.

The charmingly-illustrated pages contain not only the original piano sheet music but all the known, available verse to accompany each song. There is "Barbary Ellen," for example with 14 verses; "Lift a Glass," a Polish folk with three lengthy verses, and "The Trees They Do Grow High," an English modal tune, with six verses.

In addition to this extraordinary collection of folk tunes and spirituals, there are guitar notes and a wealth of original full-page illustrations in color by Paul Freeman. We predict that this marvelous volume will never remain in the Library for any length of time. Perhaps our favorite in the entire collection is the wonderful old Confederate Army song "The Goober Peas." What better way to get rid of complaints than to sing about them!

Card Tourney Seeks Players

The 1972-73 Round Robin Bridge Tournament, the annual Pinocchio Parley will begin early in September. Contract bridge players or pinocchio players may contact Mrs. William Wilson, 547-4351; or Mrs. Max Hosmer, 547-9358; who will sign up new members; and give details regarding play.

display shelf for everyone to see.

"The Wind Call" was written by Carleton Mitchell who has been described as the writer-philosopher of the best-to-windward generation. He is one of the world's few small boat voyagers to be awarded the Blue Water Medal of the Cruising Club of America. There are no accounts of storm and other perils of the deep and no technical, knowhow instructions. It is just a wonderful account of moments aloft in a few of the favored cruising areas of the world.

Card Tourney Seeks Players

This is an easy way to become acquainted if you are new in the community, and a cordial welcome is extended to everyone; according to Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Hosmer.

Swimming Roundup

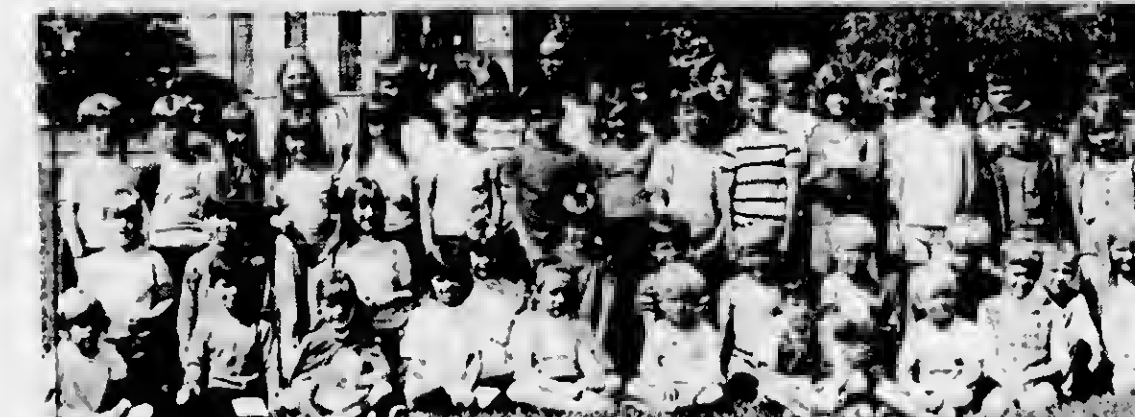

CHUCK NOVAK, Erwin Arvilla, Deano Davenport and Carl Novak presented awards to area youngsters who participated in the City Recreation Department's Summer Swimming Program. Approximately 80 of the 300 participants received certificates, which ranged from beginning to senior life saving certificates.

THE INTERMEDIATES, just one notch below being classified as swimmers, worked hard to improve their swimming techniques. Each step up the latter in swimming expertise becomes more difficult for the youngsters.

ANOTHER large group of youngsters were enrolled in the Advanced Beginner's class. These kids have passed the basics and are working on more difficult strokes.

THIS GROUP of kids spent the summer working on the beginning strokes in swimming. The counselors spent many hours trying to get them "wet behind the ears."

CHUCK NOVAK (left) presents David Hunter with the Senior Life Saving Certificate he earned this summer. David was the only participant in the program to earn that award this year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hunter, who are spending the summer resorting in Charlevoix.

TIGHT RACES STILL ON With the season down to one week very little has been really decided. About the only sure thing is that Superior and they responded with a 13-9 win.

Topside scored 12 times to beat Medusa 12-3.

Portside ranked out a 13-0 win over Freedman's and Medusa was a forfeit victory over Jim's to round out the week's play.

At this writing the race had boiled down to the final game of the season. A Novak win would give the defending champs both rounds and the title. A County State Bank win would give them the second round and then the two would play off for the championship.

Young First State played three fine games during the week to prove they will be a threat in years to come. County State Bank edged them 4-2, scoring three times in the fourth. Joe Bale sparked the winners with three hits. Dean Davenport, Nate Boss, and Denny Crain had two hits each. They upended league leading Novaks 5-2 behind the six-hit pitching of Nate Boss.

Novak's two hits led the Bank while Ralph Doan had two for the losers.

Potters fell to First State by a 7-0 score as Gary Stutzman and Denny Crain paced Bank hitting with two each. Ned Henley and Bill Carey had two in a losing cause.

In the "biggie" of the week Novaks scored in the eighth to edge County State Bank 2-1. A walk to Ralph Doan, Terry Blissett's surprise bunt and another squeeze bunt by Bob Drenth got in the winning marker.

MEN'S SLOW PITCH

Both divisional leaders, Woodshed and Portside Sports, needed only a win in their final game to clinch their second round title. If Portside wins then they must play Medusa off for the divisional title before the winner would play Woodshed off in a two out of three set for the championship.

Let Local Businessmen Counsel Students?

Michigan schools are not adequately preparing their students for the world of work, according to a report issued by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce.

With a little reorganization in personnel and curriculum, schools could cut the number of drop-outs and increase the number of jobs their graduates find right out of high school, the report says.

Today's schools are not making adequate provisions for the 60 to 70 percent of their graduates who do not go on to college or the 28 percent that eventually drop out.

For the past decade, the State Chamber has been urging that vocational-technical education in Michigan be restructured, reappraised and redefined to meet the educational needs of 70 percent of the pupils in primary-secondary schools who do not enter institutions of higher learning," says Harry R. Hall, president of the State Chamber.

"It is nothing short of economic cannibalism to have a large percentage of the school product cast on the labor market with not marketable skill," he continues.

"Occupational education has been shunted to the slag heap, the educational hierarchy, for much too long. We feel the intellectual and economic climate is not favorable to greater emphasis on education geared to a productive and satisfying career. The program can be financed with savings in other areas of education."

The proposal recommends school counselors be trained as liaison officers between the high school graduate and a job instead of remaining guidance officers.

In Michigan, present educational requirements for a counselor include 18 semester hours of counseling, teaching experience and either a Master's degree in guidance or 12 hours of graduate study in the field.

But in these requirements, no one has made a provision for counselors to have actual work experience in fields outside education.

"Counselors should be in a position to give proper guidance to the 70 percent of students who will not continue formal institutional education after high school," the report states. "This requires a thorough knowledge of the job market, of various job classifications and specific skills required, alternatives, opportunities and limits of advancement on jobs, local and regional job demands and thorough knowledge of conditions of work in the respective careers."

Most counselors don't have this experience, the Chamber notes.

Therefore, the report recommends a placement service be set up in the schools to help the vocational and academically trained student find a job after high school.

Although the service would require an increase in the number of guidance counselors, the monies needed could come from savings to school districts suggested in nine other Chamber-sponsored money-making proposals.

Hand in hand with the proposal to increase the relevancy of counselors should go a plan for career education that gives the student a practical look at the world of work, the Chamber suggests in another report on education.

That means shifting the emphasis in curriculum of career-oriented courses to stress successful working careers.

The proposed career education program will provide for on-the-job experience allowing the student to work awhile and return to school for additional classroom experience; widen learning to the home, community and employing establishments; and emphasize that career education does not interfere with other education, but complements it.

The cost of implementing such a program would actually be an investment with top returns on each dollar. The report notes that every potential worker educated in such a program will pay back his initial investment within 60 days after beginning

Council in each school district seems to be the best answer, the Chamber notes, and it should comprise high-level representatives of business and education.

Basically these experts would provide advice and practical assistance in determining vocational needs in the community, exploring just what the school has to offer in the way of vocational education, and counseling employers and schools about just what careers are available and how students can best get into them.

Local businessmen are perfect helpmates in this program, the report says, since who better knows about the world of work than those who participate in it each day.

Their part in the program would consist of providing speakers for business symposiums, helping with job counseling and placement, and providing tools and other implements for vocational education programs.

The preceding proposals have been researched by the State Chamber's education specialists and a volunteer task force of businessmen and approved by its board of directors.

DAR Group Meets At Bay View Inn

Twenty-five members of the Daughters of the American Revolution converged on the Terrace Inn in Bay View from chapters in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania to join Petoskey Chapter for an annual August conclave honoring Mrs. Margo (Mrs. Leslie O.) Carlin, Michigan State Regent of the National organization.

Katherine (Mrs. Marion) Slaughter of Mt. Pleasant, who accompanied Mrs. Carlin to Bay View, came to meet her sister, Irene (Mrs. Carl) Young. Their mother, Mrs. Horace Harsha, had been a member of Petoskey Chapter in the early days and they were pleased when copies of old programs listing Mrs. Harsha's activities were passed around as part of the historical program.

Mrs. Carlin gave a brief resume of the history of the Pledge of Allegiance reading a copy used in the Chicago World's Fair of 1892: "I pledge allegiance to the flag of my country, I pledge my heart and hand to God and Country, one nation, one language, one God!"

Mrs. Elisabeth Mellon, Petoskey Regent, mentioned summer luncheons and other summer activities in the 1910-1912 era when one of Charlevoix's Michigan-ave. summer residents, Julie Scott, was President-General of DAR national organization and attended Petoskey Chapter summer meetings. She also noted for the far-away members that the music of Petoskey's own J. Will Callahan had been played in the DAR Continental Hall in Washington.

The meeting adjourned to Sept. 20 when the Regional meeting will be held in Traverse City at the Holiday Inn.

State Becomes Salmon Capital

Since the first coho and chinook were planted in Lake Michigan six years ago, Michigan has surpassed such dominant West Coast fishing states as Washington and Oregon to become "The Salmon Fishing Capital of the World," according to Automobile Club of Michigan. Last year, state anglers caught more than one million salmon from the Great Lakes and tributaries for the first time, and despite the absence of large numbers of early spawning Alaskan coho this year, the million mark should be equaled again in 1972. Major reasons for fishermen to expect another banner year for coho and chinook are:

- The availability of nearly 10 million coho and chinook in state waters.
- More anglers being lured to state waters, especially on Lake Michigan and feeder streams, due to added interest in perch, steelhead and lake trout fishing.
- Prospects of latching onto a record catch.
- Improved techniques of anglers in catching the elusive salmon.

"There is no question that in terms of size and total numbers available for catching, Michigan has become the primary salmon fishing location in this country, and perhaps the world," states Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"And this year's catch may be bigger and better than ever, provided the weatherman cooperates as he did last year when anglers were able to get out on the Great Lakes more days than at any time in recent years," Ratke says.

A record 34 locations—three more than last year—will have mature salmon runs this fall, included in the 1971 spring plantings, which will yield most of the salmon taken this fall, were the first open water plantings of coho and chinook ever.

Rep. Friske 'Back Home' After GOP Masquerade

Some of the most refreshing news we have heard in a long time is Rep. Richard Friske's decision to leave the Republican Party and run for true colors—The American Independent Party.

It is heartening to read of the position of the Charlevoix County Democratic Committee opposing the John Birchers' masquerade.

The item in the current issue of News Week is a typical example of a John Birchers in action. It is another proof of the value and importance of the "Clockwise" editorial of June 28, 1972: "Welch Does Thinking for JBS."

George W. Dean

Yet neither the Republican nor the Democratic parties is big enough to swallow the John Birch Society philosophy without bursting at the seams.

However, the United States is made up of people with widely divergent political beliefs, up to and including those of George Wallace's American Independent Party, with which Rep. Friske has chosen to align himself.

Although Rep. Friske was defeated by Republican Ralph Osting of Roscommon for the GOP nomination as state representative in the 103rd District, he is not out of the political arena.

If plans to run for some elective office—as yet undisclosed—in the November general election, although it is doubtful at this time that he can get his name on the ballot.

Hails Dem Stand on Birchers

Michigan election laws frown on candidates switching parties between the primary and general elections.

However, it is reassuring to learn that we have not heard the end of Rep. Friske. If nothing else, he has made life interesting on the political front in northern Michigan for the past two years.

New Historical Society Needs Your Assistance

Robert Clock, Editor
Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Bob:

I would deeply appreciate if you would print the following letter to the citizens of the Charlevoix area. I think it is of vital interest to everyone who loves Charlevoix.

After a number of years, we have re-activated the Charlevoix Historical Society and now need help and assistance from the people of Charlevoix.

We have delegated committees for library, museum and historical sites as well as other administrative committees and we solicit your interest in the objectives of the Society, to preserve, protect and house articles of historical significance.

In the past so many artifacts and items of historical value have been lost to posterity because storage facilities were not available. We now have space provided for us by the County Commissioners in the basement of the Court House Annex and have a group of responsible people to properly protect and preserve these articles. One of the objectives of the Society is to obtain or construct some type of museum and have it in full operation by the Bicentennial Year of our Country. Federal and State funds that are available for this purpose are being investigated by the Museum Committee.

We know that many people have hesitated to donate articles of historical value because there was no method to properly identify the donors name and the authentication of the object and proper protection. We now have corrected this and ask that anyone in the area having artifacts, documents, pictures and articles of historical value to contact any of the following persons: Ralph S. Hamilton, Mrs. Carl Kohler, Frances Durand, Clarence Rabach, Mrs. Kit Carson, Mrs. Charles Duerr, Mrs. Arthur Weststaff, George Nipson, Edward Heise Jr., or Robert C. Burnes or write to the Society's address: Post Office Box 525, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Elsewhere in the paper you will find a coupon that will enable you to join in our efforts to maintain and preserve the History of Charlevoix by joining the membership as a Charter Member (First Year).

Let us now try to preserve as much of the local history as possible and we ask your co-operation and solicit your interest and help.

Thank you
Ralph S. Hamilton,
President
Charlevoix Historical Society

Historians Welcome Contributions

Dear Mr. Clock:

The Charlevoix Historical Society is a new and growing group. It was formed to bring together people interested in the history of Charlevoix and its surrounding area. To this end, it is collecting articles and documents of historical value with the idea of protecting and displaying them for the public enjoyment.

A number of objects have already been procured but such a large undertaking needs the help of many people. The Society welcomes new members and will also welcome contributions to its collection. If anyone has anything of historical interest he would like to contribute it may be taken to 104 West Hurst but if he will call 547-6871 or 547-2863 a member will be glad to pick up the item. The group is in need of a building for museum purposes and it is of interest to know that such a gift would be a tax deduction as well as serving the area.

We hope through the efforts of the members and friends to preserve the rich history of Charlevoix for all its people and its guests in the years to come.

Sincerely,
Virginia Nipson
(Mrs. George)

Viewpoint! Harrison Best Man For Lottery

By Sen. Robert Davis

Q. What do you know about Gus Harrison, the governor's new lottery commissioner? C.A. Petoskey

A. If the adage "a good start is half the battle" is true, Michigan's new lottery has an excellent future.

In choosing Corrections Director Gus Harrison as director of the system, Gov. William G. Milliken has served notice that he wants the lottery to be handled efficiently and honestly.

The selection of Harrison has met with universal approval. He is one of the most highly regarded men in state government. He has handled the extremely difficult job of corrections director so flawlessly that his efforts to resign twice have been met with heavy pressure from all sides for him to continue.

Few department heads in Michigan government have had the rapport, the respect and the confidence of the Legislature that Harrison enjoys. He ran the Corrections Department as a tight ship but exhibited a compassionate understanding for the thousands of inmates behind the walls.

There has never been a breath of scandal nor a major difficulty in any of Michigan's penal institutions since he took over as director.

That trail will stand him in good stead in his new job.

Everyone knows that lottery - albeit legalized lottery - is gambling. And whenever you have gambling, the possibilities of cheating and corruption are high.

Friends and long-time acquaintances of Gus Harrison feel certain that there will be none of that while he is directing operations.

Harrison is smart enough to know that he has his work cut out for him. He will be setting up an entirely new operation. He will be pressured from all sides by people who want to get in on the ground floor. Long before he was named, legislators had been heavily pressured, especially by representatives of companies which make and sell equipment for lotteries.

One of Harrison's big problems will be the time factor. Because the State treasury is sorely in need of money, the governor and the Legislature want to "get the show on the road" as soon as possible, within limits of safety, so that the money will begin to flow into the State coffers.

It is expected to take about six months to get into full operation from scratch. The Legislature has appropriated $2.5 million to get things going.

Until the lottery gets going, if course, there is no way of knowing how much money it will bring in. But based on the experience of Massachusetts, which expects a gross sale of about $80 million a year, it is estimated that Michigan's lottery may take in $100 million or more.

For the present, at least, state officials are expecting - or at least hoping - that it will add $20 million annually to the State's General Fund.

It should be noted that the voters themselves approved a lottery for Michigan and the Legislature's action just carries out those wishes.

Your questions and comments are always welcome and may be addressed to: State Sen. Robert W. Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48902.

They're Glad To Donate To Hospital

Dear Mr. Clock,

We've been coming to Charlevoix for 28 years and have had three occasions to use your hospital.

Not only was Dr. Grate wonderful, but all the personnel treated us with kindness and efficiency.

We are happy that now we are able to make a contribution to this campaign for the new intensive care unit and hope that everyone in town realizes how fortunate Charlevoix is to have such a fine hospital.

Such rot.

Cats are good for nothing, Ann, except testing legends.

One legend is that cats always land on their feet. The only way to test this is to take a cat to a roof and throw it off.

Another legend is that cats have nine lives. This should be tested whenever the opportunity presents itself, especially on highways. The thing to do is carve an X on a cat you think is dead.

If you see X sneaking around again the next day, you know it needs at least one more test, maybe eight.

The thing that gets me most about cats, Ann, is they are so dumb. There have been two cats living in our house for over two years. They know I hate them because I'm always testing them. But still those stupid cats will jump on my lap when I am reading or snoozing. This disturbs me no end, and I always heave the cats at the farthest wall. You'd think they'd learn to steer clear of me. But not those dumbos. The next day they'll land on me again, and I'll heave 'em again.

Only houseflies are as dumb as cats.

The Tucson clown said cats are "unintelligently dignified." Wow, Ann. Cats flop around the house all day and

Clockwise The Drug Raid

By BOB CLOCK

No one in town was really shocked by the drug raid at the cigar store last Tuesday. Everyone except the hangers-on at the building seemed to know it was coming. The only question was when.

Nor was anyone particularly shocked to learn that drugs are still a problem in Charlevoix. The court news week after week carries items about individual marijuana users being hauled into court to account for themselves.

If there was one "truth" to come out of the recent raid it was substantiation of a growing conviction on our part that parents - the old scapegoats in the drug business - are not really responsible.

The culprits this time came from such a variety of homes and backgrounds that you couldn't put your finger on a single common denominator.

Some of them came from families that are fairly well-fixed and it is safe to assume their children lacked for very few of the material things of life in their formative years. Others weren't so well heeled.

Some of them came from families where the father ruled his domain like a medieval fief. Others came from permissive homes, where the youngsters themselves were allowed considerable latitude in charting their own courses.

Some of the parents knew what their youngsters were up to down at the cigar store but were helpless to put a stop to it.

One father told me that he feels the youngsters are unaware that possession of more than two ounces of marijuana still carries a pretty heavy penalty - up to four years in prison.

But I am confident that no user or pusher of narcotics today is ignorant of the law. I intend I suspect they are more cognizant of our drug statutes than their attorneys.

The liberal left tells us that present laws governing the use and possession of marijuana are inane in light of recent research into the nature of the drug and its effects on the human brain. They point out that marijuana is not necessarily a step toward the "hard stuff" any more than alcohol or take a few tricky maneuvers."

"But how would the American people react to such hanky-panky?" I said. "I don't think they'd like it."

"You're right, Jim. But what else can I do?" he questioned.

"Don't worry Mr. Nixon," I said. "I have another solution to the problem. And this one is just and honorable." "Really?" Nixon queried. "Tell me about it."

"Well, Dick, the North Vietnamese have been looking for the fate of the POW's over our heads in the negotiations like a guillotine. That's their ace in the hole. So what we've got to do is get rid of that ace, right?"

"Your logic sounds good so far," Nixon said.

"Now you could swap Thieu for the prisoners. But that's not the honorable thing to do. And besides, you'd be giving the enemy something they wanted," I said.

"That's very true," Nixon added.

"So, what you got to do is have the U.S. Airforce bomb all the POW camps and kill all the American POW's in North Vietnam. This would destroy North Vietnam's bargaining position, and bring about a quicker end to the war."

"I just don't know," Nixon said. "The U.S. Airman might not like killing their own comrades."

"Just tell them it's the honorable thing to do. You could use some of that rhetoric McGovern has been using. Tell them all men are brothers, and that it really isn't any different from bombing and burning the kids of North Vietnam. That should ease their minds." And remind them that this action, like all lick themselves in unlikely spots. This is dignified?

The clown also says cat haters are vicious and underhanded. Yes, but only when we are crossed by cats, and then not always. I sometimes throw small cats overhead.

It is just as easy to generalize about cat lovers. Ann. They are always people who love Doris Day, go to bed early, and talk baby-talk to everyone under 15 years old. Cat lovers can also be identified by the terrible smell of one room in their homes. The door can't be shut. This is the cat's bathroom.

You are probably puzzled, Ann. If I hate cats so much, why do I allow two of them to live under my dinner table? It's the same old answer: If I don't do it I'm told, my wife won't let me be boss of the house anymore.

Besides, we were introduced by an archeologist who said he dug her. I'm sure I married an ancient Egyptian.

District 11 Dems Table Action Against Bircher

Democrat Tony Duerr, candidate for State Representative, 103rd district, and Martin Paul, Boyne City, attended the 11th Congressional District Democratic Convention as delegates from Charlevoix County. Approximately 100 delegates met at the Fireside Inn in Manistique on August 19, for one of the best attended 11th district Democratic conventions in recent years.

James E. McNamara, as candidate for 11th District congressman, opened the meeting and called for election of a permanent convention chairman. Tom Baldini, nominated by Paul Brown of Petoskey, was unanimously elected.

A number of resolutions were presented, but discussion was limited to those directly affecting residents of the 11th District, such as a resolution recommending the honoring of Indian treaties and a resolution condemning an extended shipping season in the Greer Lakes, because of an adverse effect on the St. Mary's river shoreline.

The two resolutions receiving most attention, one of which originated in the Charlevoix County Convention, were ones which refused to support James E. McNamara for 11th District congressman, on grounds that he has publicly stated that he does not support the Democratic National ticket or platform, has never paid dues to the Democratic party, and is a member of the John Birch Society.

The convention decided to table further action on these resolutions until the 11th District caucus at the State Convention next Saturday in Grand Rapids in order to consult national party candidates George McGovern and Frank Kelly before taking final action.

According to Tony Duerr, the convention in Manistique was clearly pro-McGovern and it appeared that McNamara had few if any supporters.

The delegates also endorsed Calhoun County Probate Judge Mary Coleman for the Michigan Supreme Court and Lawrence Linderme as regent of the University of Michigan. Gordon Freedman announced that a two-county business-industry barbeque to raise funds for the re-election of President Nixon has been set for Sept. 21 in Petoskey.

John Mitchell were sent to Alabama by those who control Richard Nixon to get Governor Wallace to support the Nixon brand of state socialism. There was even talk of asking Governor Wallace to speak at the National Republican Convention. This must have galvanized those in this state, the very small minded Republican Party leaders who had been publicly blasting Wallace. At any rate, the peace feelers were made and the media picked it up, and even made some generous comments themselves about Wallace.

"The Detroit News of several weeks ago stated that the Nixon forces considered Michigan to be a key state in the coming election, and because the people had supported Wallace so strongly in the May primary, some of the Wallace platform should be lifted to aid in a Nixon re-election. However, because this administration is totally lacking in moral fiber, you can be sure that if he is successful in November, we can count on him and his chief adviser, Henry Kissinger, to proceed with the McGovern recommendations in exactly the same way that he proceeded with the Humphrey programs after his 1968 election.

"In response to the question, 'How can you oppose President Nixon so strongly when the alternative would be McGovern?' I can only say that because McGovern would face the normal Republican opposition to Socialism in the Congress... of indeed this Republican opposition was not suppressed, as it has been... the country would be alerted to the danger. As it is for the sake of so-called party unity, there is no effective opposition in Congress to these same programs carried out by President Nixon.

"Let me conclude by saying that regardless of my role in the future-as far as public office is concerned-I intend to take my place in the fight against the monstrous Evil we are facing today. I intend to be as much help to the American Party ticket in this state as I possibly can. Because I support the national platform of the Party 100 percent, I pledge to you that I will help to carry on this fight throughout this state to uphold the principles of that platform, with the help of God. Accordingly, I am announcing my resignation from the Republican Party and transferring it to the American Independent Party of Michigan. I might also add that in the several months remaining in my present term of office, it will give me great pleasure to become not only the first member of the American Party to hold office in this State of Michigan, but I shall elect myself Minority Leader of that party in the Legislature as soon as we reconvene. It certainly will be a lot more wholesome caucusing with my quorum of one than it has been.

"Thank you and God bless you.

Friske's Brother Seeks Seat in 103rd District

Herbert Friske, the brother of Rep. Richard Friske, announced that he will accept the draft initiated by the American Independent Party convention at Flint last weekend to make him a candidate for the 103rd legislative seat.

Friske just recently returned from combat duty in Vietnam, where he served as a Signal Corp Specialist in the Army. He received a B. S. degree in education from Central Michigan University in 1970 and served as the campaign manager for Rep. Friske until the August primary.

Friske is married to the former Joan Petrowski of Petoskey, and they now reside in Antrim County. He has been very active in church and civic affairs for many years and is presently chairman of the Antrim County American Independent Party and attends the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

In making his announcement, Friske said he felt "the majority of the people in the 103rd district who cast 9,148 votes for the conservative Rep. Friske and Mr. Parker against the 7,957 for the liberal Ostling would be disenfranchised in November if he didn't run, because there isn't a dime's worth of difference between this MEA financed socialism running as a Republican and the McGovernite socialism running as a Democrat."

Friske added that "one promises to administer socialism a bit more efficiently than the other."

Injunction on Zoning Dismissed by Court

Circuit Judge Charles Brown on Aug. 22 dismissed the temporary restraining order which prohibited the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners from taking action on the proposed county-wide zoning ordinance.

The court ruled that the plaintiffs failed to support their position either by testimony or pleadings. The restraining order was the result of a lawsuit filed on Aug. 11 by plaintiffs Karl Waldner, Rosalie Ottlinger, Willis Peters, Angel Beares and Phyllis Miller. It was their contention that without the restraining order they would be "deprived of their right and opportunity for publicly making suggestions resulting in amendment, revision, additions or deletions" to the ordinance.

The County Board of Commissioners, represented by Donald Berlage, maintained the meeting about the ordinance had been publicized and held in accordance with the law. The commissioners said the defendants moved that the Court dissolve the temporary restraining order and issue an accelerated and summary judgment of dismissal. Counsel for the defendants presented three affidavits as evidence which alleged that "all statutory and legal requirements and procedures were taken, public hearings conducted, publications made and the other plaintiffs were the public (including plaintiffs) to appear and express their views for or against the proposed ordinance, and that plaintiffs had actually attended various meetings and were allowed to express their views."

Brown then asked the plaintiffs, who had earlier dismissed their legal counsel, if anyone would take the stand and controvert the contents of the said affidavits.

Rosalie Ottlinger answered that she would. For over one-half hour she stated her position and the position of all the plaintiffs, but did not specifically deny the allegations of the three affidavits. Her testimony merely "indicated that she and the other plaintiffs were Continued on page 16

Council Stalls on Condo Building Permit
Denied 3 to 2

The City Council Monday night turned down by a three to two vote issuance of building permit for Phase II of The Wharf condominium on Round Lake.

Main opposition to the permit came from Alderman Sam Supernaw who claims The Wharf will have a population density of 49 units per acre, greater than any other condominium planned in the city.

Alderman Robert Gill moved that the permit be granted and the motion was seconded by Alderman Robert Timmus. However, Aldermen Gerald Selph, Clifton Sundberg and Supernaw voted against it.

Before the vote, Drew Young recommended that the permit be denied until the master deed for Phase I, now nearing completion, is recorded. Timmus moved that issuance of the permit be made contingent upon recording of the deed but failed to receive a second.

Attorney Thomas Pointer, representing Timberlee, Inc., the developer, said he felt The Wharf had met all existing requirements and that Timberlee is being discriminated against in light of permits for other condominiums approved by the council.

Tom Ilin, president of Timberlee, challenged Supernaw to defend his stand. Supernaw pointed out that a committee headed by Tom Duke is in the process of making recommendations for changes in the multiple-dwelling ordinance. He also said the parking spaces are smaller than the city's recommendation.

Mayer Edward Hansen suggested that the problem be worked out in committee by representatives of Timberlee and the council.

The council also: -Tabled for further study a request by Julius Gilbert to change the zoning of property he owns on Petoskey-rd. at Burns-st. from R-2 to Office and Professional. Chief of justice came from Paul Donnelly who said such a move would be spot zoning in a residential neighborhood. Alderman Gill said the office zone was established by the city to provide a buffer between residential areas and commercial areas. Mrs. Julius Gilbert says it makes more sense to locate an office building on Petoskey-rd. than in a "pristine" residential area.

Friske Eyes Congress

State Rep. Richard Friske reports that he has established residency in the 10th Congressional District and will run for Congress from the district on the American Independent Party (AIP) ticket.

The district presently is represented by Elford A. Cederberg of Bay City.

Last week, Friske announced that he had resigned from the Republican Party to embrace the AIP.

Friske lost the GOP nomination for House of Representatives in the 103rd District in the Aug. 8 primary to Ralph Ostling of Roscommon.

Dr. Custer was the attending physician for the boy, when he was injured in a car accident. Dr. Kerry is a physician from Ann Arbor who flew to Charlevoix to take part in surgery on the boy.

Each summer the scholarship is given to a child of a person who was employed at the hospital during the time when the Shipman boy was a patient there.

Lt. Cdr. Bull New Chief of Sundew

The officers' gold tipped scabbards sparkled as the sun broke through the overcast during change-of-command ceremonies aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Sundew last Thursday.

Approximately 30 spectators were on board as Lt. Cdr. Berl Williams officially turned over command of the Sundew to Lt. Cdr. P. J. Bull. Outfitted in dress whites for the occasion, the entire ship's complement of 400-odd men was reviewed by the commanders before they made the change of command.

After reviewing the ship's complement, Lt. Cdr. Williams spoke to the men he has commanded for the past two years. He reminded them they should be "the proud to be a part of the Coast Guard and the Cutter Sundew."

Williams described his command of the Sundew as enjoyable and rewarding. After wishing his men well in their future with the Coast Guard, Williams read his new orders to the men, signifying he was no longer in command of the ship. Lt. Cdr. Bull then read his new orders, thereby taking over the Sundew's command.

Lt. Cdr. Williams has been transferred to the Readiness Section of the Operations Branch of the Second District Coast Guard Headquarters in St. Louis, Mo.

Before coming to Charlevoix, Williams was stationed at the Coast Guard Institute in Oklahoma City. He has served as Executive Officer aboard the Acadia at the Coast Guard Training Center in Groton, Conn. A 1960 graduate of the Officers Candidate School for the Coast Guard in Yorktown, Va., Williams also served aboard the Reserve Training Vessel Dexter stationed at Alameda, Cal.

Prior to 1960 Williams served as an enlisted man on ships sailing out of Portland, Maine, Mobile, Ala. and Honolulu, Hawaii. A native of Chillicothe, Mo., Williams, and his wife Dorla, and their three children Grant, Denise, and Diana left for St. Louis shortly after the change-of command ceremony.

State Police Brace For Big Weekend

Preparing for an expected upsurge in traffic during the Labor Day period—the last of three long holiday weekends of the summer season—the Michigan State Police are placing special emphasis on patrol coverage during hours of congested travel, Col. John R. Platts, director, reported.

The patrols will begin at noon Friday, September 1, and end at midnight Monday, September 4.

Maximum coverage will be assigned during those periods when traffic may be expected to be heaviest—from 3 p.m. to at least 9 p.m. each day. Special attention will be given road sections having had accident history.

The director said Labor Day in recent years has been the worst of the five major holiday periods for traffic deaths. The average was 35 for that holiday weekend in the years 1967-71. High for the five years was 51 in 1968, low was 24 last year.

To augment the patrols, pass days have been cancelled for post troopers, post sergeants, court officers, school liaison officers, and recruiters. District commanders may use district and post detectives as needed as well as district safety and traffic officers. Check lanes will be suspended and their personnel will also be used on patrols. Department aircraft, weather permitting, will supplement the car patrol activities in daylight hours.

Hiller-Pease Vows Recited

Rebecca Lee Hiller was wed to Charles Allen Pease in a Saturday afternoon ceremony at the First Congregational Church. The couple recited their vows before an altar graced with white tulip mums, daisies and baby's breath and candleabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. James Hiller of Charlevoix and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pease of Charlevoix.

Rev. Gordon Mitchinson officiated at the double ring rites in the presence of 200 guests. Mrs. Michael Kelley, sister of the bridegroom, played traditional music on the organ. She was accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Woods who sang "A Time for Us" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Wearing an A-line silhouette in imported organdy and Venice lace, the bride was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father. The bodice of lace was designed with a high neckline and short sleeves. Motifs of lace accented the A-line skirt and lace edged her chapel length mantilla. She carried a colonial bouquet of miniature geraniums, daisies and stephanotis.

Jan Elliot of Sterling, Ill., as her honor attendant, wore a floor length gown styled with an embossed organdy bodice and straight pink gingham skirt. Rows of white lace covered the bodice and skirt which was accented with a pink velvet sash at waistline.

Ruth Peebles was bridesmaid. She wore an identical gown of blue gingham with matching sash. Jerry Pease was best man and Bruce Zegerius of St. Catharines, Ont., was groomsmen. Timothy Hiller, brother of the bride, and Larry Streaw seated the guests.

Mrs. Hiller selected a pale green silk and wool worsted sheath dress and Persian tapestry accessories. Mrs. Pease chose a blue long-sleeved polyester dress with lace accents at the bodice and cuffs and white accessories. Their dresses were complimented by corsages of gardenias and stephanotis.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Assisting the bride's parents as hosts were Mrs. Donald Smith and Roberta Hiller, sisters of the bride. Mrs. Jerry Pease, Debba Jones of Coleman and Joan Uhley of Clawson.

The couple will reside at 201 1/2 East Michigan Ave. in Mt. Pleasant following a wedding trip through northern Michigan.

Guests were present from several Michigan and Illinois cities.

New Doctor In Petoskey

hematology at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. in 1958.

Few Billboards Have State Permits

Applications for state permits have been submitted for only about one of every 56 billboards along Lower Peninsula highways covered by Michigan's new Billboard Control Act (P. A. 106, 1972).

State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafseth, citing those figures today, reminded billboard owners that Sept. 3 is the deadline for applying to the Department of State Highways for a permit.

When the deadline passes, the law requires the Department to attach a red violation notice to each unlicensed sign requiring a permit. Sixty days later, the sign will be declared abandoned and the Department may remove it and bill the owner for twice the cost of removal.

An estimated 29,000 signs along interstate and primary highways in the Lower Peninsula will require permits. So far, applications for only 507 of the 43 permits have been submitted to Highway Department offices.

"Many billboards became non-conforming under the new law, and owners of these are entitled to compensation, as are the owners of hand on which they stand for the loss of rental fees," Stafseth said. "However," he added, "owners of these signs may face loss not only of the billboards but of compensation for the billboards as well if they fail to obtain a permit."

Control provisions apply to all area adjacent to and Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shearer recently were Mrs. Shearer's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pete McCafferty of Ashtabula, Ohio. The McCaffertys visited the Shearers enroute to their cottage, the McCafferty-Hilton, on Beaver Island.

"Of these," Rowden said, "five applications for $186,000 for Antrim, Charlevoix and Grand Traverse counties and cities of Manistee and Petoskey are pending for action in Lansing." He added, "At least six more applications totaling $66,500 have been prepared for Benzie, Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Petoskey and Traverse City, and will be filed shortly in Lansing."

Curtain Rings Down on Deano's Last Season

Circlin' the Bases With Deano

SEASON WRAP UP

The past week saw the 1972 softball season come to a conclusion with champions crowned and individual awards and honors issued. The windup had special meaning to me as it brought to an end 18 years of running the city's summer recreation program, which included the softball program. But before this writer becomes too sentimental, let's look at the new champions:

WOODSHED WINS SLOWPITCH

The Woodshed and Medusa emerged from their two divisions as titlist and met in a two-out-of-three championship to determine city champ. In the first game the Woodshed hung on for a narrow 9-7 win. Medusa's Pat Kerr homered in the first to give them a 2-0 first inning lead. The lead was short lived however, as Woodshed countered with three of their own including Joe Beaudine's home run. Owen Faust's homer triggered a five run third for Woodshed and they picked up a single marker in the fourth on an error. The score stood 9-2 until Medusa's live runs. Stan Johnston homered and Pat Kerr hit his second of the game, but the rally fell short. Woodshed won the second game and the title in convincing style 11-2. Owen Faust's three run first inning homer sent the winners off flying and they were never headed. Teammates Joe Beaudine and Bernie DeVries sparked the 17 hit attack with a home run each.

NOVAK REPEATS IN FASTPITCH

Novak's won the second round fastpitch title in a blowdown contest against County State Bank and that, along with the first round tie, gave them the championship without a playoff.

The County State Bank gave them a great game before failing, however. It wasn't until the ninth inning that Novak's was able to score the decisive run. Ralph Deano singled and stole second and then, in his attempt to steal third, lound the ball getting away in short left field, he scampered home in a long slide that brought Novak's a 2-1 win and the championship. Pitchers Tom Drenth and Larry Potter hooked up in a brilliant pitcher's battle with neither team scoring until the eighth when the Bank's Dick Goke singled home Denny Warner with a big run. Novak's battled back with an unearned run in their half of the inning. Tim Doan, getting on via an error, scored on Potter's sacrifice fly setting the stage for brother Ralph's big run in the ninth. Both teams only collected two hits and a huge crowd enjoyed the well played contest.

CAREY OIL WINS WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Carey Oil scored an 11-6 win over Charlevoix Marine Distributors to capture the Women's city tournament. The losers actually out hit the winners 17-11 but their errors came at crucial moments and cost them several important runs. Candy Klooster paced the winners to capture the Women's city tournament. AUG

If it Fitz

BY JIM FITZGERALD

When it comes to touching in church, I was way ahead of my time. I was playing knishes in the pews 30 years ago.

The cool thing to do today is snake physical contact with your pinnates (pennines? That sounds gross. Make it seminales).

Modern ministers and priests often include touching in their worship service. They urge their congregation to reach out, join hands, touch shoulders, make some kind of physical contact.

Many people don't like this holy touching. In fact, I know a couple of guys who absolutely refuse to partake, no matter who is sitting next to them. Whenever the minister gets that brotherly gleam in his eye, these 2 guys get up and run. These rapid escapes must leave their deserted seatmates really feeling like pennines ("Usher, bring me a bottle of Listerine").

I asked my friend Joe why he objected to joining hands in church. "It embarrasses me," he said. "My wife always sits on one side of me and it feels silly to shake hands with someone I've been sleeping with for 15 years. On the other side there's usually some strange guy with a face like a catcher's mitt. There's no way I'm going to hold hands with him."

"The answer is simple," I told him. "It's just a matter of semantics. You should hold hands with your wife and shake hands with the catcher's mitt." Don said, "and besides, it's easy for you to give advice. You never go to church."

But I used to go, way back when I was ahead of my time. And I used to regularly snake touches with the girl sitting next to me. Nothing obvious or vulgar, of course. I'd simply reach out and grab passersby and assure them there was room for 1 more in our pew. After you've squeezed in 5 more "1 nores," the touching is not only easy. It is unavoidable. It did wonders for a dull sermon.

Of course, in 1942, this was guilty touching. The preacher didn't encourage such messing around in church. He didn't even approve it on the playground (co-educational touch football was forbidden). If you wanted to love your neighbor, it was wise to make it a sin of thought, not deed.

It is marvelous to see the progress that's been made in 30 years. I think it's grand that many ministers are now urging their parishioners to become physically aware of each other.

The idea is Love, of course. Love everybody, including the fat guy trying to read your hymnal. But first you must know him. And a good way to start is to touch him. That way, both of you outwardly acknowledge each other's existence. This world is full of people suffering in invisible agony, waiting in vain to be acknowledged.

Many of you church goers will probably regard that last paragraph as pretty pretentious, even stupid, coming from a heretic who has confused teenage lust with brotherly love. Maybe so compared with hate-or-itch-ch sophisticalism.

I'm for a world where every man is eager to make room for 1 more in his pew.

Wed 55 Years

MR. AND MRS. Henry Potter will celebrate their 55th wedding anniversary Sunday, Sept. 10, at an open house being planned by the family at the Barnard Methodist Church. Friends, neighbors and relatives are invited to call between 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. The Potters were married Sept. 7, 1917, at Atwood and have lived in the area all their lives. They have six children, Mrs. Gerret (Henrietta) Hoekema, Mrs. Richard (Jennie) Holman, Mrs. Clarence (Lucille) Himebauch, Mrs. William (Mildred) Himebauch, Mrs. Bernie (Frances) Ward Jr. and Archie Potter, 36 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren. The family asks that no gifts be given.

HIGH WATER slapped the foundations of Scotts Marina on the South Arm at Ironton Sunday after heavy rains last week. Here Chester Nietupski, who recently purchased the business from Moore Scott, stands on jerry-rigged scaffold to reach bait tank as customers wait on dock that is nearly awash.

WATER SKIING behind a VW? You bet. This is Charlevoix's newest outdoor sport originated by Dwight Boss, owner of this VW bug converted into an all-terrain vehicle. On skis is his nephew, Dale Boss Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Boss of North Point.

Adoption Unit Gets Worker

'No Strings Attached' To MEA Contribution

RFD No. 2, Box 475-B, Roscommon, Michigan 49853

August 21, 1972

Mr. Robert Clock, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Mr. Clock:

In the Aug. 2 publication of the Courier a letter from a Rosemary Horton appeared regarding questions pertaining to statements made by me concerning monetary support from the M.E.A.

It pleases me to find that there are people who are interested enough to question the actions of their elected officials. M. Horton has the right to know that I did in fact, state to Mrs. Lask of the Central Lake Torch that I had at that time refused monetary (or any other kind) of support from the M.E.A. I did, however, express my feelings that the M.E.A. tax proposal was, in my opinion, the best of those presented.

A list of my campaign contributions has been properly filed with the Roscommon County Clerk and the State of Michigan with a copy retained in my campaign headquarters for anyone to review.

Very truly yours,
Ralph A. Ostling

Thanks Davenport For Service To City

Bob Clock, Editor
Charlevoix Courier

Dear Mr. Clock:

On behalf of many grateful people in Charlevoix area, I would like to say this time to say thanks to Mr. Deano Davenport for his 18 years of distinguished service as Director of the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

When he first took over as director of the program, the whole program consisted of only softball. Since then, it has grown to include swimming, basketball, golf, instructional schools, basketball leagues, and special events, some of these being track and field days and swim meets.

A large portion of the work to improve the program has been done by Deano alone. He has been the coordinator, working many times behind the scenes with the city council, the mayor, the city manager, the maintenance crews, school officials, lifeguards, swim instructors, umpires, announcers and scorers at the ball parks, managers and sponsors for softball teams, and the scores of interested and public-minded citizens.

What has this work accomplished? Here are only a few examples. The softball program has increased to include over 600 players on 40 teams, with uniforms, sponsors, and managers, playing well over 300 games a summer on three softball diamonds. The city swimming program has blossomed to almost 300 participants this past summer. The track and field days attracted more than 130 participants. These are only an overview of some work that Deano has done. There have been many times when he has taken softball teams in his own spare time and managed them because the kids didn't have anyone to manage them. I was on one of those teams and we really appreciated the time he spent.

After working with Deano for only one short summer, I realize that his position must be very frustrating and tiring. He is continually in contact with so many different people with so many different view points on various topics. He has been constantly scheduling and rescheduling activities to fit other people's convenience and not his own. In trying to do the best possible job on a very limited budget, Deano has not been able to please everyone all of the time. However, he has done his best to make the program better in every way. If he has been frustrated, he rarely shows it. You'll usually find him with a smile on his face and an open ear ready to listen to suggestions.

In closing I would like to thank Mrs. Joyce Davenport, Deano's wife, and their family for their contribution to the recreation program, and for letting Deano make his great contribution to the lives of countless men, women, and children in the Charlevoix area.

Sincerely,
Carl M. Novak

Defends Jurying Art Fair

August 20, 1972

Dear Mr. Clock:

In your editorial appraisal of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair "Who Should Decide What Is Art?" you seem to suggest that no one try to decide. Yet in acknowledging that "the art works on display were superb" you contradict your own contention that "...the art committee has embarked upon an impossible course in attempting to determine what is art and what isn't." Indeed they accomplished precisely that and in grand style.

To your statement "For the first time, entrants were judged by a blue ribbon committee who selected only those artists whose work showed better-than-average artistic talent." I say right-on and "high time!" Do you seriously challenge that policy? If such quality "strikes a sour note with some of the visitors" what of the majority who were obviously thrilled by it? Would thousands be attracted by a display of mediocrity?

It is the very selectiveness which you denounce that has made Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair the finest and most discussed art fair in the state.

In a continuous search for excellence,

Sincerely,
Richard W. Jones

Viewpoint! Claims Birch Society is Moderate

August 20, 1972

Bob Clock,
Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Mr. Clock:

Your article on Extremism (8-16-72) brings to mind a question recently asked me by an intellectually honest journalism student.

"If the extreme of the left is Communism/socialism, in other words totalitarianism, and the extreme right is the John Birch Society—where does anarchy lie?"

My answer: "The premise you have presented is false. Totalitarianism is on the extreme right (complete absence of government). Picture, if you will a horse shoe, with totalitarianism at the left base and anarchy at the right, these are the extremes. Now the Birch Society is for Constitutional (limited government) by and for responsible citizens; so, in truth, contrary to your sources on extremism, that places the John Birch Society right at the crest or "snack dab in the middle." When anarchy exists, it is only a jump over to totalitarianism—from extreme right to extreme left."

"Now that makes sense, thank you very much."

A simple exercise is to re-read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Compare our situation today.

Then get a copy of the "Communist Manifesto"—what plans have, since 1918, been instituted in our Country contrary to the intent of the Constitution?

Now—if you really want a shock get a copy of the Blue Book of the John Birch Society by Robert Welch written in 1964, keep it in mind when it was written—the problem and solution both presented. A complete packet—The Blue Book and progress reports (get that—progress) of the Society is available from them for $2.00. Judge for yourself—"whose afraid of the awful truth?" Fear of truth and the wide dissemination of it is a mark of EXTREME immaturity.

Intellectual honesty is simple, wholesome, healthy and mature. Thank you for your time.

Solution To Bottle Neck

Aug. 23, 1972

Dear Bob,

The ragweed is in full bloom in Charlevoix — lots of it!

A partial solution to our Bridge Street bottle neck has been suggested but it will take a long time for the Highway Department to put it into effect.

The suggestion is a sign at the top of the northside hill reading:

"Right lane must turn right" and markings on the pavement directing the right lane onto Park Ave. and the left, or through lane, through on Bridge St.

Meanwhile if the local folks who know the bottle neck is coming up after they cross the bridge would turn on Park from the right lane it would help a lot.

Says Parker Confused Voters

August 18, 1972

Dear Editor,

I noted happily in your paper that representative Friske carried a majority of the counties in the new 10th district. I noted further that Mr. Ostling, who is still unemployed, won the recent primary election with a plurality. Much was said when Mr. Friske won with a similar plurality in 1970, but all is now quiet on this point after your choice was successful.

It is very obvious to many voters that the candidacy of Mr. Parker as a "conservative" was the usual policy of those who control politics at the top in this state to confuse the voters so that their hand-picked candidate could win. If you figures on the election were correct, without "conservative" Parker in the race, the final tally in all probability would have been 9,148 for conservative Friske and 9,957 for liberal Ostling—a clear majority for Americanism.

The voters are still rather slow in understanding what is happening but, by election day in November, perhaps there will be a new awakening.

We'll see.
Sincerely,
Mrs. Lorraine Hoffman

Counter-Clockwise

By REP. RICHARD FRISKE

I read with interest your weekly attacks on me and the educational John Birch Society.

Your editorial "ad" for the book on "Extremism" was, as expected, nothing more than the usual smear of anyone or any organization that differs with the opinion you might hold or the opinion of those that control you.

I certainly wouldn't quarrel with your listings of leftist groups, nor in most instances with what you term the "right." Myers G. Loman and the Circuit Riders are completely unknown to me. As for the clan, that dying organization filled with persons that hate Jews, Catholics, and Negroes has no more business being placed on the "right" than you do. I'm sure the society would be comfortable in the company of former Harvard Professor and F.B.I. man, Dan Smoot, as they would be with the Reverends Carl McIntyre and Billy James Hargis. By the way, how you could give the title "reversed" to that Charlevoix fellow Koon and not make the same distinction in regard to McIntyre and Hargis escapes me. Bias is one thing, but misrepresentation is quite another.

(Editor's note: Reference here is to Rev. Harold Kohn of Hidden Brook.) But to disregard the above, the quarrel I do have with your editorial is in the truths that you do not reveal. For instance, you never mention the "center" which must be present by your implications that there is a "right" and a "left." And more importantly, you never mention who controls that "center." As you know, or should know, the "center" is controlled by the Council on Foreign Relations, The Fabian Socialists, The Atlantic Union Group, The United World Federalists, and the Bilderbergers to

See Here, George

By JIM-RE-US

I called Nixon and gave him a bit of advice last week on Vietnam. So this week I called McGovern to help him out some.

After all, fair is fair; it's a moral obligation for me to help both men. I certainly can't in good conscience lower my valuable advice into the gutter of partisan politics.

Now we all know McGovern has trouble with his image; the big question in his camp seems to be whether he can make himself "come across" to the American people. So I called him this week to tell him how he could do just that.

"Hello," I said to the secretary at McGovern's headquarters, "this is Jim Reus with the Charlevoix Courier. Please let me speak with the top man himself."

"Just one moment Mr. Bruce," the secretary replied.

I waited for a few seconds and then a voice crackled over the phone.

"Hello, Mr. Bruce, this is Frank Mankowicz. May I help you?"

"Frank, this is Jim Reus, that's Re-us, and when are you going to get secretaries with decent auditory organs?"

"Now don't get gross with me," Frank said. "I'll thank you to speak with respect about our secretaries. After all, I'm a liberal, and that means I don't tolerate such dehumanizing male chauvinism. We liberals simply will not tolerate intolerance."

"I sure am sorry," I replied. "Frank, just let me talk to McGovern."

"Oh," he said, "I thought you wanted the top man. But I'll get George on the phone if he's still in the office. He might have gone home early though. You know, Jim, it's so hard to find good help these days. It seems no one's willing to work for a living anymore."

A moment later I was on the phone with McGovern "George, this is Jim Reus and I wanted to give you some advice on improving your image."

"Go ahead, I'm listening," he said. "What the American people need is a leader with charisma. Everyone is protesting that they can't identify with either presidential candidate. So what you need to do is develop charisma so the people can rally behind you. Sarge Shriver isn't enough. You got to develop your own charisma—something like that Teddy has."

"You're right Jim," McGovern answered, "but how do I do it?"

"What you got to do is look the most expensive sterling silver champagne bucket you can find. You see, George, charisma is the ability of cry into your name just a few.

Your readers, like those throughout the United States that depend on their newspapers and TV for knowledge of current events, have never heard of the above groups that brag in print about their control of both major political parties, American Journalism, education, industries, labor organizations, banking and many religious groups such as the National Council of Churches. It is no secret that these same groups control the entire effort of the radical left mostly through their tax-free foundations. These facts you never discuss on your editorial page and yet they are easily available through the John Birch Society or from the conspirators themselves. I suggest you read one of Stephen Birmingham's books such as "Our Crowd," or Professor Ferdinand Lundberg's "The Fict and The Super Rich," and the 1,350 page tome "Tragedy and Hope" by Professor Carroll Quigley. The last two authors are quite explicit about who controls this nation and they favor it.

Lundberg even goes so far as to indicate that Birchers are right in their analysis of the events that are shaping this nation and world, but states that we are "cracker barrel conservatives"

QUESTION: What is the advantage of a roof rack on top of a car to pack all the vacation luggage and trappings when we travel? D. M., Livonia

ANSWER: It helps to spread the weight of the load more evenly on all four tires. When all your gear is stowed in the rear trunk and the back seat is loaded with passengers, too, the extra weight lowers the back of the car and the decreased weight in front reduces the friction of the front tires on the roadway. This in turn has a deterrent effect on the steerability of the car and can also produce hydroplaning conditions at lower speeds than normal. This can be partly compensated for by putting more air in the rear tires than in the front ones—to help level off the car.

who are too dumb to realize the world would be better off run by an eliteist group of men, Quigley, who has been a member of the National Council on Foreign Relations (1,400 members nation wide) points out that the "tragedy" facing the world would be for Birchers and others to awaken their fellow Americans to the plans of the conspiracy before the plan is completed and that the "hope" is that we will be unsuccessful. Thus, the title for his book - "Tragedy and Hope."

Please, Mr. Editor, read Quigley's book, not Birch material, then from an informed position tell your readers what is truly happening. Just once be objective in your column and discuss what the John Birch Society is saying—that there is a small group of immoral men who are conspiring to set up a one world government (the U.N.) to be ruled by themselves, not peers, and that they consider themselves to be intellectual, political and economic elite.

A discussion or debate is always welcomed by a Birchier, but must be conducted from an intellectual level, not from the gutter level of a sinner.

QUESTION: With all the push for a mandatory seat belt use law, statewide and nationwide, is any consideration being given to those people for whom their use will prove harmful? M.M.M., Saginaw ANSWER: You bet. The Michigan State Safety Commission members are giving extensive consideration to all the variables that a mandatory law might have to include.

Nationally, the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances, in their comments on the proposed mandatory law, are taking many exceptions under advisement: such as, persons being transported in a prone position; persons who are very young or very short; or even persons in seating positions that do not have belts, to name a few.

"And practice crying real hard," I said. "The better you can cry into that bucket, the more the people will love you." "Remember, the man who cries the most into the biggest and shiniest bucket is going to win the election in November."

When offered prune ice cream, Americans will take vanilla.

The average American last year ate 18 pounds of ice cream. Vanilla still heads the list of favorite flavors, though more adventuresome ice cream connoisseurs relish far-out varieties such as dill pickle, watermelon, and blueberry cheesecake.

Not long ago a frazzled ice cream buff observed that the people who think up these new flavors must be plumb nuts. Almost immediately he received congratulations from a large firm for inventing a new flavor—plumb nuts.

SOMEWHAT SOUR Not all the new tastes have been a success. Companies have lost money with concoctions like sauerkraut, pruned, goudy goudy, and chile con carne.

Early ice cream making was an exhausting task, the National Geographic Society says. People spent hours shaking a container of thick cream and sugar in a wooden bucket filled with ice and salt.

Invention of the hand-cranked freezer and wholesale production methods swiftly took the delicacy from wealthy salons to everybody's table. Commercial manufacture of ice cream probably began in Baltimore in 1851.

"As far as I am concerned," wrote a nostalgic fan, "ice cream was invented in Bentonville, Ark., when I was about six years old. The old hand-turned freezer was invented at the same time."

Little else, however, has been known about homemade ice cream existed and that it was about as near to heaven as a

Bike Tour Blanks Due 'Tony' Duerr

Deadline for accepting applications for the annual Charlevoix Lakeside Bicycle Tour is Tuesday, Sept. 5, according to Tony Merta, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The ride is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 9.

Merta says he already has received 40 applications, most of them from out-of-towners. The blanks are available at the Chamber office and the Courier office.

He said one set of eight applications from the Roth family of Grand Rapids has been received. The party includes grandparents, parents and four children. Ages range from eight to 68.

Two tours are planned - a century (100-mile) ride beginning at 7 a.m. and a 30-mile around-the-lake ride beginning at 10 a.m.

Both groups will meet at Whiting Park at noon for a picnic lunch, including the $3 entrance fee. Family fee is $7.

The 100-milers will make two complete circuits of Lake Charlevoix, with side-trips to Burgess. Others will make one circuit of Lake Charlevoix proper, crossing the South Arm on the Ironon Ferry.

School Audit Shows Balance of $61,825

The Charlevoix board of education, at a special meeting Monday, heard and approved the results of the annual audit prepared by Cramer, Beattie and Baird.

In other action the board approved the hiring of non-certified personnel, approved the free or reduced price meals policy for the school year, set tuition rates, approved the election of a student to the board, adopted a partial tentative school calendar, set the cost of student athletic tickets and student athletic tickets and throughout the county.

The audit was published later in the Charlevoix Courier. Copies of the audit are available at the office of the superintendent.

Non-certified personnel to be employed following approval by the board includes Mrs. James (Josephine) Cunningham as the learning center aide at the elementary school; Mrs. James W. (Barbara) Gallagher as learning center aide at the Middle School; Mrs. Jack (Jeanne) Mort as learning center aide at the high school; and Frank Cook as teacher aide for the Vocational Building Trades Class.

Others are Mrs. Johnnie Gerden as cook at the elementary school; Mrs. Ronald (Judy) Zednick as library aide at the Middle School; Mrs. Jan Gibbs and Mrs. Carol Clifford as playground assistants at the elementary school; Mrs. Gerden, who will cook at the Middle School will also be prepared, comes to the Charlevoix school for the Walled Lake School System where she had been employed for 16 years.

Harold Kaffman, business manager, presented the free or reduced price meals policy

Lawsuit Challenges Condominium Vote

Charlevoix attorneys Thomas Pontner and Donald Berlage have filed suit in Circuit Court seeking revocation of a building permit to Ron Steffes by the Charlevoix City Council for construction of a 32-unit condominium on Michigan Ave.

The suit charges that the council vote on the permit was illegal under the Fourth Class Cities Act.

When the permit came to a vote July 30, only four members of the council were present and the vote was split two to two. Mayor Edward broke the tie by voting in favor of the permit.

However, Pontner claims that under the Fourth Class Cities Act, council actions must be approved by a majority of the elected aldermen, not just those present.

Pontner and Berlage are seeking a declaratory judgment by the court voiding the permit.

The council has declared a moratorium on the granting of building permits for multiple dwellings by the city superintendent pending a review of pertinent ordinances by a citizens' committee headed by Thomas Duke.

Council is concerned that some of the proposed condominiums will not have sufficient parking spaces and that the density of units per acre will be detrimental to the city.

Steffes plans to begin work in the spring on his condominium—The Dunes.

against the ordinance in general, and for various other reasons not stated.

Brown consequently ruled in favor of the defendants. The County Board of Commissioners are now free to take action on the ordinance. Up to this point they have neither approved or disapproved the proposed ordinance.

If the ordinance is adopted, the plaintiffs have the right to raise the question of unconstitutionality as it applies to their property, and to present evidence in support of their claims, Brown said. But until that time, the commissioners are free to act on the proposed ordinance.

Youth Killed in Crash

Mike Straw, 18, Alone in Vehicle

THE PONTIAC Grand Prix in which Michael D. Straw was killed early morning was totaled. Michael apparently fell asleep at the wheel, according to Sheriff Philo Sumner. The vehicle left Boyne City-rd. and struck a culvert.

A HEAVY section of culvert tile was unearthed by the impact of the crash and heaved up to the level of the roadway. The accident occurred on a curve in the Boyne City-rd., just west of Quarterline-rd.

A one-car accident on the Boyne City-rd. near the Quarterline-rd. intersection claimed the life of 18-year-old Michael D. Straw, 18, early Monday morning.

Michael was the son of Mrs. Betty Straw of R-3 Charlevoix. His father, the late Robert Straw, died in March, 1971, of injuries suffered in a snowmobile accident.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo E. Sumner said the youth apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his Pontiac Grand Prix automobile. The vehicle traveled 500 feet along the right shoulder of the highway before striking a culvert.

The youth was pronounced dead at the scene by acting County Medical Examiner Dr. John Lignell.

The accident occurred at 2:50 a.m. approximately one-quarter mile west of Quarterline-rd., near the Vincent Chew home.

Impact of the crash unearthed a three-foot section of concrete drain tile. The vehicle then crossed a new driveway on the right-hand side of the road and came to rest in a ditch on the other side.

The vehicle, which was towed to Russell's Gulf Station in Charlevoix, was totaled.

Michael, who had been a senior at Charlevoix High School this year, was traveling alone.

Since last March he had been employed at the Clark Station on U.S. 31 South.

His employer, J.B. Stevens, said the youth left work at 11 p.m. Sunday evening. He apparently was enroute home when the accident happened.

Stevens described Michael as a "hard worker."

The body is at the Winchester Funeral Home. Arrangements are pending word from two brothers who are stationed overseas with the U.S. Air Force.

Michael was born in Petoskey Feb. 18, 1954, and attended Charlevoix Public Schools. He played football as a freshman, but was forced to drop out because of a back injury.

He attended the Presbyterian Church in Bay Shore.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. William (Jean) Habel Jr. of Bellaire and Betsy at home; two brothers, Donald, stationed in Thailand, and Larry, stationed in Turkey. Both are in the U.S. Air Force.

Also surviving are his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Straw of the Marion Center-rd. and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Erber sr. of Boyne City.

Friske Threatens To Sue

Charlevoix County Republican Chairman Robert Friske Jr. has learned that Rep. Richard Friske is considering legal action against him and the Charlevoix County Republican Executive Committee, charging "libel and slander" in a resolution passed by the committee June 29.

The resolution censured Friske for not supporting Republican candidates and formally disassociated the Charlevoix County Republican party from Friske's campaign for reelection. Friske subsequently lost the GOP nomination to Ralph Ostling.

A letter from Friske's attorney, Russell D. Gould of Kalamazoo, demands that a retraction of the resolution be published in all media "used by your committee in the perpetration of the libel and slander against Rep. Friske."

"Your failure to do so, within a reasonable time, will subject you, and all other members of the Executive Committee who participated with you, to exemplary and punitive damages in addition to the actual damages incurred by Rep. Friske," the letter stated.

Jordan Hearing Slated Sept. 15

The Department of Natural Resources announced that it will hold public hearings in Charlevoix and Bellaire Sept. 15 to air its revised plans to have more waters in the Jordan River complex recommended for designation as a Wild-Scenic River System under Michigan's new Natural Rivers Program.

The hearings are scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix County Building, and at 7:30 p.m. in the Antrim County Courthouse, Bellaire.

They will focus upon a broader concept of protection for the Jordan which DNR specialists have developed since original plans for preserving the stream's natural values were brought up for public discussion in the two northern communities last May 25.

Under its new, total system approach for saving stream values, the DNR hopes to see the Jordan's designation as a Wild-Scenic River cover its tributaries above Rogers Bridge, as well as 33 miles of its mainstem.

Last July, when it took its original plan for the Jordan to the Natural Resources Commission, the DNR was thinking in terms of limiting

Ostling's Ads Hit By Duerr

Charles A. "Tony" Duerr, Democratic candidate to the House of Representatives from the 103rd District, has complained to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that his Republican opponent, Ralph Ostling, violated FCC regulations in his radio advertising prior to the Aug. 8 primary.

In a letter to the FCC's Complaints and Compliance Division, Duerr said that Ostling's radio ads carried the disclaimer "and that's exactly why this message was brought to you by a lot of people for the election of Ralph Ostling."

Duerr says the FCC requires that political announcements "fully and fairly disclose the true identity of the person by whom ... such

Lakeside Bike Tour Is Saturday

Cyclists are reminded that the second annual Charlevoix Lakeside Bicycle Tour will be held this Saturday, starting at the Chamber of Commerce Office.

One-hundred-milers will leave Charlevoix at 7 a.m. and make two complete circuits of the lake.

Less energetic cyclists will leave at 10 a.m. and make one circuit of the lake, crossing on the Ironon Ferry.

Both groups will convene at Whiting Park at 10 a.m. for a catered picnic lunch. Refreshments stands also will be set up at the Ironon Ferry and the junction of Maple Grove-rd. and Boyne City-rd.

Registration fee (including lunch) is $3 per person or $7 per family.

Medusa Honors Clem Wagner

Charlevoix's Medusa Cement Co. employees gathered in force at the American Legion Hall last Tuesday night to honor Clem Wagner, who marked 25 years of service with the company.

A native of Wisconsin, Wagner joined the company at Manitowish after serving overseas with the Army during World War II. He transferred to Charlevoix as office manager when the Medusa plant opened here in 1967.

Charles Howlett, vice president, operations, presented Wagner a watch marking 25 years of company service.

Howlett also was one of the featured speakers at the banquet, discussing Medusa's progress in the first six months of 1972 and also the company's plans for developing the Clinchfield, Ga., plant, recently acquired from Penn-Dixie Cement Co.

Howlett said the company "did well" in the first six months of 1972, compared to the first half of 1971, with earnings showing a 118 percent increase. However he pointed out that earnings were still only two and one-half percent of sales.

He said June was a "disaster," particularly because of low output at the Charlevoix plant.

Howlett said the Clinchfield plant will make cement by the dry-process method.

He said Charlevoix employees are used to working with limestone that looks like stone. However, the limestone in Georgia is more like shale, "only worse," he said.

"It looks dry," he said, "yet it is one half water and has no alkalai in it at all."

Howlett said raw material will be ground and dried in a Raymond mill before being introduced to the three million barrel pre-heated kiln.

He said the new process, used extensively in Europe, used less fuel in substantial fuel savings. It takes 72 pounds of coal to make one barrel of cement at the plant.

The notes will be dated September 1, 1972, will mature March 1, 1973 and will bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding 6 percent per annum. Both principal and interest will be payable at a bank or trust company located in the State of Michigan to be designated by the original purchaser of the notes.

The notes will be subject to the approval of the School District. Denominations and form of notes to be at the option of the purchaser. Accrued interest to date of delivery of such notes must be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

The notes shall not be subject to redemption prior to maturity.

For the purpose of awarding the notes the interest cost of each bid will be computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified therein, the total dollar value of all interest on the notes from September 18, to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium. The notes will be awarded to the bidder whose bid on the above computation produces the lowest interest cost to the municipality. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the notes or at a price less than their par value will be considered.

Board Sets Vacations; More Kids This Year

The following action was discussed by the Charlevoix Board of Education in its meeting on Aug. 28:

Oct. 23 has been established as an Inservice Training Day. Nov. 23 and 24 have been set aside for the Thanksgiving recess and Dec. 23 to Jan. 2 for the Christmas recess. The board will make a decision regarding days for deer hunting at a later meeting. It had been suggested that Nov. 15-16-17 be considered deer hunting days. Mrs. Jane Lieberman, a board member, said she was not in favor of two long weekends (deer hunting and Thanksgiving). Bruce Morgan, president of the Charlevoix Teachers Association, said that the majority of teachers do not prefer the deer hunting days and would rather have the days during the spring vacation interval. The issue was tabled for the time being.

Cost of student athletic tickets was set at $6, the same as last year. This allows the student to attend all school-scheduled athletic events on the ticket.

Mrs. Marie Osterberg was named girls' volleyball coach for the school year.

A report by school principals based on new enrollments to date reveals that the largest increase will come in the top four grades where figures show a net increase of 42 enrollments.

*Each additional family member... Families falling within these scales or those suffering from unusual circumstances or hardships are urged to apply for free or reduced price meals for their children. They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. The form itself is simple to complete and requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family, number of children attending school or preschool, and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school meals. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. In order to safeguard their identity, children receiving free or reduced price meals will be treated in the same manner as full paying students. Further assurance is given that children eligible for a free or reduced price meal shall not be required to: (1) Work for their meal. (2) Go through a separate serving line. (3) Eat meals at a different time. (4) Enter a dining room or serving line through a separate entrance. (5) Eat a different meal than those sold to children paying the full price of such a meal. Under the provisions of the policy the Principals of Elementary and Middle Schools will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the local official he may make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision. Harold J. Kaufman, Business Manager whose address is Superintendent's office has been designated as the Hearing Official. Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy. A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the Business Manager where it may be reviewed by any interested person. We urge you to have your child or children participate in the program since it is to their benefit to eat well-balanced meals each day.

OIL MAKES NEWS IN MICHIGAN

Take a good look at the newspaper you're holding. Without oil, it might not be there. From the film in the press camera to the rollers in the presses—today's newspapers depend on products that come from oil. Even the ink comes from oil. To get a newspaper out takes a lot of energy too. And 75% of all our energy comes from oil and natural gas (including 40% of our electricity). But today, we're using these petroleum fuels faster than we are finding them. That's why America faces an Energy Gap. We're your local oil companies. Working to bridge the growing Energy Gap. Because it shouldn't be news to anyone that a country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

When Steve Lawson said "No more wrinkles in my shirts"...

his wife bought a Gas dryer.

The kind with a permanent press cycle. But what Steve and his wife discovered was that the permanent press cycle on their new Gas dryer saves time, gas and money. You see, it operates without gas during the last 10 minutes (just fresh fluffing air, to make sure the wrinkles won't set). Saving Mrs. Lawson a lot of ironing. With so many permanent press items in use today, you should consider replacing your old dryer with a modern Gas dryer with the permanent press cycle. You can see them at Gas appliance dealers or Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showrooms. But, whether your dryer is old or new, here is how you can increase its operating efficiency:

1. Follow manufacturer's instructions on proper operation.
2. Keep the dryer's lint filter clean.
3. Avoid over-drying your clothing.
4. Keep the dryer's flue clear of lint accumulations.

Most Grain Payments Made

Substantially all of the feed grain and wheat program payments have been released to Michigan participants in the 1972 Wheat and Feed Grain Program according to Arthur Rowley, Chairman of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. An August 11, payments had been processed for about 89,000 farms. Drafts for approximately $49 million were issued to over 77,000 producers having an interest in these wheat and feed grain farms. Payments under the set-aside program are made to farmers who agree to set aside part of their land from production in order to meet a National objective of balancing supply and demand in certain commodities. These payments help to offset the loss of returns from cropland that otherwise would be used for income yielding production, and on which the farmer is obliged to continue to pay taxes and apply needed conservation measures. In Michigan, on the basis of their intentions, program participants intended to set aside over 850,000 acres of productive cropland. During the program year, in line with the program concept, no crop could be removed from this acreage nor could it be pastured prior to September 1. This type of program was devised because of the American farmers' ability to over produce wheat and feed grains in excess of the supply needed for both foreign and domestic markets. The Chairman explained that farm programs must be designed to help maintain stability in the production of food and fiber and the accumulation of huge surpluses or shortages must be avoided.

P-D Earnings Unchanged; Rain Blamed

Penn-Dixie Cement Corp. reported net earnings of $797,000 or 27 cents per share on sales of $106,940,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1972. This compares with net earnings of $808,000 or 27 cents per share on sales of $106,136,000 for the same period in 1971. For the year ended June 30, 1972, net earnings were $1,313,000 or 44 cents per share on sales of $2,319,000 compared to net earnings of $1,364,000 or 46 cents per share on sales of $2,319,000 for the year ended June 30, 1971.

James C. Jacobson, vice president and chief financial officer, said "sales and earnings were considerably hampered in the second quarter because of extensive rain and flooding in certain key marketing areas."

"These unusually heavy rains adversely affected our cement and construction units," Jacobson added. "Despite the flat second quarter earnings we definitely anticipate a sharp earnings improvement for the remainder of the year."

If it Fits

By JIM FITZGERALD

Our teenage daughter is away visiting our married daughter and we all have left at home is a 14-year-old redhead who washed his hair once a day and his feet once a month.

Old fogies keep proving they're liberal by saying, "I don't mind long hair on boys if they keep it clean." The boys must be listening. The last time I followed Eddie into the shower there were 18 bottles of shampoo on the floor and no soap in the soapdish. After that shower, I was guaranteed to have no dandruff between my toes.

But I digress. My original intention was to write about our hippie-haired 16-year-old daughter, not her little brother. Constant readers of this nonsense (Mother and Aunt Madeline) may be surprised. I used to write about our kids when they were babies. But when they got old enough to read, they were banned from the column. I was afraid they'd get the idea I depended on them for material. The little mercenaries would have started charging me $5 per bright saying, "I didn't want to have to stick a quarter up a kid's nose to get her to tell me her room was on fire. But it has lately come to my attention that our two teenagers are too busy to read this stuff anyway. When pressed, they insist that they do 'scan it.' That means they step over it if I leave it on the floor between them and the phone."

So it is safe to mention daughter Chris in a column. She'll never know what I wrote unless David Cassidy Records it. At first glance, the thing I want to write about Chris might seem rather incredible. But I suspect it will ring a bell.

As you make such a concerted effort to be punctual, all you get is grief. That's the day I was on time, for example, I found on my desk a note saying "Jim, too bad you don't work sometimes."

And as if that wasn't bad enough, that same day a young lady at the plant in Petoskey said to me:

"Jim, are you working hard today? Or, more likely, are you hardly working?"

Then today again, I find on my desk another note from another young lady complaining about my work habits. The tirade concluded with the question, "Don't you sometimes wonder what it is to WORK?"

Well, I could conclude from all this that there are some ladies worried about what I do in my spare time. But more realistically, I suppose I should conclude there are a few people who are worried about what I do in my spare time.

"Remember when a hero meant a person and not a sandwich."

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marie Osterberg

Dear Mr. Clock:

The 78th annual waterfront Art Fair was a complete success once again this year.

Behind the scenes, many people are involved to "put it all together." Many precious hours are given by people who are dedicated to making this nationally publicized fair a successful event.

As chairman of the Junior hosts and hostesses a group of over 60 boys and girls who voluntarily assisted during the long day, I personally say "Thanks kids, you did a great job."

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marie Osterberg

Thank you for the column.

Charlevoix Plant. The Clinchfield Plant presently uses 150 pounds of coal per barrel. Under the dry-process, coal consumption should be reduced to 50 pounds per barrel.

Phil Guttman, recently appointed vice president - manufacturing and formerly a sales executive, said the Clinchfield Plant should help to ease three years of cement shortages in the South. He said he expects the market to continue strong from Texas to Virginia and moderately strong from Richmond to Boston.

Elph Ritehite, Medusa safety director, said that although 1972 got off to a bad start with four lost-time injuries at the Charlevoix Plant, the plant has now run more than 170 days without a lost-time accident. He said the Charlevoix Plant ranked third in the company in safety in 1971.

Since the original Jordan River plan was drawn up by the DNR, the proposed strip of zoned river frontage has been doubled in depth to provide a greater margin of protection for the system's natural values.

Within the zone, future campgrounds, subdivisions, and residential buildings would have to be set back at least 200 feet from the main stream and 100 feet from the tributaries above Rogers Bridge.

School District Sound, Board Told

In a report on the state of the Charlevoix School District, following the Board of Education's approval of the annual financial report, Supt. Robert L. Miller stated that the administration and the board felt that the Charlevoix Public Schools are providing educational opportunities at a level unmatched by other schools of comparable size. This statement concluded his report in which he had stated that the high school had been accredited by the University of Michigan and the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges and that during the past year the school district had met all criteria of both organizations with the exception of counseling criteria. However, with the addition of a counselor to the staff, the criteria for the counselor-pupil ratio had been met.

The General Fund Balance sheet and statement of Revenue and Expenditures indicate that the General Fund of the school is financially sound, Miller continued. The general fund balance is $91,549, the difference between the assets and the liabilities. However, the actual cash on hand on June 30, 1972, available to the general fund was $87,985. On the same date salaries earned and payable were $114,441. Thus, on July 1, the cash available was not sufficient to meet salaries earned and payable. As a result it will be necessary to borrow approximately $300,000 during the 1972-73 school year to meet operating expenses until taxes are received.

Miller also reported that the total number of classrooms available are adequate to house the students in the district except where facilities of a special nature are needed. He reported a study of school needs is presently being made.

The report revealed that during the past school year progress had been made in expanding in the area of vocational education and that music, art and physical education programs carried last year have been restored

Roger Westenbroek Resigns

Mayor Will Appoint First Ward Alderman

Alderman Roger Westenbroek, who represented Charlevoix's First Ward on the City Council for the past three and one-half years, tendered his resignation to Mayor Edward Hansen and the Council Monday night.

Westenbroek said in a letter that the press of business matters has prevented him from giving as much attention as he would like to city affairs.

Westenbroek is manager of the Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Co. in Boyne City. His successor will be appointed by Mayor Hansen, with the approval of the council.

Westenbroek is the second alderman to resign in recent months. This summer, Alderman Conrad Klooster resigned for similar reasons. He was replaced by appointee Gerald Selph.

In other business the council: -Reviewed new plans for The Wharf condominium submitted by Timberline, Inc., of Traverse City. The revised plans call for 16 units in the second phase instead of 21 and provide for larger parking spaces. Approval of a building permit for Phase II has been held up by the council over questions of population

Fleamarket Set Sept. 23 In East Park

Charlevoix's second annual fall fleamarket will be held Sept. 23 in East Park, according to Thomas Merta, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce.

Persons and organizations interested in joining the big sale in East Park are urged to register with the Chamber as soon as possible so that spots may be allocated. There is a $5 registration fee.

Merta said that 80 booths were set up in the park during the first fleamarket last September. He expects many more this year.

In the event of rain, the fleamarket will be held Sunday, Sept. 24.

-Received only one bid, from the Heide Equipment Co., for an underbody scraper and hitch. The bid was for $3,116, installed. It also was sent to committee.

-Heard a report by City Superintendent Thomas Hanna that the city's request for funds to build two tennis courts, in addition to the two already planned, has been approved on the state level. Approval from the federal government is expected in two weeks.

-Cancelled a proposed zoning change from R-2 to Office and Professional for property owned by Julius Gilbert on Petoskey-ave. at Burns-st. Gilbert asked that the zoning change be dropped after learning the office status would prevent him from constructing any kind of multiple dwelling on the property. Gilbert said his plans weren't firm, but he had Clearly, these are the most magnificent Cadillacs ever built. Not only for what you can see—the bold new exteriors and the plush new interiors—but as much for what you can't see.

You see here the new Sedan deVille, Eldorado Coupe and Eldorado Convertible. You don't see the six other new Cadillacs (more models than all other U.S. luxury cars combined).

You see here the striking new styling outside—even more elegant for '73. You don't see the hundreds of innovations and refinements inside. To add new comfort and convenience.

And you don't see the many new niceties you may add. Like a lighted vanity mirror. A theft-deterrent system and steel-belted radial tires.

Wurtsmith Youth Program Wins $54,075 Grant

A grant of $54,075 was approved last week by the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, providing funds for the second year of operation of the Michigan Youth Service program at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Oscoda.

A number of young men from Charlevoix County have participated in the program, which offers a week at the air base. The youths have an opportunity to associate with airmen, observe the operation of the base and probe their own vocational interests.

The grant represents approximately 70 percent of the cost of the 1972-73 summer encampment at Wurtsmith AFB and is part of federal grants to Michigan totaling more than $8.5 million.

Li. Gov. James H. Brickley made the announcement of the grant, which was among 65 community and 17 statewide crime-fighting projects recommended for approval by the committee which he chairs.

Larry Thompson, director of the MYS program, said that the grant will allow for the follow-up program through the spring of 1973. Thompson was delighted with the approval of the funds, citing the recent attack on the program as the reason for concern about the funding.

Don P. LeDuc, administrator for the Office of Criminal Justice Programs for the state, has admitted that he confused the MYS program with a different project in the state when he was quoted by the Detroit Free Press as saying that the program was a total failure. LeDuc said that he had been quoted correctly, but has since written to the Free Press stating that he had been in complete error.

Local financing will be needed to continue the program after the completion of this second grant period. Contact is being made with the United Fund and other service agencies in the 28 Northern counties of lower Michigan served by MYS in hopes of raising the approximately $100,000 it takes to run the project for a full year.

Michigan Youth Services is a program directed to youth motivation and vocational guidance. Young men 14 through 17 are served. It is a program for the average boy, not the exceptionally good, nor the exceptionally bad. Most boys are referred to the program by schools, social agencies, and a few by juvenile officers. Many have had deteriorating grades, social problems, expulsions from school or "danger sign" contacts with law enforcement agencies. Some merely need masculine or camp exposure.

Since its beginning, over 600 boys have spent a week at Wurtsmith Air Force Base where they have watched and learned from young men not much older than themselves. Skilled counselors worked with them to develop vocational interests and to stress teamwork, cooperation and healthy self esteem. Charlevoix, Antrim and Otsego counties have had 41 boys attend the program. Referring agencies have reported that over 67 percent of these boys varied needs to the type of youth who take part.

But, following the pattern of many federal projects in past years, the federal government will fund projects for a year or two, after which those which have proven their worth have gained enough support in the areas served to pick up the gap in funding locally.

It will now be up to areas served to provide funding.

Will Honor Cunninghams

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Orlin Cunningham are extending an invitation to friends and relatives to attend an open house in honor of their parents' 25th wedding anniversary Sept. 17 from 2 until 6 p.m. at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Robert Mathers, 402 Groveland-st., Boyne City.

Cunningham and the former Lucile Belding (Kens) were married at Indian River Sept. 20, 1947. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Burns of Charlevoix were their attendants.

PETE BOSSCHER of Grand Rapids did some stumping for his favorite presidential candidate, Sen. George McGovern during the Lakeside bike tour. If anyone missed his McGovern "bumper sticker" on his bike seat. Behind Pete is his brother, Dave.

CYCLISTS line up on the bank of the South Arm waiting for the Ironton Ferry. After the short boat ride, riders continued east on Ironton-rd. to their lunch stop at Whiting Park.

THE Ironton-rd. between the ferry and Boyne City was one of the most scenic stretches of the ride. Here riders negotiate curve along the shore of Lake Charlevoix.

LAST rest stop on the Lakeside Tour was the Jim Millar farm on Boyne City-rd. Pepsi Cola and Coca Cola distributors in Petoskey provided soft drinks gratis to the thirsty cyclists.

Bethany Lutheran Marks Its Silver Anniversary

Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church at 1407 South Bridge St. in Charlevoix, will celebrate its 25th anniversary.

Special services will be held on Sunday Sept. 17, beginning at 3:30 p.m. with the Rev. Harold Krach of Saginaw as guest speaker.

Pastor Krach helped the local people begin the congregation while serving as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church of Petoskey. The Bethany congregation was organized in the fall of 1947.

After Rev. Krach was called to Saginaw, the congregation was served from Petoskey by Rev. Raymond Essig. This arrangement continued with Pastor Essig serving the congregation from 1953 to 1969.

At this time it was determined to make a dual parish of Bethany, Charlevoix, and St. Matthew's of Marcellana. This condition remains until the present time.

A house was purchased at 908 Bridge in Charlevoix and a call was issued through the Board of Assignments of the Rev. Albert Engler, a 1960 seminary graduate, accepted the call. He became the first resident pastor of the congregation. He was pastor for two years and then accepted a call to the Chicago area.

Pastor Richard Noffe of Boyne City served during the pastoral vacancy until 1964. Pastor Robert Selzinger accepted the call and was installed as pastor on July 5, 1964, serving for 18 months.

Rev. Noffe was again called upon to fill the vacancy for over two years. At that time Rev. Duane Imig accepted the call and was installed on Dec. 3, 1967. Rev. Imig is presently serving the congregation.

The church building located at 1407 South Bridge St. was built by members of the congregation on land donated by Mrs. Trino Nelson. This building still serves as the house of worship for the congregation. A building fund has been established and a new house of worship is being planned connecting with the present structure. The 25th anniversary offering will be used for this purpose.

The first purchase at 908 Bridge was sold in 1966. Land was purchased on Dixon-ave. and a new parsonage was erected in 1968.

Regular services have been held at Bethany since its early beginnings. Religious instruction through Sunday school and Bible classes have been held throughout the 25 years.

At the present time worship services are held at 9 a.m. on Sunday morning and Sunday School is held at 10 a.m.

Bethany members now number 150 baptized and confirmed.

The public is invited to the special service Sept. 17. Following the afternoon service a supper, provided by members of the Bethany Ladies Guild, will be served in the church basement.

Hails GOP Stand On State Land Tax

Thanks to the persistence of Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-7th District), Michigan Republicans are on record in favor of the State paying reasonable taxes on its vast property holdings in Northern and Upper Michigan instead of withdrawing from the tax rolls.

"It is good, of course, that the state is interested in developing areas of the state as state forests, parks and recreation areas but many local governmental units suffer when these tracts are withdrawn from the tax rolls."

"In place of taxes, the state has been paying 20 cents an acre to local units of government, which leaves them with too little income to provide the services required of them."

"This my hope that adoption of this amendment by the Republican State Convention will give a substantial push to legislation, which I introduced last year, designed to correct this extremely unfair situation. It would mean much to the economic welfare of a lot of Northern Michigan communities."

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander and daughter Diane are spending this weekend in Grand Rapids visiting the latter's father, R. E. Miller, at the Porter Hills Presbyterian Home.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Littrup have closed their Nautica's Fancies Antique Shoppe and have returned to their home in Bay City.

Mrs. Edna Howe has purchased the Lewis Drost house and property on Sweetbriar.

Relatives of Mrs. Roy Meyers who came for the funeral services of Roy Meyer were Mr. and Mrs. William Sharp and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Sharp, Viola Hilgert, and Darlene Flanagan of Buckley, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Behrends of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison of Middletown, Ohio, are spending the week-end in Charlevoix.

Sen. Davis led the floor fight that convinced delegates to the Republican State Convention in Detroit last weekend to amend their platform and adopt his idea which would greatly benefit local units of government in areas where the State owns large tracts of land.

"Many areas of Northern Lower Michigan and especially the Upper Peninsula are 'State-land poor' said Sen. Davis.

Revenue Sharing Funds Earmarked for County

Charlevoix County stands to receive $26,750 in federal revenue sharing funds under a bill which was passed by the House of Representatives June 22, Cong. Philip Ruppe reports.

The funds are included in $1.5 billion to be allocated in 1973 to city, village, township and county governments. Another $1.5 billion will be earmarked for state governments. Smaller amounts will be paid retroactively for the fiscal year 1972, which ended June 30.

Ruppe said that although he has serious reservations about the specific formula for distributing the funds, he supported it as a means of improving the quality and effectiveness of local governments. One section of the bill he objected to provides extra funds for urbanized areas.

"However, it was not possible to amend the bill, and I supported it in final passage because there is an urgent need for additional revenues for local units of government in the 11th District," Ruppe wrote in his latest newsletter.

Total 11th District funds under the bill will come to $6,060,653, Ruppe said. Antrim County will receive $159,657 and Emmet County $220,876.

What We Need Now Is a Bicycle Club

Tom Merta down at the Chamber of Commerce office leads a charmed life. Every one of the Chamber of Commerce events this summer has drawn "a perfect day"—which is something during a summer noted for its rotten weather.

And Saturday—the day of the big Lakeside Bicycle Tour—was no exception. The sun shone without interruption for hours on end and there was a fair breeze off Lake Michigan to keep riders cool.

Furthermore, the countryside around Lake Charlevoix was lush and green from all the rain. The day was tailor-made for just such an outdoor event at the Lakeside Bicycle Tour, which is well on its way toward becoming an annual event.

Last year the first ride attracted only a couple dozen riders, most of them from Charlevoix and Petoskey. This year, about 180 made the trip, coming from as far away as Grand Rapids and Lansing.

The figure includes about 40 strollers who made two complete circuits of the lake, plus a swing through Hayes Township, qualifying the tour as a sanctioned, 100-mile Century Ride, as it is called in bicycling circles.

Bicycling in case you haven't noticed, is fast becoming a national pastime. Every year more and more residents are learning the pleasure of "pedal power" and bike manufacturers find it increasingly difficult to keep up with the demand.

Some cities are constructing bicycle routes through congested areas, alleviating auto traffic. Federal funds are even available to such communities as Charlevoix for the construction of bicycle trails. Some hard-surfaced trails are being built on abandoned railroad right-of-ways.

Think it over. If you'd like to join such a group, contact Tom Merta at the Chamber of Commerce Office (547-2101). If there are enough of you, he'll get the ball rolling.

The "civilized world" was agast last week when a sealed the fence of the Olympic Village compound in Munich and stormed the billets of the Israeli Olympic team.

Although most of the team escaped, two athletes were killed outright at the beginning of the siege and nine others were held hostage for most of the day before they, too, were murdered at an army airport near the ancient Bavarian capital.

The "civilized world" is always outraged by gross brutality by individuals against fellow members of the human race. Spokesmen for all nations express sympathy and regret, renewing vows to put down and contain violence wherever and whenever it occurs.

Such was the case after the Arab atrocity at Munich, which occurred midway during one of the most brilliant Olympiads in modern times. The eyes of the world were already on Munich when the Arabs moved in.

It is only a pity that the "civilized world" doesn't show the same concern for atrocities committed by nations, witness the relentless bombing of North Vietnam by United States aircraft.

The systematic destruction of that tiny nation and her people is continuing night and day, yet few voices are raised in protest either at home or abroad.

The "civilized world" lives under a double standard which condemns atrocities committed by individuals but condones the same atrocities when they are committed in the name of God and Country.

If we weep with the families of the Israeli athletes murdered at Munich, we should also weep with the families of all the innocent victims of the Vietnam war.

The pollsters, almost to a man, have President Richard Nixon winning the November general election hands down. Some of the political prognosticators even have him defeating Sen. George McGovern five-to-one.

It's enough to make you wonder whom the pollsters are polling.

From here it looks as though it is going to be a mighty close election—one that might even go to McGovern unless the President gets humping.

If Nixon is defeated it will be because he has been lulled into complacency by the press, just as Tom Dewey was in 1948.

You'll recall that in that, far

Duerr Wins Accolade From Paul

Dear Bob Clock:

I remember with pleasure some of your interesting, provocative and liberal "Clockwise" columns in the Petoskey News-Review. So, naturally, I am a bit disappointed in your treatment or lack of it, of a very interesting candidate for the 103rd district representative's seat.

I allude to Tony Duerr from the city of Charlevoix who has been running a quiet, intelligent and unemotional campaign. In view of the fact that Tony is from your own city of Charlevoix, whether or not from the party of your persuasion, it seems he would deserve as much coverage as Ralph Ostling or the Friske brothers.

Only met Tony Duerr less than three months ago. Since that time I have heard him speak several times and field questions concerning his district and the issues facing the voters with intelligence and acumen.

He comes to the political field well qualified with a B.A. in Political Science and will have a degree in law in time for his victory in November. Tony is worth the consideration of every voter in his district and especially of those within his own city and county.

Sincerely,
Marty Paul

An Open Letter to Mr. Herbert Friske and Mrs. Lorraine Hoffman:

Please spend a moment rereading Representative Friske's remarks from the Aug. 30 edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

"A discussion of debate is always welcomed by a Birch, but must be conducted from an intellectual level, not from the gutter level of a smear." As a supporter of both Tony Duerr and Senator George McGovern, I take strong exception to Herbert Friske's smear against these men. While those of us who back him appreciate Mr. Friske's comment that Tony would be a more efficient administrator, we hope that voters who wish to be better informed before November will take the time to learn more about the candidates.

Having been friends with Rodney Parker's family for years in Lake City, I was appalled by Mrs. Hoffman's attack on his integrity. It is deplorable that the issues cannot be discussed, when there are so many important decisions to be made by the people we elect.

Please, Rep. Friske, help us raise the level of this campaign.

Very truly,
Janis E. Dietrich

My Neighbors

"Where these the only seats you could get?—I hope, you realize we'll be the last ones out of the place!"

At the completion of the meal, Pat went to the restroom thus giving me a chance to explain her conduct to the children. It had been quite a dinner... Six courses, appetizers, soup, salad, stuffed pancakes, the main course, dessert and coffee. Notice that salad was number three. The idea is to eat one course at a time, with the waiter removing the remains of the previous course before bringing the next one.

Pat's problem is that she wants to keep her salad throughout the entire dinner and she is afraid the hired help doesn't understand this. At some point in her early childhood she was badly scarred by a grumpy waitress. Little Pat's chopped garnish with French dressing disappeared half eaten, and then the grime rib never materialized.

Polls Underestimate Sen. McGovern's Appeal of day, the newspapers had all but conceded the defeat of President Harry S. Truman weeks before the election. Truman had been elevated to the presidency by the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt and was too busy getting the country back on its feet after World War II to do much campaigning.

Tom Dewey, a Republican, was a formidable opponent for the tired "little mule-skinner" from Missouri. Suave and well-spoken, Dewey was so certain he had the election in the bag that he even eased up on his own campaign in the final days.

The Chicago Tribune was so sure of Dewey's victory that the election night edition was headlined: "Dewey Wins by Landslide."

So don't underestimate George McGovern. He has a young and able campaign staff. His platform, while sometimes shaky, has broad appeal. And even his Republican opponents would be the last to deny the senator's sincere desire lead the country out of the morass of war and inflation that it has wallowed in for the past decade.

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Who would have thought 25 years ago that a railroad could attract passengers by charging 20 cents a mile?

The old rate, as you'll recall, ran around three cents a mile and a lot of us thought that was pretty steep.

But for the past two summers the Boyne City Railroad has been charging excursionists $2.50 a head for the 12-mile round trip between Boyne City and Boyne Falls, and the company doesn't seem to be waiting for passengers.

The Clocks took the trip on Labor Day and discovered the journey is well worth the tariff. Kids travel for $1.50 and babies in arms are free.

What makes the operation successful is the fact that passenger travel by rail is practically a thing of the past, particularly in the United States. Judy, who has spent more than 30 summers on this fast-moving planet, had never been on a train. The same, of course, goes for the kids.

Boarding the train at Boyne City was like stepping into the past, not the American past but the British past. The company has purchased a British-made steam locomotive called the Flying Duchess and three British railroad coaches. Unlike most of their American cousins, the British coaches are divided into compartments of six seats each, three on each side facing each other. The aisle runs down one side of the car, not down the middle. Glass sliding doors separate the compartments from the aisleway. Real fancy.

When you climb aboard you half expect to find Agatha Christie or Somerset Maugham closeted in one of the compartments, heading for St. Mary Mead or holidays in Blackpool.

The round trip takes one hour and 40 minutes, so you can be sure the Flying Duchess isn't out to break any speed records.

The train travels down the Boyne River Valley, past the sites of former logging camps and through long tunnels of leafy sugar maples.

Since none of the crossings have electric warning lights, an automobile with a red guardrail on top driven by "Uncle George" goes along, stopping traffic whenever the Flying Duchess is about to cross M-75 or US-131.

Riders are treated to a magnificent view of Boyne Mountain Lodge and Everett Kirchner's new condominiums just west of the ski resort.

They also get to cross the sparkling Boyne River on a genuine railroad bridge just before the train reaches Boyne Falls.

There also is the pleasant "wood-dot" of the steam whistle when the train approaches a crossing.

One of my favorite railroad trips when I was a kid was between Detroit and Wixom, Mich., on the shores of Georgian Bay, where my mother's folks lived. The total distance covered was only about 250 miles, but the trip took from 10 p.m. until 2 p.m., meaning we averaged only 16 miles per hour.

Of course, there was a two-hour crossing of the Detroit River on railroad ferry and a four-hour stop-over in London, Ont., in the middle of the night. But no one complained because few people were in a hurry.

The Canadian National Railroad used, its oldest engines and coaches for the run north of London, which was the most exciting part of the trip. The coaches were lit by swaying kerosene lamps suspended from the ceiling and, the car which ran from Park Head, Ont., into Wixom actually was heated by a wood stove.

The train stopped at every one-horse, town along the line and most of the passengers disembarked to stretch their legs on the platform and perhaps have a slice of raisin pie—at the station lunch counter.

But you really didn't have to leave the train for meals. Few people traveled in those days without packing a picnic basket with enough provender to carry them through to their destination. And occasionally a huckster would come through the cars selling apples and candy bars.

But passenger trains don't go into Wixom any more. The station has been moved from its old location alongside the tracks and is now a museum.

And the passenger train, in truth, really isn't needed, because you can drive from Detroit to Wixom in about four hours, if you don't waste any time in the London Railroad depot.

That's why I am happy that the Boyne City Railroad has seen fit to preserve something out of our railroading past. The trip to Boyne Falls and back is a nostalgic visit to a time when the pace of living was a lot slower and, for my money, a whole lot more pleasant.

When you climb aboard you half expect to find Agatha Christie or Somerset Maugham closeted in one of

By Stew Potts

Sometimes you read frightening things in recipes. The other day I was glancing through the gourmet sections of one of the downstate newspapers when my eye landed on a recipe for chop suey, one of my favorite Chinese concoctions. All of the regulation ingredients were included — onions, celery, bean sprouts — but the writer suggested cooking them in "several cups of water."

Now the best way to ruin a fine pot of chop suey is cooking the vegetables in too much water. You should try to get by with as little as possible, since the vegetables themselves supply plenty of juice once they start cooking.

Since Chinese restaurants are few and far between in the Charlevoix area, the Potts family has come up with the following recipe for chop suey that will serve four hungry people.

CHOP SUEY
3 large onions, sliced
3 stalks of celery, sliced.
1/4 green pepper, sliced.
1 cup leftover roast beef or pork.
1 cup (or less) water.
1 T. pan drippings.
1/4 t. sugar.
2 T. corn starch
Salt and soy sauce to taste.
Mushrooms, water chestnuts, bean sprouts optional.

Slice the onions, celery and green pepper into big, bold chunks and bring them to a boil using as little water as necessary. Let them simmer for 10 minutes until they are tender but not mushy. Chinese vegetables should remain as crisp as possible. Add bean sprouts (well rinsed and drained) and mushrooms or water chestnuts.

When pot comes to boil again, simmer two or three minutes before adding meat chunks and drippings. The meat must go in last or it will start to fall apart.

When meat is thoroughly warmed, taste broth and correct seasoning. Soy sauce is plenty salty and may provide all the salt you need. If not, add a little from the shaker. Also add one-half teaspoon sugar to bring out the flavor of the individual vegetables.

For a rich, dark brown chop suey, add one tablespoon or more brown molasses.

Now for thickening. Dissolve the cornstarch in about one-quarter cup water and add slowly to chop suey mixture. When the gravy reaches the consistency you prefer, stop pouring.

Serve over boiled rice or fried noodles. If you really want to gild the lily, serve over rice and sprinkle noodles on top.

DOUBLE BOILER RICE
1 cup rice
1 1/2 cups water.
Scant teaspoon salt.
Bring water to boil in top of double boiler over direct heat. Add butter and salt. Add rice slowly and stir for several minutes until kernels begin to swell. Cover and continue cooking over hot water for 20 to 30 minutes. Do not remove cover until ready to serve. Rice can cook for an hour or longer using this method, with any adverse effects. The kernels never become glued together.

Serve chop suey, rice and noodles in separate serving dishes. Have a crust of soy sauce on the table and a basket of hard rolls and butter.

And be sure to serve a pot of green or cooling tea.

Alpine Pork Platter:

Germanic Treat For Brisk October

Harvest time's bounty is a summons for feasting! Every autumn after gathering the crops, people, with pride in their achievement, have rejoiced with gusto and merry-making. This centuries-old celebration became "Oktoberfest" to Germanic peoples.

Since pork becomes more plentiful in the fall, hams, suckling pigs and loins were chosen for the banquet table. Thus today, the occasion is known as "Oktoberfest."

It's the perfect time to take advantage of the increasingly better buys presented by pork. A smoked pork shoulder roll with potatoes, onions and sauerkraut will bring harvest tradition to your table in a delicious manner.

ALPINE SMOKED PORK PLATTER
Place boneless smoked pork shoulder roll (approximately 2 1/2 pounds) in Dutch oven and add just enough water to cover meat. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour and 30 minutes. Remove meat from pan and pour off all but 2 cups of the liquid. Add 4 medium-sized potatoes, pared and halved and 3 small onions, quartered. Add 1 can (27 ounces) sauerkraut, 1 teaspoon caraway seed and 1/4 teaspoon pepper and continue cooking 10 minutes or until meat and vegetables are done.

THE WARNER kids all had birthdays in August. Kent Christopher was six Aug. 27, Matthew Michael was one Aug. 6 and Michelle Marie was 9 Aug. 4. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Warner of Charlevoix. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jasper S. Warner and Edward C. Heise of Charlevoix. Mrs. Ralph Klooster their maternal grandmother.

Ironton

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Blanton and two children have returned here to make their home after spending several months near Los Angeles, Calif., and are presently guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kroll.

They also toured the Botanical Gardens, and the underground Shopping Center where one can find anything. Montreal is a beautiful City with flowers everywhere and no delis showing anywhere. Expo '72 was a disappointment. Because of a labor strike from May through July, few pavilions were open. Only a few men were seen working on the grounds, preparing the flower beds for next year. Hoping for better summer weather and a successful Expo '73.

Dear Customer:

We have always tried to personally serve you in the most efficient and economical ways.

Many years ago we were one of the first to give stamps. You, our valued customers, wanted stamps and we were happy to give them to you.

But things change over the years. As inflation has steadily eroded the dollar, stamps began to look less and less attractive.

This change will take effect September 18th. However, in all fairness to you our valued customers; we will give you a two week period to finish your books: During the week of September 18th and September 25th you will receive "Double Stamps" on all purchases any day of the week with the newspaper coupon. This means you can get Double Stamps any day of the week with the newspaper coupon.

We pledge that this change will help you, our customers, fight inflation thru lower prices.

Ruppe Favors Hike In Benefits

Cong. Philip Ruppe has asked his colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to accept a Senate bill giving increased education benefits to Vietnam veterans.

Ruppe said that there had been some confusion about the G.I. Bill among Northern Michigan veterans since the House-passed version differs substantially from a recently approved Senate bill. Those differences are presently being taken up in a House-Senate Conference.

Under the House bill, a single veteran with no dependents would receive a 14 percent increase in educational assistance, from $175 monthly to $200. Under the Senate legislation, the amount will be increased from $175 to $250 per month. Also included in the Senate version is a provision that would guarantee an advance payment of the Vietnam veteran's monthly assistance allowance at the start of the school term and on the first of each following month.

"Frankly I believe that the Senate bill is more responsive to the realistic needs of today's veterans," the Michigan Congressman commented. "Taking into account the rising cost of obtaining an education and the decreased value of the dollar since World War II, an increase in educational benefits to $250 would establish a level of parity with the benefits that World War II veterans received. In addition, I strongly favor the Senate

We make your home a nicer place to live

It's 1973, and Chevrolet roofs are opening, seats are swiveling, bumpers are retracting, hatches are flipping up.

Did you ever have so much to talk about that you didn't know what to say first?

We're happy to report that's us for 1973. But since everything must begin somewhere...

Isn't it romantic?

You see that rectangle beaming at you from above? That's a moon-roof. Not to be confused with a sunroof. (Although many people will undoubtedly be caught using it like one.) A power roof is available on Chevelle and Monte Carlo; a manual one on Nova.

Bumpers are exciting?

This year's are something to get stirred up about. One of our new bumpers, for example, is built around twin hydraulic cylinders. So on minor impact, the whole system retracts to cushion the shock.

It's standard on all big Chevrolet, Chevelle and Monte Carlo models. Nineteen different models to choose from.

New Malibu Convertible Hardtop Coupe.

New Nova Hatchback Coupe.

Look what we hatched

You know us for our little Vega Hatchback. Now dependable Nova has one. Which literally makes it half trunk with the backseat down. It's a feature as practical as Nova itself.

We've been thinking about your legs

One of the few things people asked us to improve in our popular Chevelle was leg room in the backseat. Well, your knees will be pleased with the '73s. There's almost 3 1/2 more inches in the sedans.

So what else is new

Naturally this is only a taste of what's new for '73.

Among other things, we're introducing larger gas tanks for longer cruising range, a new Exhaust Gas Recirculation system, a hatchback for wagons, and a highly refined flow-through power ventilation system.

Plus a reading light for front seat passengers, improved suspension systems, engines that give you performance combined with gas economy, reclining seats and scores of dramatic styling changes.

We invite you to see it all at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Building a better way to see the U.S.A.

Jordan, was assessed $125 and sentenced to three days in jail on charges of eluding police, speeding and operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended.

Arraignment of Roger Rebec, 17, East Jordan, and Gary Roberts, 20, East Jordan, on charges of delivery of marijuana was postponed to allow them time to secure counsel. They posted bonds of $1,500 each.

Arraignment of Steven Hawkins, 18, Boyne City, on a charge of possession of stolen property was postponed to a later date to allow the defendant time to secure counsel.

A charge of breaking and entering lodged against Allen Lee Murphy, 17, East Jordan, was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

Scion of Pioneer Family Seeks Votes

Edward H. Fenlon, 68, judge of the 33rd Judicial Circuit for 20 years, has formally announced his candidacy for another term. He will oppose Charlevoix-Emmet District Judge W. Richard Smith in the Nov. 7 general election.

The 33rd Judicial Circuit formerly covered Mackinac, Emmet and Cheboygan counties. Beginning Jan. 1, however, Charlevoix County will replace Cheboygan County in the circuit. Charlevoix formerly was in the Grand Traverse, Antrim and Leelanau circuit.

Born in St. Ignace, Judge Fenlon is the grandson of Hugh McLaughlin, the first sheriff of Mackinac County when the sheriff's office was located in St. Ignace.

After graduating from Notre Dame University he was elected to the Michigan Legislature from Mackinac and Emmet counties. He was one of the youngest legislators ever to serve in the house.

After six years in Lansing, Judge Fenlon served as prosecuting attorney for Mackinac County and as city attorney for St. Ignace and Mackinac Island for six more years.

From 1933 to 1951, he was engaged in private law practice with offices in St. Ignace, Detroit and Washington, D. C., where he was admitted and practiced before the United States Supreme Court.

At the start of his tenure in circuit court, Judge Fenlon instituted a probation system whereby both men and women convicted of felonies have successfully completed terms of probation, maintained their place in society and supported themselves and their families in addition to paying probation costs.

However, he says he has not hesitated to commit criminals to state prison when they were dangerous to society or had a history of repeated criminal conduct.

He also instituted a pretrial court procedure several years before such procedures were required by the Supreme Court. Pretrial conferences by the parties and their attorneys are conducted in the presence of the judge. They serve to narrow the issues, allow for discovery depositions to be taken of witnesses prior to trial, seek agreement on admissions and in general seek the settlement of the pending lawsuit.

Judge Fenlon says such pretrial procedures not only have saved time for the parties, their attorneys and the court but also have reduced the number of days of court time required for the disposition of lawsuits and saved taxpayers' dollars in juror fees not called.

In addition to his work in the 33rd Circuit, Judge Fenlon has been assigned over the years to work in circuits in Grand Rapids, Lansing, Saginaw and Charlevoix. About one month each year he works in the Wayne County Circuit and in Detroit Recorder's Court.

He also has been chosen to sit on the Michigan Court of Appeals, hearing cases and writing opinions.

He is a member of the Standard Jury Instructions Committee appointed by the state Supreme Court, the Michigan Trial Lawyers

OIL HELPS MICHIGAN SCHOOLS MAKE THE GRADE

Our schools use hundreds of things that are made from oil: desk tops and fiberglass seats, educational films, tapes and records, paint, ink... even the erasers on pencils.

But most of all, schools use energy. For heat, light and transportation. 75% of all our energy comes from oil and natural gas (including 40% of our electricity).

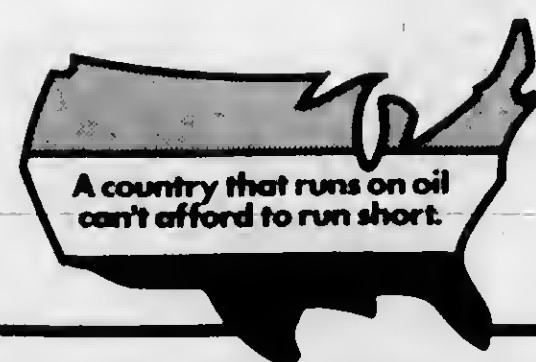

But today, we're using these petroleum fuels faster than we are finding them. That's why America faces an Energy Gap.

We're your local oil companies. Working to bridge the growing Energy Gap. Because it's as simple as A-B-C... a country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

Herbert Friske Could Prove Boon to Dems

The entry of Herbert Friske into the 103rd District House of Representatives race could be just the ticket to turn the election over to Democrat Charles A. "Tony" Duerr of Charlevoix.

Herbert Friske, you'll recall, is the brother of incumbent Rep. Richard Friske who was defeated by Republican Ralph Ostling of Roscommon for the GOP nod in the 103rd District.

In the meantime, brother Herbert has joined the House race as an Independent.

Here is how Duerr's backers figure that Herbert Friske's name on the ballot will help their candidate:

1. A heavy voting turnout would be about 30,000 votes in the district.
2. Due to redistricting, vote tallies for state representative in 1970 are meaningless because the 1972 districts are completely changed. However, votes for the office of Secretary of State in the precincts that now make up the 103rd district are available. In 1970, Democrat Richard Austin received 11,226 votes in what is now the 103rd District. These were 41 percent of the total vote. East and can be considered solid Democratic votes.

3. A Democratic candidate for the state House seat, concentrating a vigorous campaign in the district, in a Presidential year, should improve on the 1970 Austin count. At least 12,000 votes for "Tony" Duerr, or 40 percent of the total, is a conservative estimate.

4. This leaves a possible 18,000 votes to be divided between the other two candidates, or 60 percent of the total.

5. It is probable that the dedicated people who voted for Richard Friske in August will vote for his brother Herbert in November. Richard got 6,776 votes in the primary. Herbert's vote is unlikely to be substantially greater or less. Thus, approximately 23 percent of the total vote will go to the AIP candidate.

6. This leaves Republican Ralph Ostling with 37 percent of the total vote or 11,100 out of a possible 30,000.

Whether or not you buy the logic of the Duerr camp, Herbert Friske's entry into the race certainly should give Republican Ostling a run for his money.

Leftists Do Disservice to The Country

Sept. 13, 1972

To the Editor,
Charlevoix Courier

I concur with your editorial of Sept. 13, 1972, "If we weep for the Israelis, why not for Vietnamese?" The article makes sense up to the fifth paragraph. There you, like many liberal left-leaning writers, fail to castigate the Viet Cong for any destruction and atrocities.

You do your country a disservice by writing in this biased manner.

Very truly yours,

William Streng

Clockwise Green Tomatoes

By BOB CLOCK

How do you make bushels of green tomatoes ripen before the first snow? That is one of the problems most local gardeners are faced with this "year of the crazy summer."

I had my tomatoes planted before Memorial Day, like I was supposed to do according to the Almanac. And good, strapping plants they were, too, right from the greenhouse of Albert Lehman across the alley.

They took off and have been lush and green all summer, responding marvelously to our every-other-day rainstorms.

When it came time to blossom, the blossoms appeared but they wouldn't "set," as they say in the business. No little green tomatoes formed until late August.

Now I have plenty of green tomatoes, but I guess it's too late in the season for them to ripen. There they sit, growing bigger every day, but not a splash of red on any of them.

Albert Lehman thinks they'd do better if I'd cut out some of the lush plant growth and let them get a little sun. But I could no more cut those healthy vines than I could cut off my right arm.

The Lehmans, needless to say, don't share my problem. They have another problem. Their vines began to die in mid-summer and are now almost gone. But they left an abundance of tomatoes which are happily ripening on the ground.

And, mind you, our gardens are located less than a tomato's throw from each other. Bert thinks his plants were infected with something he calls

"mosaic," which resulted in the early die-off. But I wouldn't knock it. At least he has tomatoes to eat and I don't.

All in all, it has been a strange year in the Clocks' Back Forty.

Take green onions, for example. I planted two 12-foot rows. But by the time I finished planting the second row the first row was ready to pick.

It also was a good year for raspberries. Bert Lehman gave us some plants early in the season but said we wouldn't have any raspberries this year. We have been eating raspberries off our plants all summer.

It also has been a good year for sweet corn. I put in only one 12-foot row, but we have had plenty of corn. The ears are as big as cucumbers and the kernels are large, tender and sweet. And it's all corn. The cobs aren't any bigger around than lead pencils.

But other crops have been a complete wash-out. To date our seven pepper plants have produced only two peppers and they're still too small to pick.

Our cucumbers also have been a fizzle. A rabbit took care of some of the young plants. But you'd think those remaining would produce more than one cucumber, and that one cucumber is only as big as my little finger. Last summer we had bushels of cucumbers and crocks full of briney dill pickles by this time in September.

The rabbit also got into our zucchini, but I noticed one small squash hiding under a big leaf the other day. We might have it for Thanksgiving.

All of which makes me wonder why the ancient Indians planted their gardens in northern Michigan, traveling all the way from Chicago in canoes to do so.

On second thought, maybe that's why they picked this chill, wind-swept land to do their gardening. It would be easier to paddle back to Chicago with an empty canoe than with one groaning with fresh vegetables.

Obituary Mathews

Services for Mrs. Laura B. (Courtade) Mathews, 69, retired Charlevoix high school teacher who died unexpectedly at her home here early Sunday, will be held at the Smith Funeral Home at Kingsley at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Her nephews, the Rev. Gordon Terpening of Sand Lake and the Rev. Stanley Hayes of Cedar Springs, will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery at Kingsley.

A prayer service was held at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Born in Albert County, Colo., Dec. 22, 1902, the former Laura B. Voice came to Kingsley in 1910. She was a graduate of Kingsley High School, attended County Normal School at Traverse City and received her degree from Western Michigan University.

She taught at rural schools in Grand Traverse and Kalkaska counties and later at high schools at Fife Lake, South Boardman and the Northport before coming to

Walter Thorsen of East Jordan, chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, said he knew farmers in both Charlevoix and Antrim counties who had purchased property along the stream to solve a watering problem. He said, "You may have problems if you do not give consideration to these people."

Before the hearing ended, Doehne read numerous letters and presented others as part of the record. All but a few of these were in favor of the proposed management plan.

Smith advised those present that the DNR Commission would be meeting in Lansing Thursday, Oct. 12, and that anyone wishing to appear before the group could make arrangements to do so.

He said that information gathered at the hearing would be considered before a final determination is made.

Redeker Resigns From Bank

insignificant time "in view of our present management structure" and offered to remain in his post for "a reasonable time."

The board accepted his offer.

A native of Waupun, Wis., Redeker graduated from Waupun High School in 1952 and received his B.A. from Marquette University in 1956. He worked for Michigan Bell in Grand Rapids for three months before entering the Army in September of 1957.

After a two-year hitch, including 17 months in Germany, Redeker returned to Michigan Bell and worked there until he went with the Old Kent Bank and Trust Co. in 1960 as a trainee. He was named a branch manager at age 26, making him one of the youngest branch managers in the state.

In May of 1965 he joined the Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington as vice president and served in that capacity until moving to Charlevoix in November of 1967 as vice president of the old Charlevoix State Savings Bank. He was named executive vice president in 1968 and president the following year.

During his tenure, the name of the bank was changed from the Charlevoix State Savings Bank to the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Redeker is gratified that he is leaving at a time when the bank has never been in better shape. During his association with the bank, assets have climbed from $3.1 million to $7.5 million; deposits have risen from $2 million to $6.4 million; and earnings are up substantially.

Loans to members of the community have increased from less than $1 million to more than $4 million. When Redeker came to Charlevoix, the bank was only 30 percent "loaned out." Today the figure stands at 65 percent and has been as high as 78 percent.

He also negotiated a five-for-one stock split, which has increased the number of stockholders from 21 to about 35.

Bank reserves have grown from $20,000 in 1968 to $264,000 last year.

Redeker was married in 1957 to the former Elsie Vand Zande of Waupun. They have four children: Lisa, 12; Jodi, 10; Cara, 6; and Allison, eight months.

In addition to his banking duties, Redeker has served on the Charlevoix Board of Education for four years, including one year as vice president and two years as president. He also has been secretary of the Charlevoix Lions Club and is a member of the advisory committee to raise funds for intensive and coronary care units at Charlevoix Hospital.

A member of the Community Reformed Church, he has served on the consistory for three years as vice president and is chairman of the Petoskey Area Youth for Christ.

In 1970, Redeker was listed in "Outstanding Young Men of America."

Richard Fochtman Named To Succeed Westenbroek Wharf Permit Is Denied Again

The City Council Monday night appointed Richard Fochtman as First Ward alderman to fill the unexpired term of Alderman Roger Westenbroek who resigned two weeks ago.

Fochtman is co-owner of the Charlevoix Oil Co. with his brother, William, former alderman and mayor.

The appointment was proposed by Second Ward Alderman Robert Gill and was approved unanimously by the three other aldermen present, Robert Timms, Clifton Sundberg and Gerald Selph. First Ward Alderman Sam Supernaw was absent.

Fochtman's appointment was the last action on the agenda, which saw a building permit for Phase II of the Wharf condominium turned down for the third time.

Alderman Sundberg objected to the proposed Round Lake structure on grounds that it would be so high that residents on the Belvedere bluff will not be able to see Round Lake. Architect Jack Begrow said the building could be lowered two feet, although he said it would spoil the aesthetic effect.

Alderman Timms moved that the permit be granted for 16 units, with two nine feet by 20 feet parking spaces per unit. Alderman Gill voted with Timms, with Alderman Sundberg and Selph voting against issuance of the permit. Mayor Edward Hansen broke the tie with a "no" vote.

Hansen explained that he would like to have state approval of a plan to handle water run-off from the condominium parking lot. He also said he would like reassurance that the building will be structurally sound. He said the permit would be considered as subsequent meeting.

The rejection came as a surprise to Begrow and Tom Ilin, president of Timberline, Inc., the developer, who claim they have met all the city's requirements for multiple-family dwellings.

Tom Duke, who is heading up a committee to study and recommend changes to the city's multiple family dwelling code, says he will be ready to present his report at the next council meeting.

In other business the council:

—Learned that the city is no longer a defendant in a lawsuit filed by a downstate yachtman who claims his wife was injured in a fall when the U.S. 31 bridge failed to open fast enough for his craft. The state Highway Department remains a defendant. The suit seeks $5,200 for injuries sustained.

—Referred to the police conference three bids for a new police car, with trade-in of a 1970 Oldsmobile. The Erber Auto bid was $2,646 for a Ford. Charlevoix Oil submitted bids for a Chevrolet, $3,336, and a Buick, $3,060.

—Awarded a bid for the paving of Division St. to Hodgkiss and Douma of Petoskey for $7,706.

—Awarded a bid for a spring scraper, installed, to the Hyde Equipment Co. for $3,172.

—Agreed to purchase 25 parking meters a year for five years from the Heid Co.

Lecture on Meditation Slated Here Wednesday

Tired? Worn out? Cranky with your co-workers and your family? Can't accomplish all you set out to do in a day?

Tim Gautherat and Maureen Stern of the International Meditation Society (IMS), a Los Angeles-headquartered nonprofit group formed to teach the technique, more than 150,000 Americans have started meditating, with an average of 5,000 beginning each month. As recently as 1965, the group had trained only 200 meditators.

Under the TM program, hurried housewives, busy executives and distraught students set aside two 15 or 20 minute blocks of time each day to do their meditating, using a formula prescribed by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. Blood pressure drops, the heart slows and oxygen consumption nosedives.

Gautherat and Miss Stern claim TM:

- Improves awareness.
- Develops creative intelligence.
- Improves clarity of perception.
- Provides deep rest as a basis for dynamic action.

Walter Ward Named Irish Yard Manager

David Irish, president of the Irish Boat Shop, Inc., of Harbor Springs and Charlevoix, has announced the appointment of Walter M. Ward of Boyne City as general manager of the firm's new and expanding yard at Charlevoix.

Assisting Ward in the operation of the yard and store will be Cliff Biddick, yard operations manager; Mei Hennud, mechanical supervisor; and Rod Stebbins, sales manager.

Irish said Ward has an excellent background to qualify him for his new duties.

"He had had considerable experience as crew and skipper in a number of racing and cruising sailboats," Irish said. "In addition he has previously been associated with the former Marquette Marina on Lake Charlevoix and has attended training schools at Evinrude."

"We are sure our customers, both old and new, will be pleased with Walter's personal interest in their boating problems," Irish added.

To meet the increasing demand for boating facilities in the area, the Charlevoix Yard has just completed a 17,500 square foot addition to indoor storage building and is about to begin a dredging program to enlarge the harbor and dock facilities.

A "Travelift" hoist enables the firm to handle boats up to 30 tons and 80 feet in length, including sailboats with their masts standing.

A 15,000 pound capacity fork lift truck fitted with extra long forks enables the yard to offer inside summer rack storage for power boats up to 24-feet long.

Irish says the firm owns sufficient land at the Lake Charlevoix location to allow for further expansion as needed.

GOP Economist Cites Growth Under Nixon

About 60 Republicans from Charlevoix and Emmet counties turned out at Petoskey High School last Thursday night to hear John Byington of the U.S. Department of Commerce tell why President Richard Nixon should be returned to office in November.

Byington credited Nixon with giving the country new hope after the riots of 1967 and 1968.

"The question back then was whether or not we would survive as a nation," Byington said.

Since then, he said the nation has witnessed unprecedented growth under President Nixon, with Gross National Product gains of from $75 to $100 billion a year. "Just one year's growth," he said, "equals the entire economy of Italy."

Although he admitted that unemployment is high, he said there are still five million more people working today in the United States than there were in 1968. He said the labor force under Nixon has increased from 77 million to 82 million.

Furthermore, he said that most of the unemployed are teenagers.

"Only 3.4 percent of the unemployed are heads of families," he asserted.

"He also said that inflation isn't as bad as it seems.

"In 1968, the inflation rate was 6.2 percent, the highest among all major industrial nations. Today the rate is less than three percent, the lowest of any industrial nation," he claimed.

He also rapped Democratic claims that America's wealthy make use of virtually limitless tax loopholes.

"There ain't no such thing," he said. "But there are economic incentives, depletion allowances and foreign tax credits which are designed to help the community stimulate - not impoverish."

He was sharply critical of Sen. George McGovern's economic policies.

"Anyone who has studied first grade arithmetic will tell you that they just won't work," he said.

He said voters must choose between Nixon's "work ethic" or McGovern's "welfare ethic."

The Nixon rally was organized by Art Rouse of Boyne City. Sen. Robert Davis was master of ceremonies.

By BOB CLOCK

When I was a kid I was the victim of a rare disease called "The Earache."

Several times each winter, little Bobby was laid low with scorching infections of the ear drums on both sides that kept me out of school for weeks at a time. No sooner would one ear clear up, then the other would become infected.

And so it went, year after year. The family doctor assured my folks that such ear problems were an affliction of the very young. He explained that as I grew older, the plumbing in my face would change and I would no longer have the problem.

The doctor should have kept his prognosis in his little black bag, because little Bobby at 44 is still the victim of The Earache. True, earaches don't come as frequently as they once did, but when they do the excruciating pain always sends me spinning backward in time to my childhood.

Although we paid a retainer to the aforementioned family doctor, both my mother and father considered themselves fairly adept in the treatment of childhood ailments.

My father's treatment for earache was cigar smoke. Whenever the pain in my ear became unbearable, he would light up a stogie and gently blow smoke in my ear. I don't know whether it helped, but I always felt a little better after his unusual ministrations.

Ma was a firm believer in balms and unguents, so long as they were warm. I hesitate to think how many different lukewarm liquids she dribbled in my ears over the years—glycerine, fish oil, peroxide—you name it. They seemed to help a little, but not much, and I think their chief benefit was psychological. Someone cared. They couldn't have done too much harm, because I have two ears and they are still sensitive enough to hurt awfully when The Earache arrives, as it did last week.

Ma also favored a number of indirect approaches. She firmly believed that the air of sick room would be purified if a little wad of string were set afire and allowed to smoulder in a jar lid near the suffering patient.

To this day I can't abide the burning string.

She also believed that Lysol would take care of any bugs the string missed. She used to soak little bits of cotton in that powerful antiseptic and pin them on the window curtains, laboring under the assumption that bugs were attracted to light. I would envision throngs of happy germs winging toward the window, only to be knocked silly by the Lysol fumes.

If you were really sick she would drop blankets over the entire bedstead to form a tent. Then inside the tent she sneak a little tin of burning sulphur, which I always associated with burning brimstone. It stung the eyes and scorched the lungs and sure made you want to get better in a hurry.

When my earaches reached the point of no return, Ma would summon the doctor who usually made his house calls late in the afternoon. I would grow rigid when I heard his heavy footfalls on the stairs, and by the time he reached the bedroom I was in a state of near panic. He would fight his way through clouds banks of burning string and sulphur and would sit on the edge of the bed, trying to buy me up with banter and little jokes.

His bedside manner might have been delightful, but it didn't work on me because I knew what was coming.

After examining my ear with a little

More Music 'Treasures' In Store

Dear Editor:

Beginning in September, 1972, we began a series of music appreciation workshops for young people on a voluntary basis, which we entitled "A Treasure Hunt Into The World of Music."

One Sunday afternoon of each month through April, we conducted one of these programs at This Ole House in Conway.

Without the help of other kindly folks our series would not have been possible.

We extend our sincere appreciation to one and all.

Thank you very much,
Charlotte Ross, Oden
Mrs. Albert Schaller, Conway

P.S. We will resume our "Treasure Hunt Into The World of Music" beginning in October and continuing through April of 1973. Dates will be announced later. Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Johnson have generously donated the premises of This Ole House for our series since again.

Dear Customer:

We have always tried to personally serve you in the most efficient and economical ways.

Many years ago we were one of the first to give stamps. You, our valued customers, wanted stamps and we were happy to give them to you.

But things change over the years. As inflation has steadily eroded the dollar, stamps began to look less and less attractive.

Public opinion surveys have shown that most homemakers (eight out of ten) said they would rather have lower prices instead of stamps.

So, in the best interest of our customers, Oleson's Stores in Cadillac and Charlevoix will discontinue giving stamps and pass the savings on to you thru lower prices.

This change will take effect Sept. 30th. AFTER THAT DATE WE WILL BE UNABLE TO REDEEM GOLD BOND STAMP BOOKS. PLEASE REDEEM YOUR BOOKS HERE BY SAT. SEPT. 30th. After that date you may use either the Traverse City or Minneapolis Redemption Centers.

We pledge that this change will help you, our customers, fight inflation thru lower prices.

Dear Sir:

I enjoyed Jim Reus' article on the Pine River Channel excavations. This stirred some old memories of approximately 20 years ago, when some friends and I did some amateur digging on the south side of the channel, on the hillside overlooking Park Avenue Beach and between the present parking lot and Park Avenue.

There we found many arrowheads and some unidentifiable fragments. At the time, we were convinced they were authentic, but not much interest was shown by those we talked to. Although time has since scattered most of my old possessions, I am sure that they were, in fact, arrowheads and not just sharp rocks. They were of flint and about 1 1/2 to 2 inches in length.

Having followed Charlevoix's "progress" in recent years, I would not wish the beautiful pine-covered hill to be ruined by excavation. However, the information gained from the other site seems to be quite valuable and I feel an obligation to science to at least bring this to your attention.

Yours sincerely,

THE TOWNSHIP OF MARION ORDAINS:

Sec. 1: The following words or terms when used herein shall be deemed to have the meanings set forth below:

(a) The term "junk" shall include, without limitation, parts of machinery or motor vehicles, broken and unusable furniture, stoves, refrigerators or other appliances, remnants of wood, metal or any other cast-off material of any kind, whether or not the same could be put to any reasonable use, unless a permit has been applied for and granted, for good cause shown, by the township board, which permit shall be for a period of time not to exceed one year.

(b) The term "junk motor vehicles" shall include, without limitation, any vehicle which is not licensed for use upon the highways of the State of Michigan for a period in excess of 90 days, except operable motor vehicles used solely on a property owner's land, and shall also include, whether licensed or not, any motor vehicle which is inoperative for any reason for a period in excess of 90 days, provided:

1. That there is excepted from this definition unlicensed but operable vehicles which are (1) kept as the stock and trade of a regularly licensed and established new or used automobile dealer, or other motorized vehicle, or (2) operable motor vehicles used solely on a property owner's land.

2. That in the case of a motor vehicle repair garage, vehicles shall not be considered "junk motor vehicles" as above provided until such time as they remain upon the premises of said motor repair garage for a period in excess of 120 days and further provided that there may be an additional 30 day extension of time upon the presentation to the enforcing officer of sufficient and adequate written proof that said vehicle or vehicles are involved in insurance claims. Litigation or a similar matter and that additional time is required for settlement before such vehicles can be moved.

3. That for vehicles other than in the case of vehicles described in sub-section (b) 1 and 2 as above provided, an additional 45 day period may be granted after the expiration of the initial 90 day period upon good and sufficient written proof from the vehicle owner presented to the enforcing officer that said vehicle owner fully intends to complete repairs to make said vehicle operable within 45 days period of extension, and to further obtain a valid license for said vehicle.

4. That in the case of unlicensed vehicles, they shall not be considered "junk motor vehicles" if no more than 60 days have elapsed after 6 months has elapsed from the time of the expiration of a special 6 months license as provided under Section 9.1926 M. S. A., also being Section 257.226 of the Compiled Laws of 1948 as amended.

(c) The term "abandoned vehicle" shall include, without limitation, any vehicle which has remained on private property for a period of 48 continuous hours, or more, without the consent of the owner or occupant of the property, or for a period of 48 continuous hours or more after the consent of the owner or occupant of the property has been revoked.

(d) The term "blighted structure" shall include, without limitation any dwelling, garage, or outbuilding, or any factory, shop, store, office building, warehouse or any other structure or part of a structure which, because of fire, wind, or other natural disaster, or physical deterioration, is no longer habitable as a dwelling, nor useful for the purpose for which it may have been intended.

All persons who violate any of the provisions of this ordinance, whether as owner, occupant, lessee, agent, servant, or employee shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be equally liable as principals.

(g) The term "trash" and "rubbish" shall include any and all forms of debris not herein otherwise classified.

Sec. 2: It is hereby determined that the storage or accumulation of trash, rubbish, junk, junk vehicles, abandoned vehicles, building materials, and the maintenance of blighted structures upon any private property within the Township of Marion tends to result in blighted and deteriorated neighborhoods, the spread of vermin and disease, the increase in criminal activity, and therefore is contrary to the public peace, health, safety and general welfare of the community.

Sec. 3: It shall be unlawful for any person to store, or to permit the storage or accumulation of trash, rubbish, junk, junk vehicles or abandoned on any private property in the Township except within a completely enclosed building or in a location completely concealed from all public roads and in those cases in which an adjoining property owner has made a written complaint completely concealed from said property owner's adjoining residence, or upon the premises of a properly zoned licensed or approved junk dealer, junk buyer, dealer in used auto parts, dealer in second hand goods or junk.

Sec. 5: It shall be unlawful for any person to store or permit the storage or accumulation of building materials on any private property, except in a completely enclosed building or except where such building materials are part of stock in trade or business located on said property, or except when such materials are being used in the construction of a structure on the property, or in a location completely concealed from all public roads and in cases where an adjoining property owner has made a written complaint completely concealed from the adjoining residence of said property owner. In accordance with a valid building permit issued by the Township of Marion, and unless such construction is completed within a reasonable time.

Sec. 6: The Township Supervisor, Township Clerk, and the Township Building Inspector, acting jointly, may remove or cause to be removed any junk vehicles or abandoned vehicles, or parts of either, from any unenclosed private property after having notified, in writing, the owner or occupant of such property of his intention to do so at least 48 hours prior to such removal. Such notice shall be served personally upon the owner or occupant of property, if occupied, or may be posted in a conspicuous place upon vacant or unoccupied property. Such junk vehicles or abandoned vehicles, or parts of either shall be removed and disposed of in accordance with the law. Such removal by the designated enforcement official shall not excuse or relieve any person of the obligation imposed by this ordinance to keep his property free from storage or accumulation of junk vehicles or abandoned vehicles, or parts of either, nor from the penalties for violation thereof.

Sec. 7: Any violation of, or any failure to comply with the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by a fine not to exceed $100.00 Each 30 day period that violation of this Ordinance is continued or permitted to exist without compliance, after 30 days written notice of a violation has been given by any of the enforcing officials described in Sec. 6, shall constitute a separate offense punishable upon conviction in the manner prescribed in this Section.

Sec. 8: Should any section, clause or provision of this Ordinance be declared by any Court to be invalid, the same shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of such section of this Ordinance or any part thereof other than the part so declared to be invalid.

Sec. 9: Ordinance No. 7 and parts or ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed. This Ordinance shall become effective the 15 day of June, 1973.

What do you do with an old ham bone that still has some meat on it but not enough for a full-fledged family dinner?

You can give it to the dog, if you have one, or you can use it as the basis for a steaming pot of Navy bean soup, one of our favorites when the days grow nippy.

One thing about home-made Navy bean soup: You can't whip up a batch in 15 or 20 minutes. The beans must soak for hours. And they must cook for hours. So it's best to plan ahead.

If you're an early rise, you can make it in a day's time. If not, you had better plan to soak your beans the night before.

NAVY BEAN SOUP

1 cup dried navy beans.
1 ham bone, the meatier the better.
2 medium onions sliced fine.
1 carrot, grated.
6 cups water.
salt and pepper to taste.

Soak the beans overnight in a medium-sized bowl well covered with water. When you get ready to make your soup, pour off the water and rinse the beans well.

Place the beans in a heavy soup pot (with cover), add six cups of water and the ham bone. Trim the bone well to remove excess fat. Simmer beans and ham covered until the beans are tender, about two hours.

Remove the ham bone and skim excess grease from the pot liquor. If you are not going to have your soup right away, cook liquor and remove solidified fat in pieces. In any event, meat should be picked from bone and returned to the pot.

Add grated carrot and finely chopped onion to the stock and simmer about one-half hour longer until onions are tender. Carrot will disappear, but will give the soup its familiar orangish color.

Since most hams contain plenty of salt, don't season your soup until the final stage. It might taste "just right" without any extra salt. If not, add a little, along with a sprinkling of freshly ground pepper.

This recipe should serve six to eight people, depending on how well they like bean soup. It keeps well in the refrigerator and is better reheated if that's possible.

When Steve Lawson said "No more wrinkles in my shirts"...

his wife bought a Gas dryer.

The kind with a permanent press cycle. But what Steve and his wife discovered was that the permanent press cycle on their new Gas dryer saves them Gas and money, too. You see, it operates without Gas during the last 10 minutes (just fresh fluffing air, to make sure the wrinkles won't set). Saving Mrs. Lawson a lot of ironing.

With so many permanent press items in use today, you should consider replacing your old dryer with a modern Gas dryer with the permanent press cycle. You can see them at Gas appliance dealers or Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showrooms.

But, whether your dryer is old or new, here is how you can increase its operating efficiency:

1. Follow manufacturer's instructions on proper operation.
2. Keep the dryer's lint filter clean.
3. Avoid over-drying your clothing.
4. Keep the dryer's flue clear of lint accumulations.

THE '73 FORDS ARE HERE.

At 60 mph a '73 Ford LTD rode quieter than an airborne glider.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

A '73 Torino rode so smooth, a high wire artist kept balance on a road of 2x4's.

Chances are you won't try to balance yourself on top of your new Torino. But, when you're riding inside, you'll still appreciate Torino's refined suspension—because it helps cushion bumps, absorb road vibrations and reduce body sway. You feel solidly in control while you ride in comfort and luxury. The solid mid-size Torino. Smooth riding, strong and quiet.

'73 Pinto: When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of these reasons: A 1600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—labeled for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

THE 1973 PINTO WAGON (shown with square option, luggage rack, Deluxe Bumper Group and whitewall tires).

THE SOLID 1973 FORD TORINO BROUGHAM (shown with optional Deluxe Bumper Group, Convenience Group, deluxe wheel covers, front cornering lamps and whitewall tires).

September 18, 1972

Dear Customer:

We have always tried to personally serve you in the most efficient and economical ways.

Many years ago we were one of the first to give stamps. You, our valued customers, wanted stamps and we were happy to give them to you.

But things change over the years. As inflation has steadily eroded the dollar, stamps began to look less and less attractive.

This change will take effect September 18th. However, in all fairness to you our valued customers; we will give you a two week period to finish your books. During the week of September 18th and September 25th you will receive "Double Stamps" on all purchases any day of the week with the newspaper coupon. This means you can get Double Stamps any day of the week with the newspaper coupon.

We pledge that this change will help you, our customers, fight inflation thru lower prices.

Food Stamps Cost $6.4 Million in June

An estimated 66,108 low-income persons in Michigan received food assistance during June from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the State Department of Social Services, according to Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional administrator of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

This was an increase of 5,084 persons from May. The June total included an estimated 590,355 persons in 72 counties.

Charlevoix County On the Move

Computers Help Decide Where to Build or Buy

By J. Hilliard Shackford, President, Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors

The day of "seat-of-the-pants" judgments in deciding where to buy or construct an apartment building is becoming a thing of the past. Computer science has revealed in real estate, as in other industries, that there are better ways of arriving at a decision.

The basic factors have not changed: Is it good design, close to a trade area, proper rental level for potential tenants' income? Is land cost in proportion, financing attractive, building construction sound? What about competition, population trends, prospective zoning changes?

Compiling these and other facts that a prospective owner of an apartment should know to make a sound decision has become the service of companies formed just for that purpose.

Such real estate research companies perform their service most often for investors in the millions.

Because so much is riding on the decision, investors want it based on all the facts possible. Research computers lend themselves to masses of data gleaned from a variety of sources.

The smaller investor can do the same thing, but with less sophisticated tools. Census data alone can yield facts about population growth, income levels, housing types in the neighborhood, average value of owner-occupied dwellings, average rentals.

City maps show the location of schools and planned new schools. A survey from an auto window will reveal such items as churches, shopping areas, and recreation spots.

Out of this jumble of information it is useful to do a market analysis. And when it is completed and studied, much of the mystery of what to buy, where to buy, or whether to buy disappears.

The decision becomes a matter of business sense, of matching cost to potential. None of this is to say that a market analysis eliminates risk. We all know the abjectly sure investment is a rare commodity, indeed.

Neither, it points out the risk, and isolates it, so the investor can take the proper safeguards to protect the money he has put into the property and the income he can reasonably expect to receive, to say nothing of other extremely important factors involved.

It is a tribute to the basic value of real estate that many owners of apartment buildings saw the advertisement, saw the building, saw the opportunity, and bought, successfully. As our population increases, becomes more urban and more complex, however, that route will be less used.

This wider employment of the methods developed by computer-oriented research has had another effect in the

Dem Hdq. Now Open Downtown

A Democratic Party campaign headquarters has been opened at 209 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix. Clem Wagner, county Democratic chairman, has announced.

The office will be open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily. Residents are invited to drop in, learn about the candidates, pick up campaign literature, and register as volunteers to assist the candidates of their choice.

Martin Paul of Boyne City, chairman of the Charlevoix County Citizens for McGovern committee, reports that volunteers are being solicited to help in voter registration and to canvass the area in behalf of Sen. McGovern and other candidates. Persons interested in helping should contact Paul at 582-7789; Mrs. Janis Dietrich at 547-4154 or Mrs. Margaret Duerf, 547-2603.

District Court

Robert VanSlot, 21, Charlevoix, was assessed $125 for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Merle Cole, 50, Boyne City, was assessed $125 for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. His vehicle registration plates were confiscated by Boyne City Police.

Harry Stafford, 51, West Branch, who had pleaded not guilty to driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor, changed his plea to guilty of impaired driving. He was assessed $100.

Allen Mack, 20, Charlevoix, pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of LSD. An original charge of delivering LSD was reduced at the request of the prosecuting attorney. He was sentenced to 90 days in the County Jail, with credit for time already served. He also was assessed $150. If the fine and costs are not paid he will serve an additional 30 days in jail.

Jesse Muma, 32, Man-celona, pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support. He will be sentenced later.

Dennis Skrocki, East Jordan, pleaded not guilty to a charge of reckless driving. Trial will be held later.

Durant Bennett, East Jordan, pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was sentenced to five days in jail, with credit for time served.

Edward G. Drew, 20, Charlevoix, was assessed $35 and sentenced to three days in jail on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended.

A charge that Mark Scott Passman, 18, Brimingham, possessed marijuana was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting attorney.

SUPERINTENDENT'S PROGRESS REPORT

Charlevoix High School is accredited by the University of Michigan and the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. During the past year the school district met all criteria of both accrediting organizations with the exception of counseling criteria. With the addition of a counselor to our staff, we now meet the criteria for the counselor-pupil ratio.

The General Fund Balance Sheet and the Statement of Revenue and Expenditures indicates that the General Fund of the Charlevoix Public Schools is financially sound. The General Fund balance is $91,549.86, which is the differential between the assets and liabilities. Please note that the actual cash on hand on June 30, 1972, available to the General Fund is $87,985.04. On the same date salaries earned and payable were $114,441.72. Thus, on July 1, 1972, the cash available was not sufficient to meet salaries earned and payable. It will be necessary to borrow approximately $30,000 during the 1972-73 school year to operate the school district until all taxes are received.

At the present time, the total number of classrooms available are adequate to house the students of the school district. However, facilities of a special nature are inadequate in some instances. The district is currently studying the building needs for the immediate future and the long term future.

During the past school year programs were added or expanded in the area of vocational education. It was necessary to curtail some programs in music, art and physical education. For the 1972-73 school year, the music, art and physical education programs have been restored so these activities are available to all students in grades kindergarten through 12th.

The community support of education is greatly appreciated by the board of education, the administration, the teachers and the students. The board of education is striving diligently to provide a quality educational program at the minimum feasible cost. We feel that the Charlevoix Public Schools provide educational opportunities at a level unmatched by other schools of our size. We trust that continued community cooperation will allow us to continue to give our students a quality educational opportunity.

Band Elects New Officers

By Julie Koteskey

The Charlevoix Symphony Band Department has recently elected their band officers for the year of 1972-73.

A new method of electing officers to the Band Department was by petition. A student interested in a certain position was required to have his petition signed by at least 12 band members. They were then placed on the ballot.

The new officers are: President, Murphy Wallace; Student Director, Kit Lieberman; Secretary, Tori Algers; and Treasurer, Pam Grubbaugh.

Bill Wilson Ranks High on Merit Test

William L. Wilson, a senior at Charlevoix High School, has received a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Corp. for his high performance on the 1971 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, according to High School Principal Vane Smith.

Wilson was one of 37,000 students in the United States to receive the commendation. Their test scores rank them in the upper two percent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1973.

The names of 15,000 semifinalists in the annual Merit Scholarship competition were announced by the NMSC in September.

"Although the commendation students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their standing in this nationwide program deserves public recognition," commented Edward C. Smith, president of NMSC. "Their high performance on the two tests shows promise of continued success in college."

'School Financing' CMU Debate Topic

By Carolin Swartwout

At a Saturday, Sept. 16, 20 Charlevoix debaters boarded a bus for the Central Michigan University Debate Conference.

Annually C.M.U. holds a debate conference for high school debaters, dealing with the topic for the year. This year's topic reads, "Should all public elementary and secondary education be exclusively financed by the Federal Government?"

The conference included lectures by Dr. D.P. Milar and Mrs. D. Ling. They discussed negative and affirmative arguments in conjunction with the topic.

The conference was brought to a close with a debate by four Wayne State University students.

Hot Lunch

Following is the hot lunch menu at the Elementary School and the Middle School beginning Sept. 27:

Fall Fleamarket Attracts Shoppers to Park

MR. AND MRS. Robert Trost sold African objets d'art at the East Park Fleamarket Saturday. Money raised will help support African missions.

MR. AND MRS. Bill Ohle had this ancient railroad lantern among their items for sale at the Fleamarket. The Ohles live in Petoskey and have a summer home at Horton Bay. Below, Elmer Green of East Jordan displayed memorabilia of years past at his booth, including ice tongs, a grape press and this "little brown jug."

ELMER Baynton and his daughter-in-law, Loretta, of Traverse City denied that they were trying to put Consumers Power Co. out of business. The Bayntons sold antique and modern oil lamps, fixtures and parts to enthusiastic shoppers. Below, Tony Duerr, Democratic candidate for the House from the 103rd District, stopped at booth selling McGovern T-shirts. Here he poses with constituent, Lise Sayer of Eveline Township.

THE VESTIBULE of the United Methodist Church on State St. has been removed in preparation for extensive remodeling of the church entrance.

School Budget Hearing Set for Oct. 23

Monday, Oct. 23, has been set as the date of the annual budget meeting for the Charlevoix Public Schools. The hearing will be held at the High School homecoming room at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the hearing were made at the regular meeting of the Board of Education Monday night. At the same meeting George Richards of the firm of Manson Jackson Kane of Lansing was present to present findings regarding property owned by the school district.

The board also voted to turn the sale of the building trades house over to a local realtor; gave permission to the Fifth Grade teachers to plan the annual Greenfield Village trip; to Gary Stutzman to plan an overnight rather than a one-day trip to Marquette this weekend; to the senior class to operate a vending machine in the cafeteria; heard three communications and a report on the recent M.A.S.A. convention held at Mackinac Island.

In response to a request for an inventory of property owned by the school district, Richards presented such an inventory which showed 759 acres at the K-4 school, the three lots where the library is located on Clinton st., Lots 7 through 18 of Block 10 where the Middle School is located, 17.9 acres at the high school site and 3.8 acres at the bus garage site.

He also said that most school sites are too small. He then gave a recommended acreage for school site. For a Middle School which is presently under construction, a site of 20 acres plus one acre for each 100 students enrolled is recommended.

It is the consensus of the board that long-range plans should include a Middle School to replace the existing building. However, it was stated that this would not become a reality for several years. Supt. Robert L. Miller did state that it is better to plan and know what you are going to do rather than be thrown into a situation where you need classrooms and then it is too late to build. He cited the present situation at Indian River as an example.

Before a Middle School will be built, the board feels it will be necessary to make some changes and additions at the present High School.

Richard Donaldson, president of the board, outlined the areas which need attention and, in behalf of the board, asked the consulting firm to come up with a comprehensive plan for any program that might be initiated.

Areas which need attention but not necessarily in the order listed are the expansion of the existing library and High School cafeteria; physical education facilities with the idea that the present gym could be enlarged to give another playing floor, a divider in the present gym to allow another teacher station and additional locker room facilities; an addition to house facilities for speech, forensics, arts and crafts and a specialized music room with dividers so the faculty could house more than one teacher station; expansion of the metal and woodworking shop and remodeling of the homecoming room; better utilization of the existing study hall; a teacher counseling and teacher planning area and additional facilities for the business education department.

It was also mentioned that any long-range plans for career classes would have to await decisions regarding a possible area school for these subjects.

Donaldson also suggested an all-weather track, a swimming pool and tennis courts at the school. These, he added, would be part of a long-range program.

The consulting firm was then advised to formulate a plan for accomplishing these needs over a period of time in as many as three to four stages.

Richards said his firm would make more in-depth studies of the high school before making any recommendations.

Richards said he would return later this fall with the proposed comprehensive plan for remodeling the High School.

Early Winter

IT LOOKS as though it is going to be an early winter. Ervin Oza was traveling U.S. 31 north of Elk Rapids early Sept. 30 when the pavement was suddenly covered with snow. A little closer to Charlevoix the snow turned to hail. Lake water also is reportedly 12 degrees below normal for the first of October, so we could be in for an early freeze.

Recalls Youth

HISTORIAN Bruce Catton, a native of Petoskey and frequent visitor to northern Michigan, will receive a Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Eastern Michigan University at its 24th mid-year commencement Dec. 16. Catton, who grew up in the Benzle-Benzion area, recounts some of his boyhood experiences in an article in the October Reader's Digest entitled "Walltag for the Morning Train."

Bay Is Clean

THE MICHIGAN Water Resources Commission reports that the water quality of Little Traverse Bay is still good and will improve with the number of off-street parking spaces.

The firm has taken over quarters next door recently vacated by the Best Way Landromat in order to provide more showroom space and room for increased inventories.

The store opened May 15, 1960, and is managed by Ron Peterson. Working with him are Charles Kilmer and Don Koviel.

Headquartered in Petoskey, the firm specializes in automotive parts and supplies, industrial and welding supplies and janitorial supplies.

Branches are located in Charlevoix, Traverse City, Gaylord, Cheboygan, Boyne City, Kalkaska and Suttons Bay.

Wine-Red

One of the most shocking scraps of autumn scenery in the Charlevoix area is the wine-red stand of hardwoods just north of the Ed Shanahan farm on U.S. 31 north.

RUSS SCRIPPER (left) of Chelsea didn't even intend to go fishing when he visited his brother, Virgil Scripper of Petoskey, over the weekend. But Virgil talked him into accompanying him down to the Charlevoix pierheads where Russ caught this 12-pound lake trout.

Lighting Experts Convene For Seminar at LexaLite

LexaLite Corp. of Charlevoix will host a "Plastics in Lighting" seminar for approximately 30 engineers and purchasing agents from various lighting equipment manufacturing firms Oct. 4 to 6, according to Josh Barnes, LexaLite president.

The seminar will be conducted jointly by technical representatives from LexaLite and from the major plastic materials suppliers. Emphasis will be on the proper applications and design criteria for the various plastics used in the lighting industry.

In addition to the technical sessions, guests will participate in a plant workshop where they will actually be involved in the molding, forming, ultrasonic welding and testing of plastic lighting materials.

Firms participating in the seminar will be E.I. duPont de Nemours, Rohm and Haas Co., General Electric Plastics Department, Mobay Chemical and Detroit Mold Engineering. Now starting its eighth year.

Norman Works New Exec at LexaLite

Norman Works has joined LexaLite Corp. as manager of operations, according to Josh Barnes, general manager.

Formerly with Colt Industries Fairbanks Morse at Beloit, Wis., Works will be responsible for overall manufacturing operations, including plant and product engineering. He and Barnes will act as an overall management team.

Works was marketing manager for Colt Industries/Fairbanks Morse at Beloit and served as marketing and sales manager for Colt's gas turbine operation at W. Hartford, Conn.

Prior to 1969 he was chief of applications engineering for Pratt and Whitney Aircraft in the Turbo Power and Marine Dept.

He is an engineering graduate of the University of Detroit.

Works and his wife, Frances, are both natives of the Detroit area. They are living on Nettleton-st. with their sons, Jimmy, Mike and Steve.

FOMCO Expanding City Store

Fochtman Motor Co., Inc., FOMCO is starting an extensive remodeling program at its store at 802 Bridge-st. which will double the amount of floor space and triple the number of off-street parking spaces.

The firm has taken over quarters next door recently vacated by the Best Way Landromat in order to provide more showroom space and room for increased inventories.

The store opened May 15, 1960, and is managed by Ron Peterson. Working with him are Charles Kilmer and Don Koviel.

Branches are located in Charlevoix, Traverse City, Gaylord, Cheboygan, Boyne City, Kalkaska and Suttons Bay.

Bankers Take Course

Eleven employees of the Charlevoix County State Bank are boning up on the banking business this fall at a 14-week course being offered every Tuesday night at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City.

Sponsored by the American Institute of Banking, the course carried full college credit.

The bank is underwriting the cost of tuition, books and transportation for Jan White, LeAnne Brown, Ruth Parsons, Betty LaRoche, Cheryl Browne, Patricia Bloom, Leigh Ann Smith, Susan Smalley, Karen Wojan, Kitty Louiselle and Ardis Drenth.

Big Lake Trout Run Starts in Pine River

The big lake trout spawning run down Pine River Channel is now under way, according to Myrl Keller, chief of the Great Lakes Fisheries Station on Grand-st.

Keller said the big lakera, averaging six to seven pounds, are being taken right off the pierheads. Many fishermen catch their limit of five in a few hours.

Keller said he expects the run to peak about mid-October, but it fishing should remain good right up into deer season.

He added that fishermen seem to have their best luck in the wake of a northwest blow when the channel current is out-bound to Lake Michigan.

Sunday morning, Keller counted 67 fishermen on the south pierhead, 20 on the north pierhead and several near the bridge.

The fish expert says the run has started a little early this year and that most of the fish being caught are in prime condition. He said very little fresh spawning is in evidence, indicating the lamprey eel problem is still under control, "about the same as it has been for the past three years."

Keller said the Department of Natural Resources will have a better idea about the extent of the lamprey problem when the research vessel Steelhead returns to Charlevoix in the near future. The Steelhead is presently sampling lake trout the length of Lake Michigan to determine the extent of the lamprey problem.

Most of the trout being caught off the pierheads are from the 1967 plant in Pine River Channel, Keller said, making them about six years old. The trout are planted when they are 18 months old.

He said trout that haven't begun to spawn have moved into deep, cold water in Lake Michigan, with most of them congregated at a depth of 180 to 200 feet.

A few rainbows and some coho salmon also are being taken from the pierheads, Keller said. The cohos are some of the 50,000 Alaskan strain fish planted in the channel last spring.

He reports that fishing for adult cohos off Porter Creek has been excellent the past few days.

"The fish are silvery and still in top condition," he commented.

Republicans Plan to Open Downtown Headquarters

Charlevoix County Republicans Thursday night gave Chairman Robert Wise the go-ahead to negotiate with Ken Dewey for the rental of the former Mill's House of Charn building on Bridge-st. as GOP campaign headquarters for the upcoming general election.

Wise said he hopes to have the downtown office open as soon as possible.

He said he also plans to have a mobile campaign van move from community to community throughout the county stumping for GOP candidates.

Guests at the meeting were Rod Brown of Gaylord, an aide to Sen. Robert W. Davis, and Mark Thompson from Rogers City, GOP candidate for the House of Representatives in the newly reorganized 10th District, which includes eastern Charlevoix County.

Thompson will oppose Democrat Robert Lee of Onaway and Independent Gary Gray of Boyne Falls in the Nov. 7 election.

Brown told the Republicans that the House only hours before had passed a no-fault insurance bill, following Senate approval of a similar measure. He said the bill now would go into a joint Senate-House committee and will probably go into effect after the Legislature adjourns in December.

He also said that Sen. Davis believes that a mass transit bill which would syphon funds from throughout the state to build Detroit out of its transportation problems probably is dead, at least for this session.

Oscar Stroud, retired GOP chairman, asked Brown what the state is doing with all the money it receives from snowmobile licenses.

Brown said the money is being spent in four areas:

- (1) A snowmobile safety program conducted by the Department of Natural Resources.
- (2) The purchase of snowmobiles for sheriff's offices.
- (3) Enforcement of snowmobile laws, and
- (4) Creation of snowmobile trails.

Stroud asked if the snowmobile trails would be constructed in Wayne County, but was assured that some of them would be in northern Michigan.

A proposal relayed from Charlevoix County Democrats that the two parties sponsor a "Meet the Candidate" night did not win enthusiastic support.

Boosters' Calendar In Works

Charlevoix Band Boosters are planning a 1973 edition of their traditional "Community Charlevoix Band Boosters" are planning a 1973 edition of their traditional "Community Calendar," listing the birthdays and wedding anniversaries of area residents as well as important meeting dates.

Students will be given order blanks to take home with them this week. Band students will pick up the completed blanks with payment beginning at 5 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9.

Boys Auto Opens

Charlevoix's third automotive supply house—Boys Auto Supply, Inc.—is now in business in the former Kit Carson building on S. Bridge-st.

The business is owned by Lloyd and Ruby Van Alstine who have operated a similar shop in Boyne City for the past 10 years.

Working with them will be their son, Tim, and their son-in-law, Sam Reid.

The Van Alstines are members of the National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA) and carry a full line of tires, batteries, exhaust systems and other automotive parts and equipment.

Both natives of Boyne City, the Van Alstines have four children: Tim, Lynn (Mrs. Sam Reid), Terry, a sophomore at Boyne City High School; and Tina, 3.

Youth Loses Teeth in Fight

Police Chief Jack Mol is investigating a fight between a Charlevoix boy and a St. Ignace boy during the football game at Kipke Field Friday night.

The Charlevoix youth lost two front teeth in the ruckus.

THE CLINKER storage building at the Medusa Cement Plant is rapidly nearing completion at South Point. The building, which will be almost as high as the silos, will be filled by means of an overhead conveyor and emptied by means of an underground conveyor.

Weather and Saints Wreak Havoc on Rayders

DESPITE THE score, drum majorettes presented a cheerful appearance to fans who stayed through the halftime band routine during the St. Ignace-Charlevoix game Friday.

RANDY WOODS, 185 pound Charlevoix back, closes in on St. Ignace ball carrier Butch Calcaterra. Charlevoix lost, 35-0.

CHARLEVOIXANS donned foul weather gear for the Red Rayders first home game of the season Friday night against St. Ignace. The weather, which fluctuated between drizzle and downpour, pretty well thinned the stands by halftime.

Pass, Punt Kick Champs Are Listed

Following are the results of the Pass, Punt and Kick Contest sponsored by Erber Auto Saturday at Kipke Field.

Eight-year-old, Jeff Green, 130½ points; nine-year-old, Gary Drury, 128½ points; 10-year-old, Scott Morgan, 156 points; 11-year-old, Michael Custer, 182 points; 12-year-old, Jeffery Wellman, 193 points; 13-year-old, Mike Martin, 228 points.

The boys will compete this Saturday in the Zone Pass, Punt and Kick contest at Red City.

Lots of HP

A booster rocket on the space shuttle will produce 18,000,000 horsepower, or the power generated by the engines on eight Boeing 747 airliners.

Charlevoix Blanked 35-0

The Red Rayders first home game of the season was a washout Friday.

A chill rain started about game time drenching spectators and players.

But the rain did less to dampen Charlevoix spirits than the visiting gung-ho St. Ignace squad which blanked Charlevoix 35-0.

The Saints scored in every quarter against the surprised Rayders, who have won their first two games of the season, a non-conference match with Benzene Central and a conference game last week against Rogers City.

The Saints scored in the first quarter on a pass from Ed Lester to Tom Grondin. In the second, Mike Winston traveled 26 yards to score.

The visitors scored twice in the third period, first on a 10-yard run by Winston and second on a one-yard plunge by Butch Calcaterra. In the fourth, Lester came back for the final TD on a quarterback keeper play from the one-yard line.

All of the conversion points were kicked beautifully by freshman Dan McDonald, defeated Gaylord, 32-12; In other Michigan-Huron Shores action, Petoskey 6; Boyne City 20, Rogers City 20, and Grayling 20.

Lieberman Scores 1st College TD

Kraig Lieberman, former Charlevoix griddler who is now in his third year of football at Alma College, scored his first collegiate touchdown Saturday.

Lieberman took a pitchout around left end and sauntered three yards into the endzone untouched.

Alma defeated Grand Valley State College 53-0.

In the past, Lieberman has been used primarily on the special teams. But this year he scrapped his way into the starting lineup.

Students Pick Maurine As Rep on School Board

By Terry Phelps
Maurine Wallace has been chosen as the student 'ex officio' member of the Charlevoix Board of Education. She is a senior at Charlevoix High and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wallace.

Five other candidates filed petitions for the position for which the only requirement was being a full time resident student. They were: Sheila Brady, Wilson Bos, Marc Custer, David Graham, and Bill Wilson. A primary election took place Wednesday, Sept. 20, which narrowed the field to two candidates, Maurine and Marc Custer. The following Friday, Sept. 22, the general election was held in which Maurine was elected.

As 'ex officio' member, Maurine will attend all Board Meetings and be allowed to voice her opinion, although she cannot legally vote on any decision. She may, however, have motions proposed before the board through another member.

Maurine's other activities include the Marching Band, President of Symphony Band, Pep Band, City Band, Flash Editorial Board, Yearbook Editor, and Varsity Debate and Forensics, Pep Club, and the 1972 summer exchange student program.

State Aid Payment Is Only $23,300

What Classes Are Doing

By Laura Staubin
The Freshmen are planning a bake sale and are getting materials together for their float.

The Sophomores have started working on their float for homecoming.

The Junior class had a booth at the Fall Fleamarket. They are also making plans for the prom, along with working on their float.

The Senior class also had a booth at the Fleamarket which proved to be successful. They had a bake sale recently. A car wash will be held October 7, in front of the high school from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

State Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-37th District) says quarterly state aid payments were to be made to school districts throughout Michigan on or about Oct. 1.

Charlevoix School District's payment should come to $23,300, compared to $148,430 for Twin Valley and $21,120 for Ellsworth.

Boyer Falls, which has sprawling Boyne Mountain ski resort on its tax rolls, will receive only $5,140, and the Beaver Island Community School will receive nothing.

Sen. Davis said that the funds are taken from state tax revenues and are based on a formula which enables, on the average, each school district to provide equal educational opportunities for all the school children throughout Michigan.

5 Elected Candidates For Queen

On Monday, Sept. 25th, the Seniors elected the five girls who will be eligible to run for Homecoming Queen.

Each year the Queen is crowned during half-time of the Homecoming game. This year, the candidates are Elaine Carr, Janet Diawiddle, Lynn Eby, Candace Klooster and Denise Wagner.

The final election has been slated for Wednesday, Oct. 13. The Queen's name will be holding a meeting sometime next week and is hoping to tour Home, possibly over Easter vacation. Bill Wilson is the present club president.

Mrs. Francis Novak is the Latin Club advisor.

Other C.H.S. clubs have not met as yet. Activities will be starting when these clubs have meetings in the near future.

The historian keeps a scrap book, takes pictures, and finds clippings from newspapers pertaining to Spanish speaking countries.

The club's 30 members are reordering colorful stationery to sell around the community in the next few weeks. Proceeds will go toward their planned trip to Spain. Last year the club traveled to Madrid.

Madrid Miss Nancy Ryswick is the Spanish Club advisor.

CHS Marching Band Struts in NMU Parade

Last Saturday was designated Band Day at Northern Michigan University, with nine high school bands, including Charlevoix's, taking part in a Parade of Bands and the halftime show during NMU's game with St. Norbert (Wis.) College.

The schools taking part, and their directors, were: Republic-Michigan High School, Geno Valente; Rudyard High School, Gary Ambrosier; Manistiquish High School, Robert Meyer; Charlevoix High School, John Stutzman; Engadine High School, Thomas Stegall; Hancock High School, Charles Belanger; Marquette High School, William Saari; Kingsford High School, John Coler; and Peshtigo (Wis.) High School, Bruce Kroken.

Saturday's festivities began with the parade at 12:30 p.m. Starting at Memorial Field, the bands moved south on Third Street, east on Hewitt Ave., to Front Street, and north on Front back to Memorial Field.

Offered as a marching-musical salute to the citizens of the Marquette area, the parade was complete with antique cars separating the bands.

The halftime show of NMU's 18th Annual Band Day program focused on the music of the movie industry, opening with "Consider Yourself" from the musical "Oliver".

With the NMU marching Wildcats outlining a movie camera, the stage was set for the very popular theme from the award-winning motion picture "Summer of '42".

The combined bands then moved into special formations to feature the theme song from "My Parade", "Don't Rain on My Parade", "Penny Girl", and the theme from the academy award-winning show "Patton".

Climaxing the Band Day performance, the mass bands formed the traditional shield as the letters U.S.A. form on the gridiron to the sounds of "America the Beautiful".

Following the game, the Wildcat Band held a reception for the visiting high school musicians.

Locusts, French Motif Would Make Us Unique

Now that the last of the summer visitors has packed his bags and headed for warmer climates, Charlevoix businessmen have an opportunity to take a good, long look at their town and decide how to make it an even more attractive place to visit - and shop - before another influx of tourists arrives.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Tom Merta has come up with a number of excellent suggestions which we would like to see implemented before next summer.

For one thing, a number of leafy shade trees would make Bridge-st. more attractive and more comfortable for mid-summer visitors.

Merta has suggested that Morain locusts, encircled with decorative "iron ladies" be planted along the main thoroughfare. They would shelter shoppers from the direct rays of the sun and add a bit of welcome greenery, particularly on the west side of the street, which is now lined solidly with business places.

Such trees could well make the job of snow removal a trifle more difficult, but we seem to survive with lamp poles and traffic signs, so why not trees?

One such locust was planted in front of the Chamber office this spring. It survived the summer famously and is now beginning to change color. Take a look at it and see if you wouldn't like such a tree in front of your place of business.

Some months ago, Merta suggested that Charlevoix could set itself apart from other "Alpine" towns in northern Michigan by adopting a French fishing village theme. A number of businessmen were sufficiently impressed by the idea to modify their store windows to simulate the small panes of an Old World town.

And two of Charlevoix's proposed condominiums, Le Havre and La Croft, have distinctively French names.

But to date no business place has adopted the second part of Merta's suggestion: That store names be posted in both English and French, which certainly would make Charlevoix unique among Michigan's resort communities.

Charlevoix, of course, was named after Fr. Charlevoix, a French missionary-explorer. Furthermore, it wasn't too long ago that French was the common language in northern Lake Michigan settlements, so the scheme is not without some basis in historical fact.

The West Michigan Tourist Association has promised to help publicize the fact once Charlevoix's French metamorphosis is complete. Now it's up to us to get the job done.

Despite my modest success in the growing of tomatoes, I've yet to produce more than one single thumb-nail size radish, but I intend on "Radish the 14th" at some future date.

Congratulations on your corn and raspberries, and you know, maybe those ancient Indians were fishing all the way back to "Swampgas town."

Cheers,
Tolliver

Just Where Do We Stand On Pornography Issue?

Just where do the American people stand on the issue of pornography?

The news media would have you believe that the public is up in arms over the rash of X-rated movie houses and topless bars that have sprung up like weeds across the country. The media also is innuendo over the deluge of sexually-oriented reading and viewing materials handled by the U.S. Post Office.

However, a survey by the National Association of Theatre Owners of Michigan (NATOM) indicates that theatre-goers, at least, are equally indignant over a recent embargo imposed by the Detroit News on the advertising of X-rated movies.

The theatre owners group hired a firm of CPA firm of J.K. Lasser and Co. of Southfield to tabulate the results of post cards poll among patrons of a cross-section of Detroit-area theaters. Of the 1,910 cards returned, 1,570 - or 86.5 percent - disagreed with the News' policy regarding X-rated movie advertising.

Some 245 respondents agreed with the policy and 95 postcards were returned without a preference indicated.

The theatre association has turned the post cards over to Detroit News Editor Martin S. Hayden.

"We just want The News management to know that a lot of people think its policy is a denial of the right of free access to information through the press," according to Milton H. London, president of NATOM.

We don't profess to know which theaters were selected for the survey, but we feel the results would be more accurate if the post cards were distributed on neutral ground, like in a supermarket.

Better still, why not a straw vote in a municipal election?

It seems they are listening more carefully to the grave concerns of many Charlevoix residents.

Is it fair to the property owners in the area of the Wharf to build a structure which will decrease the value of their property, in some cases, totally blocking the view for long-time residents who have contributed significantly to property tax revenue?

What about the intensity of population and all the side effects of this such as adequate sewerage, water and air pollution, parking areas for children, snow removal, play areas?

What about the rest of the people in Charlevoix-should Round Lake be walled in for the enjoyment of a few?

And a question posed by Mayor Hansen-What about the construction? Is it sound?

These are some very important questions - Important enough to require serious consideration by all of us and investigation and discussion by specialists.

Should we not consider that on matters of such great import, a unanimous vote on the part of the Council be required?

Very truly yours,
Helen Gaskin

The Safety Valve

QUESTION: Does the windshield of an automobile have to be made of safety glass or will "Plexiglass" meet state standards? J.L.K., Benton Harbor

ANSWER: No person shall sell any new motor vehicle nor shall any new motor vehicle be registered thereafter unless such vehicle is equipped with safety glass wherever glass is used in the windshield, doors and windows; nor shall any glass be replaced or repaired in the windshield, doors and windows of any motor vehicle unless such glass is safety glass as herein defined.

The term "safety glass" shall mean any product composed of glass, so manufactured, fabricated, or treated as substantially to prevent chattering and flying of the glass when struck or broken.

QUESTION: Is it against the law to reposition or relocate a motor in an automobile-like moving it back about 10 percent from original position? C.C., Ithaca ANSWER: Nothing in our Michigan Vehicle Code. If relocating the motor would cause the driver to lose control of his vehicle, he would be prosecuted for the violation incurred rather than for the repositioning per se.

QUESTION: How far above the hood can the motor of a car project? J.D., Flint

ANSWER: No specifics mentioned in the Michigan Vehicle Code, however, if such installation did obstruct vision or control to the extent that a traffic violation was incurred then the driver would be ticketed for the driving error.

QUESTION: How many points are assessed against your driving record if you are found guilty of operating a motorcycle without wearing a helmet? And how much is the ticket (fine)? A.B., Charlotte

ANSWER: The penalty would be a misdemeanor which would be punishable by a fine of not more than $100 or by imprisonment for not more than 90 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Tomato Help Arrives from 'Ole Virginny'

Dear Bob;

I have had some success at growing tomatoes, with a modest 4-8 plant "acreage" in times to the present. I say this despite the fact that my backyard endeavors consist largely of putting other garden seeds into the ground than tomatoes, spating upon them, and then hopefully moving out of the way to avoid entanglement with a sudden spurt of plant growth. You'll be heartened to know I've never suffered injury at the "hands" of a plant, nor have I been seriously threatened by a garden vegetable rolling over on me.

None-the-less, I have discovered that:

1. An excess of rain or watering will slow growth because of the washing of soil nutrients from around the plants, especially if this occurs over a "lengthy" period of time. Best solution to this is compost applied rather than animal droppings, nitrate fertilizers, or even the ancient Indian dead fish, which will cause luxuriant plant growth, but not too many blossoms.
2. When the blossoms, such as they might be, do arrive, there are brands of blossom setting compounds, which come in the form of powder to be added to water for a spray, or ready made in aerosol cans, which if used sparingly, will start the "fruiting" process from blossom to the little greens.
3. Since your plants possibly were deprived by the rains earlier of nutrients, perhaps if you'd pick some of the green tomatoes now, existing plants could expend plant energy on the remaining ones, while the ones you picked could either ripen indoors, or make excellent tomato pickles, or fried cooked green tomatoes. This is, of course, "Monday morning quarterbacking" for events that transpired prior to August, but it might work.
4. At the present, leave the plants and tomatoes out if the first frost promises to be a mild one. Don't ask me how to know if the first frost will be mild, 'cause I don't know. Then harvest the green tomatoes for indoor ripening, no sun required. The ones that begin to "look weepy", chop up for frying (green tomatoes fried are especially appetizing), and the rest will become red ripened garden ones as distinct from the "hothouse" varieties, which to me are tomatoes in form rather than taste.

So after living at 207 E. Dixon for better than seven years, we finally got around to having a new sidewalk put in two weeks ago. Carlton Bens was the contractor and he did a beautiful job. Our new walk is smooth, level and sparkling white.

I can hardly wait for the first snowfall. It will be an unmitigated pleasure to shovel snow on the sidewalk, after years of jarring my gouty elbows every time the snow shovel encountered a section of broken concrete.

But the new sidewalk only laid the foundation for a seemingly endless procession of other household improvements.

So I bought a whole new faucet ensemble at Kit Carson's and brought it home. Judy eagerly opened the box and let out a groan.

"This is 'deck-mounted'," she said. "Ours has to be 'wall-mounted'."

"I'm sure we can figure out a way to use it," I said, trying to placate her. We already had had the washer more than a week and she was getting frantic to try it.

But try as I might, I couldn't convert a deck-mounted faucet into a wall-mounted faucet without spraying water all over the kitchen ceiling.

"We could use it like a drinking fountain," I suggested, but Judy was near tears.

"What we need," she said, "is a whole new sink. They haven't made sinks with wall-mounted faucets for 100 years. And while we're at it, we might as well tear down the back porch and expand the kitchen. I want a fireplace at the far end for grilling steaks."

"Hot dogs," I corrected her. "If we spend all that money on the kitchen we'll never be able to afford steak again."

Fortunately, I managed to find a wall-mounted faucet in an antique catalogue, ending that crisis momentarily. However, there really isn't room in the kitchen for the dishwasher.

"What we need," Judy keeps telling me, "is a built-in dishwasher that will fit in right next to the new sink."

So I was saying, one thing leads to another.

Clockwise

One Thing Leads to Another

Compared to the new walk, the front steps started to look pretty dowdy. Two of the steps were badly cracked and two of the risers were missing huge chunks of concrete.

So we bought some ready-mix concrete and patched the steps, which looked fairly presentable.

But, my goodness, have you noticed that the porch is badly in need of a new coat of paint? Why it's right down to bare wood in places!

So, a gallon of pewter grey porch paint was purchased and applied.

But somehow, the newly patched steps don't look quite right, in contrast to the spiffy new porch paint.

The next move is going to be the purchase of a can of white masonry paint to refresh the entire front steps ensemble. And since painted steps tend to be slippery, it looks as though we are going to have to invest in a runner of outdoor carpet so we don't fall getting from the porch to the sidewalk.

The same thing happened this summer when we answered a Courier classified ad and ended up buying a dishwasher. As soon as it was delivered, Judy decided to do a batch of dishes. Only the dishwasher on the dishwasher wouldn't fit the faucet on the kitchen sink. I scoured every hardware store and plumbing shop in northern Michigan trying to find the right kind of adapter, but none of them worked.

So I bought a whole new faucet ensemble at Kit Carson's and brought it home.

Any way, might it be possible that a British manufacturer would object to Ford being imported to perform? Why wasn't a Rolls Royce executive given the baton? Maybe Ford was also a member of the ambassador's household for that one night. ("Hey Duchess, meet our upstairs maid!"). But I digress. My better idea has nothing to do with Henry Ford's status at the embassy. I am concerned with his musical taste. The society pages said he sang his favorite song, "Hey Hop a Re Hop."

C'mon, Henry, Onward and Upward.

The last time I had a better idea about a Ford, I almost got run over.

One of Henry Ford's daughters was married in a billion dollar ceremony while wearing a roller skating costume.

Her photo appeared on front pages all over the world. It was a bad example for copycat wives who'll wear jeweled football shoes if that's what the jet-set gals are clomping around in on the Riviera.

I suggested it would be a better idea for the Ford girls to elope in modest dresses with J.C. Penney labels showing.

Reaction from women readers was somewhat negative. They accused me of being jealous of Ford wealth and beauty. One woman even kicked me, leaving clear marks in my shin. But nevertheless, here I am back again with another better idea...

This one is for Henry Ford himself. It concerns his musical lineage.

The big-city society pages report that Henry and his gorgeous wife recently attended a party given by Ambassador and Mrs. Walter Annenberg in the American embassy in London.

This was no weirdo sort. The Annenbergs had the famous Meyer Davis play for dancing. It was a bad example for copycat wives who'll wear jeweled football shoes if that's what the jet-set gals are clomping around in on the Riviera.

Significant Progress Is Reported by CEA

Significant progress was made at last Wednesday's contract bargaining session attended by representatives of the Board of Education, the Charlevoix Teachers Association (CEA) and state labor mediator Robert Morgan, president of the CEA, said he believes the teachers and the board will reach agreement in the near future.

The next formal negotiating session has been scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 11.

"We are hopeful of an agreement," Morgan said.

The CEA and the board have been meeting since last March to work out a master contract for the 1972-73 school year.

Bruce Morgan, president of the CEA, said he believes the teachers and the board will reach agreement in the near future.

The state mediator was called in two weeks ago when the CEA said it had reached an "impasse" in negotiations.

Funny Taste

THAT FUNNY taste you noticed in Charlevoix's city water recently wasn't anything to worry about, according to City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna. The 70-year-old water tank was repaired on the inside with an epoxy paint, and the experts recommended chlorinating the water for a few days as a precautionary measure. Charlevoix's water, you'll remember, is so fresh that it has never had to be chlorinated. Just a little fluoride, that's all. Not many cities can make that claim.

Soup Do Nuts Color Cruise

MR. AND MRS. Harold Bliss of Lakeview-Ct. staged their own "color cruise" recently. They trailed their boat to Crooked Lake and traveled the inland waterway via Burt and Mullet Lakes to Cheboygan. They stayed overnight in a motel on the bank of the Cheboygan River and put-putted back to Crooked Lake the next day. The fall colors were shocking, they report. The trip was so enjoyable, they're already thinking of an encore.

ONE of these Charlevoix High School lovelies will reign as Homecoming Queen come Thursday night. 4-H Rock

The 4-H organization's search for the largest Petoskey stone in the area has unearthed some unusually hefty specimens, according to Dawson Way, regional manager for Farm Bureau. Way has had one stone weighing 283 pounds on display in the Petoskey window in Petoskey. The stone was purchased from Leroy Smith of Petoskey. Now, however, Way has acquired a stone almost twice as large. It weighs 420 pounds and was purchased from Roy Williams of Ironton. The larger of the two stones will be auctioned at the 4-H Bonanza auction at Jensen Field House in East Lansing Oct. 14, with proceeds going to 4-H.

School to Help Pay For May-st. Sewer

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, agreed to participate in any special assessment district charges established on the proposed May St. sewer line.

In other action it was agreed that evergreen trees behind the bleachers on the east side of the football field should be removed and relocated, that the board should acknowledge art objects presented to the Charlevoix public library by Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings; named delegates to the annual Michigan Association of School Boards; heard letters from Northern Michigan University and Radio Station WJML; received a report on enrollment figures and set Oct. 23 as the date of the annual budget meeting.

Supt. Robert L. Miller advised the board that the city proposed to extend its sewer system from Garfield Ave. to Stovered. He said that a school district is not obligated to participate in the resulting special assessment district and that any decision to participate would be voluntary.

However, because the school district is the largest single May-st. property owner and because the cost to other property owners would be prohibitive, if the school district did not participate, the board agreed the school district should pay its fair share of the cost.

The project will cost an estimated $24,700. The cost to the school district would be an estimated $37,000 to be paid over a period of five or ten years, depending on how the city proposed to finance the project.

The board approved the removal of evergreen trees from the area behind the home bleachers, an area that has been a trouble spot during games. The city has offered the use of equipment for the project.

The secretary was directed to write a letter of thanks to Continued on Page 8

High winds Sunday forced cancellation of the Chamber of Commerce Color Cruise.

Crash Kin Awarded $522,000 by US

The federal government has agreed to an out-of-court settlement of $522,000 of a lawsuit initiated by the next-of-kin of four Charlevoix area men killed in the crash of a twin-engine plane near the Emmet County Airport at Pellston on May 14, 1968.

The plaintiffs charged that the government was liable because federal aviation officials had failed to warn the pilot, Al Phillips of Conway, of severe weather (fog) in the Pellston area.

Killed in the crash with Phillips were Milford H. Saunders, 32, of Charlevoix; Robert Kotesky, 32, Boyne City; and Robert G. Lee, 41, Charlevoix.

Saunders was vice president and general manager of the East Jordan Iron Works and Kotesky and Lee worked in the company's accounting department.

The three were enroute home from a business meeting in Cleveland with Phillips when their twin-engine Apache crashed in a dense woods near the airport.

Federal District Judge Albert Engle of Grand Rapids was ready to begin hearing the suit Oct. 2 when the government indicated it would be willing to settle out of court.

A side issue in the case was the fact that, after encountering fog weather near Pellston, Phillips continued to Klamath Falls in the Upper Peninsula but was denied permission to land his civilian aircraft.

A band on the admittance of civilian aircraft reportedly had been lifted a month earlier, but the control tower was unaware of the countermmanding order.

Saunders' heirs were represented in the suit by attorneys Robert Hoffman of Charlevoix and Charles Chastrom of Detroit; Kotesky's by Robert Kotesky of Boyne City and Richard VanOrden of Grand Rapids; Phillips' by John Clark of Petoskey and Robert Seckman of Traverse City; and Lee's by Larry Fowler of Lansing.

Wharf II Permit OK'd

In a marathon session that lasted almost four hours, the Charlevoix City Council Monday night:

Approved a building permit for Phase II of the Wharf condominium after turning it down three times. The vote was split three-three, with Aldermen Sam Supernaw, Clifton Sundberg and Gerald Selph voting against the permit and Aldermen Robert Gill, Robert Timms and Richard Fochtman voting for it. The tie was broken by Mayor Edward Hansen who voted in favor of the Round Lake project.

Hansen plans submitted by Dean Eby for construction of a 42-unit town house complex on Petoskey rd., just south of the Standard station. Eby said he would meet all of the city's criteria for multiple-family dwellings. The council took his plan under advisement.

Hansen plans outlined by John Michael for converting the former Tower Lodge on Park Ave. to an 11-unit apartment building. He said the house in front of the building would be razed. Meeting as the board of review, the council waived three feet of side-yard clearance on the west. The property is owned by Larry Michael of Birmingham and Elk Rapids. He and John Michael are not related.

Local Swans Date Back 55 Years

By Hilda Alexander
Members of the Garden Club, their husbands and several guests met with their annual cooperative dinner meeting of the First State Bank Sept. 12.

Guests and former and older members were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Jeanne Michael.

Reports were made by the annual committees and an appreciation was extended to each one by the executive committee for their cooperation during the year.

Guest speaker was William Gelston, Superintendent of the Traverse City Intermediate School District, who gave a most interesting and instructive talk on Swans which has been his hobby several years.

He spoke about the first Swans in this vicinity that were brought from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, by Mrs. Douglas who spent her summers at the Chicago Club and placed in Old River about 1917. They were cared for by John Gaskin, sr., who was the club caretaker. The pair kept taking off for East Jordan where perhaps the food was more plentiful and palatable to their taste as they live mostly on sea weeds. Gaskin would go and get the pair and return them to Charlevoix, which must be quite a job as they are great fighters. As the years have passed, the birds multiplied and there are about 500 of these interesting and beautiful birds located in Charlevoix and Traverse City. But their food is getting low so new homes are being found for them farther north and in Canada.

Many have died from weed killers and pesticides that have washed in the lakes from lawns along the shores and residents are urged not to use poison sprays on their lawns and gardens.

Slides were shown by Gelston of he and his wife, who was also a guest, working and taming these interesting birds.

The next club meeting will be Tuesday, Oct. 10, at the home of Mrs. Ann Puffpuff.

Mrs. Agate Santeik will give the lesson on roses.

Library notes

By Eleanor Raligan

New books to recommend and report on this week include some varied titles. "Anti-Memoirs" by Andre Malraux is a literary and historic document of the first importance. Probably one of the most significant works of this century, Malraux has participated in the most crucial events of our times, the Chinese Revolution, the Spanish Civil War, the French Resistance, the 2nd World War and from 1958, he served as a minister in De Gaulle's Cabinet. Interestingly enough, the book is dedicated to "Mrs. John Fitzgerald Kennedy."

Any book written by America's foremost anthropologist, Margaret Mead, is noteworthy. In this new volume, "A Way of Seeing," Dr. Mead collaborates with Dr. Rhoda Metraux. The essays contained in this volume reflect new perspectives on a changing world: from youth and marriage to power and politics. It is filled with marvelous quotations and thought-provoking passages such as: "No country, as yet, as fully recognized the fact that the scale of our major problems is not local or national but regional or worldwide. No country has realized that we must simultaneously include both extremes—the individual and all men—in working toward social solutions."

A striking book with a striking dust-jacket—"Luce and his Empire"—was written by W.A. Swanberg who has won an international reputation as a biographer and historian of American subjects. Most of us know very little about the fascinating career of Luce who became a millionaire at the age of 30 was obsessed by God and created a publishing empire. The book is alive with vivid portraits of the men and women who were close to him and there are numerous personal photographs.

Dr. Janet Travell has written an extraordinary autobiography filled with personal reminiscences of her fascinating life from the years before she studied medicine until she became Jack Ken-

Dr. Travell's diverse interests and accomplishments—in the treatment of stubborn pain, in pharmacology, in health problems of the aged, in poetry and in careers for women—make for totally absorbing reading. "Office Hours: Day and Night" belong at the top of the list of recommended books for Fall.

Beer and Bratwurst Set Tenor of 'Oktoberfest'

The Wallon Lake and Petoskey Regional Chambers of Commerce are joining forces this year to present an old-fashioned German "Oktoberfest" on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 14 and 15 at the Emmet County Fairgrounds.

At 10:30 a.m., the Teutonia Dance Group from Windsor, Ont., will present its first program of German dances. Others shows are scheduled for 1 p.m., 3:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Saturday and at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

At 11 a.m. Saturday, the Barrel Benders will present a horse show and at 2 p.m. the Old World Sports Club will meet the Germanias in northern Michigan's first soccer game. A second game will be played at 11 a.m. Sunday.

To date, only 106 pints have been donated, meaning that 494 pints must be collected in the next three drives.

The bloodmobile will be in East Jordan Jan. 17, 1973, and in Charlevoix April 17, 1973.

With an appeal for over $600,000, the diocese proposes to establish seed money for housing of the elderly, with a site already available as a gift. Grants will be made to assist existing programs dealing with drug abuse and youth problems such as Auto House in Kalamazoo, the Grand Rapids Youth Ministry, The Muskegon Drug Information Center, as well as other programs in Western Michigan.

A series of outright gifts to financially pressed parishes and missions is planned. A designated gift is one to the companion diocese of Kimberley and Kurman, part of the Anglican Church of South Africa.

Of the eleven-fold list of expansion projects some are physical improvements and some are centered in people. Career development plans for the clergy and social concerns assistance are included in the proposed program. Campus ministry is to be enlarged and conference center facilities at Bonnell House, near Holland, will be improved.

Beginning in 1973 and extending through the Centennial year of 1974, many prominent national and international laymen and church dignitaries have been invited to participate in festival events over the diocese.

Q. What can we look forward to this year from the Department of Natural Resources regarding antlerless deer hunting? E. V.

Esconaba
A. For a number of years the Department of Natural Resources has been adjusting the take of antlerless deer in response to declining deer populations in the Upper Peninsula and to improving range conditions in parts of the northern Lower Peninsula. This year is the third year in a row that the Department has followed this pattern. As you know, I have been working closely with the Department suggesting changes in the deer management program which I feel would be more proper and more palatable to most of the people.

I would like to point out what the Department's action is going to be this year. Their recommendation for taking antlerless deer is just a little over one-fifth of what it was in 1969. In the Upper Peninsula the Department's recommendation is for bucks only, with one minor exception in the southern part of Menominee County, and here they have made a drastic change in the method that they are going to use. Antlerless deer will be permitted, a suggestion that the people of the Upper Peninsula have been making for several years. The proposal is to take only 640 deer from the entire Upper Peninsula—all of these from a part of Menominee County.

In the northern part of the Lower Peninsula there are 45 deer management units. In 1969, 40 of these were open to the taking of antlerless deer with a suggested quota of 30,000 deer. This year only 14 of these 45 areas are recommended to be open with a quota of less than 5,000 deer in total. These areas cover less than one-third of the area of the northern Lower Peninsula.

I suggested to the Department that they harvest antlerless deer on an on-again, off-again, or alternate year system, rather than every year. They are in essence doing as I suggested by closing some areas and keeping others open where the situation warrants it.

The largest area of the State open to antlerless deer hunting this year will be in the southern part of the Lower Peninsula where there is an acute problem on the highways and one that must be faced up to for the safety of all of us.

In summary, in the northern deer range, and that is what we are concerned with, in the Upper Peninsula there is a virtual moratorium on the taking of antlerless deer this year. The recommendations for the northern Lower Peninsula have been cut in half for the third year in a row. The taking of less than 5,000 antlerless deer from the northern Lower Peninsula is about 30 percent of what it was four years ago.

There are over half-a-million people who hunt deer in Michigan each year. Not all of these hunters by any stretch of the imagination have been permitted to hunt antlerless deer. The Department's recommendation this year is that less than 10 percent of those who want to hunt deer will be permitted to take antlerless deer. And these hunters will be regulated as to specific areas as the law provides.

Your questions and comments are always welcome and may be addressed to: Sen. Robert W. Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48902.

Chest Goal: $20,000

The 1972 Community Chest drive is off and running, according to Gordon Wellman, general chairman.

Wellman said solicitors are organized in each division with an eye toward wrapping up the drive by the end of October. However, more volunteers are still needed.

Goal in the campaign is $20,000, which will be used to help support 11 city and county agencies, 17 state agencies via the Michigan United Fund and nine national agencies.

The bulk of the money, $15,050 will be spent right at home, Wellman points out.

Among local agencies earmarked for funds are the Scenic Trails Council (Boy Scouts), $2,800; Charlevoix Area Hospital, $2,400; Crooked Tree Council (Girl Scouts), $2,300; Charlevoix City Recreation Program, $2,100; Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children, $1,500; Salvation Army (Western Michigan Division), $1,100; American Red Cross (Charlevoix County Chapter), $800; Mt. McSaba Recreation Program, $750; Charlevoix County Big Brothers Association, $700; Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood Association, $400; and the Charlevoix Community Nurse (Emergency Fund), $200.

Total state agency gifts come to $2,450 and national agency gifts $271.

Assisting Wellman in the drive are five division chairmen: Howard Horton, industrial division; Mrs. Dan Vreeland, commercial division; Mrs. Donald Berlage, professional division; Mrs. William Cockfield, residential division; and William Peck, Ironston, and Mrs. John Lachman, Northern, and other items created at the association's sheltered workshop on Garfield St. The young people also work on contract with local industries. Sally Geer managed the association's booth at the recent Charlevoix Fleamarket.

ONE OF THE local agencies which will benefit from Community Chest contributions is the Charlevoix Association for Retarded Children. Above are some of the decorative "love lamps" and other items created at the association's sheltered workshop on Garfield St. The young people also work on contract with local industries. Sally Geer managed the association's booth at the recent Charlevoix Fleamarket.

DNR Expands Services To Private Landowners

The Forestry Division of the Department of Natural Resources has been authorized to provide acceleration of professional forestry advice and assistance to private, non-industrial landowners within the thirteen county Northwest Michigan Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Project area.

This expansion of services will utilize approximately $24,000 of federal RC&D funds made available by the United States Forest Service for this purpose. The Northwest Michigan RC&D Project is sponsored by the local Soil Conservation Districts.

Land management services will be provided under this program through contractual arrangements with private consulting foresters. Services will be similar to those presently provided by state foresters under the Cooperative Forest Management program, but will be expanded to help complete installation of recommended practices. For instance, services will be available to help negotiate and administer timber sale contracts; such services have seldom been provided previously.

A limit of 32 hours of assistance per landowner per fiscal year has been placed on the program. Past experience in similar projects has indicated this should adequately cover most requests. In the event that a landowner has a more involved case requiring more assistance time, he is encouraged to utilize the 32 hours free service provided under this program and then further contract personally with the same or another consultant to help carry the project to completion.

This is a rather new approach to management assistance, but it is expected to provide more complete and efficient services to landowners than have been previously supplied.

The consulting forester contracted for Charlevoix County is Robert Bahman, Rt. Box 339A, Petoskey, MI 49770. He is a registered professional forester. The state forester handling Charlevoix County is Jack Lockwood, DNR Field Office, Boyne City, MI. Additional information can be obtained from his office.

Probate Reforms Pledged by Duerr

Charles A. "Tony" Duerr of Charlevoix, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives from the 10th District, has pledged to work for reform of the probate code if he is elected in the Nov. 7 primary.

Speaking before the St. Helen Area Retirees' Council of the UAW last week in St. Helen, Duerr said that the revised probate code which has been introduced in Michigan would reduce the paper work and considerably shorten the time required for settlement of simple, uncomplicated estates.

He added that the revised code also carries ample safeguards to protect the interests of heirs.

"If I am elected, reform of the probate code will be high on my list of legislative priorities," Duerr said. "I am not interested in protecting the special interests of those who benefit from our present outmoded and expensive system of probate law."

On the platform with Duerr was Bennie Graves, Democratic candidate in the 10th Congressional District.

The Retirees' Council passed a unanimous resolution endorsing both Duerr and Graves.

Marching Band Wins NMU Praise

By Murphy Wallace

Under the direction of Gary Stutzman, the Charlevoix Marching Band dazzled the crowd at Northern Michigan University on Sept. 30.

After arriving at the field at 8:30 a.m., the Rayder Band practiced a mass half-time show with nine other bands, including Northern's Wildcat Marching Band.

After lunch all the bands participated in a 1 1/2 mile parade around the stadium. During the half-time show, the bands received a trophy for participating in Band Day. The Rayder Marching Band received a standing ovation for their post-game performance which included Polk Rock, selections from "Fiddler On The Roof," and one of the most popular rock tunes, "Get It On."

The Band received special praise from the Wildcat Marching Band at a reception held after the game.

"The Band then returned to the Holiday Inn, where they had reservations for the night. After such an exciting day, the chaperones did not have an easy time. Accompanying the group were, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Stutzman, Mr. and Mrs. James Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Odmak, Mrs. Raymond Stone, Mrs. Charles Matthews, Miss Kathy Miles and Mrs. Jim Buller.

Lampkin To Attend Seminars

Keith Lampkin, 4-H youth agent for Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, is one of 31 Michigan Cooperative Extension Service employees chosen to participate in the agency's "Quest For Quality" professional improvement program.

The two-year program combines study with travel. Participants will attend three, week-long seminars at Michigan State University during each of the two years. Seminar material will be drawn from political science, economics, sociology, communications, philosophy, history and education. In addition, an in-state study tour will be conducted during the first year.

The Quest For Quality program is funded in part by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to Michigan State University's Center for Rural Manpower and Public Affairs.

The goals of the program are threefold:

- 1) To build the understanding of man-himself, his fellow man, his environment, and his personal and group aspirations.
- 2) To build understanding of the social, economic and political systems in which man functions.
- 3) To build capacity for extension programs flowing from increased understanding.

P.O. Acts to Speed Up Special Delivery Mail

A system to speed up special delivery airmail and first class letters, flats and small parcels was added to the U.S. mail on Oct. 1.

Charlevoix Postmaster Rex Davis said postal authorities recognize the need to improve special delivery service. He noted that Postmaster General E.T. Klassen recently told a press conference in Washington, D.C., that "special delivery service for any years has been a disgrace."

At that time Klassen announced plans to install a nationwide improvement program based on the use of a self-identifying plastic "speedy bag." The speedy bags will be used within the mail system to keep special delivery mail from losing its way among millions of other pieces of mail.

Postmaster Davis noted that a six-month test program executed at 4,500 post offices in the West "has shown a reliability rate in the high 90s."

Speedy special delivery bags are made of polyethylene and are 20 inches by 30 inches. The Postal Service eagle and the words "speedy" and "special delivery" are imprinted in green.

"All special delivery letters, flats and small parcels normally dispatched in mail pouches will be placed in speedy bags," Postmaster Davis said. "The speedy bags then will be placed in a mail pouch or loose pack in such a manner that approximately four inches of the green imprint on the speedy bag is exposed when the pouch or loose pack is closed."

"Upon arrival at the destination or next processing office, pouches containing speedy bags are opened first and the speedy bag is removed and immediately taken to the distribution area for priority processing," Postmaster Davis explained.

He said that studies have shown special delivery mail to be delayed within post offices when it gets intermixed with standard first class mail. This caused it to miss special delivery "runs," he added.

Pontius Joins Hillsdale Bank

Appointment of Charles J. Pontius of Battle Creek, former local businessman, as executive vice president of the Hillsdale State Savings Bank has been announced by Harold J. Ridley, bank president.

He goes to Hillsdale to the Security National Bank in Battle Creek where he served as vice president.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Pontius owned and operated the Pontius Funeral Chapel here and was "in business in St. Petersburg, Fla., prior to entering the banking field."

A horse racing enthusiast, he is seeking a farm in the Hillsdale area suitable for raising and training horses. He is a past director of the Michigan United Fund, the Cathoon County Crippled Children's Association and the Battle Creek Urban League.

Mrs. Pontius, the former Anita Purdy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Purdy of Charlevoix, and their daughter, Denise, a sophomore at Western Michigan University, will accompany him to Hillsdale.

While fire fighting is the most dramatic role of a fire department, fire prevention and fire detection have higher priorities, since the best defense against blazes is to stop them before they start, or at least contain them as quickly as possible. The effectiveness of fire fighters' efforts in this direction is evident. Although the dollar loss has risen steadily over the years, the ratio of losses to the aggregate value of property subject to such losses has been declining for many years.

In the area of fire prevention, most departments preach the fire safety gospel to business, civic, social, educational and religious groups.

Department specialists inspect buildings in their area, concentrating on installations that have the highest potential of incidence.

Arson, which is essentially a social problem, rises in frequency year after year. In 1964, there were 17,400 reported cases of arson, according to the national Fire Protection Association. By 1970, this number had advanced to 65,300, and the figure keeps rising.

False alarms create still another problem. While these

The Chest Drive

Now Is Time to Show That Someone Cares

Every fall when the leaves begin to change and chill winds off Lake Michigan bring a portent of the long cold winter ahead, Charlevoix area residents are asked to draw on their resources of warmth and compassion to help those less fortunate.

For fall is Community Chest time in communities across the nation, a time to share the summer bounty by giving a boost to the young, the old, the afflicted, the needy to whom life is sometimes less than generous.

Goal in the 1972 Charlevoix drive is a modest $20,000 but it will be spent wisely and well to:

- Help retarded youngsters find their niche in a world that they sometimes can scarcely comprehend.
- Provide recreational activities winter and summer for Charlevoix area young people.
- Offer the camaraderie of adult male companionship to fatherless boys through the Big Brothers.
- Lend a helping hand to unmarried mothers.
- Provide funds for research into such diseases as multiple sclerosis, diabetes, leukemia, hemophilia, cerebral palsy, heart trouble and mental illness.

And provide the many, many services you would like to do on an individual basis if time and resources would permit.

By giving "the united way," your funds go further, faster — right to the heart of the many problems that afflict America and Americans.

When a solicitor calls at your home or place of business, give generously. Remember, you are being asked to "give once for all." Your gift will be allocated among dozens of local, state and national agencies, eliminating individual solicitations that sometimes cost more to administer than they reap in benefits.

Your gift or pledge to the Charlevoix Community Chest will make life a little brighter, a little warmer for many people. Let them know you care.

If You Like McGovern, C'mon Along

Oct. 6, 1972

Dear Editor:

I want to thank you for your news item concerning the Democratic meeting to be held at the Democratic headquarters on Bridge-st. in Charlevoix Wednesday, Oct. 11.

However, your coverage stated that the meeting was open to all Democrats. "Let me make one thing clear and make no mistake about it," the meeting is open to all supporters of the McGovern-Shriver Democratic ticket, whether they be democrats, Republicans or Independents.

Sincerely yours,
 Marty Paul, chairman
 Charlevoix County
 Citizens for McGovern

Ask The Governor

QUESTION: I read recently that legislation now being considered in Congress would create a national uniform standard for the ingredients of hot dogs, sausages, and lunch meats, and that this law would weaken the standards that Michigan now has. Has anything been done to prevent this from happening and keep Michigan's standards at their high level?

ANSWER: Michigan has long been recognized as a national leader in establishing high standards of quality for meats, and has set rigid requirements regarding protein content and ingredients permitted in ground meats. However, an amendment to Senate Bill 1316, legislation now pending in the U.S. House of Representatives, posed a serious threat to those standards by requiring the substitution of weaker federal measures for Michigan's tough regulations. These lower federal standards would have permitted lard, snouts, intestines, and other material to be sold in ground meats, additions that are currently prohibited under our state's laws.

In July, I sent a letter to the congressional committee considering the legislation and dispatched state officials to Washington to urge amendments to this bill which would permit Michigan to retain its present higher standards. We won that battle in committee, and the bill as reported out would allow us to retain our tougher restrictions. However, we still face a difficult fight on the House floor. I will continue to urge support in Congress for the measure allowing Michigan to continue enforcement of its stricter regulations, and urge all citizens interested in this issue to contact their Congressman and urge support for Senate Bill 1316 as reported out of committee.

Clockwise

An Ill Wind

By BOB CLOCK

Of all the unkind weather phenomena visited upon northern Michigan, I think wind is the worst.

I can take 20 below zero, just so long as there isn't a breeze stirring. Or 90 degrees in the shade, just so long as it isn't accompanied by a hot dry wind from the south that sears the forehead and parches the throat.

Even ordinary, lousy weather like we had over the weekend wouldn't have been too bad — if it hadn't been for the wind.

Sincerely yours, a high wind that drives me right up the wall. And I think my kids have inherited my phobia. All day Sunday they played on the floor of our little downstairs hall, doors shut. It is the only room in the house that doesn't have an outside wall — an inner-sanctum that even the wildest tempest cannot penetrate.

Sunday afternoon we took a ride down Fish Hatchery Hill for a closer look at that big, rolling cauldron called Lake Michigan. Waves were breaking over the pierheads and there wasn't a fisherman in sight. Last Sunday they were elbow to elbow.

All of the beach playground equipment was underwater from time to time as waves driven by a stiff west wind crashed against the retaining wall that separates the beach from the roadway.

On Pine River Channel, the waves were coming right over the revetments, soaking the grassy walkways on both sides. From time to time, spray would sprinkle pedestrians and automobiles crossing the bridge.

The only fisherman sufficiently daring to try his luck in the channel Sunday was Tip Riley. And the luck of the Irish was riding with him. He caught a large lake trout, but when it jumped, the wind blew it right onto the bank and wrapped the line around a signpost.

Of course, the season's first big blow would come the day of the Chamber of Commerce "Color Cruise." The Beaver Island never left the island, and 200

The Lottery

By Jim Fitzgerald

Michigan newspaper readers should brace themselves for an endless siege of articles explaining what some lucky bugger is going to do with $1 million.

It still illegal to play church bingo in my favorite state. Oh Kiss-My-My Michigan. Not long ago, in my favorite town, a state trooper was pressured into resigning as Legion commander because his post held weekly bingo games. The trooper, apparently, was that it was OK for a cop to turn his head while Maude Frickert bets cash she can beat other Little Old Ladies at putting beans on cards. But the cop shouldn't be the one covering Maude's bet. Hypocrisy should be worn sneakily, like torn underwear; not flaunted, like a red cape.

However, Maude shouldn't despair of escaping the underworld. She can soon gamble for riches legally, without going to the racetrack. The state lottery will be in business. For a 50-cent ticket, she might win $200,000. And she can do a lot better than buy her ticket from a local cop. She can buy it from Guss Harrison who, until recently, was one of the state's most respected lawmen.

Politicians are clever fellows. In case you never noticed, when they hit upon a questionable scheme for paying bills without losing votes, they know how to cloak the medicine show in respectability. They hire a lawman to make the pitch in front of the tent. It is never difficult to convince a cop to switch jobs because law enforcement doesn't pay much. There's a lot more money in distributing booze, watching horses and selling raffle tickets.

Thus it is common to find an ex-FBI agent is now a racetrack commissionaire. Or a former chief of police is chairman of a liquor control commission. Or Guss Harrison, who made his name handing criminals, is now described by newspapers as "the state lottery czar." When Guss was running prisons, I'll bet he never in his wildest dreams thought some day he would be a gambling czar.

This effort to give gambling a Boy Scout image does not reach beyond Mr. Clean at the top. If it did, the lottery tickets would be sold by the cop on the beat, or by church ushers. This would be a logical conclusion of a transaction begun in the pure heaven of Guss Harrison's office. But no.

The tickets will be sold at gas stations, supermarkets, drugstores and bowling alleys—anywhere the traffic is heavy. And there will be bonuses for the best salesmen—including maybe $10,000 to the guy who sells the winner of the Millionaire Drawing.

This is not intended as a put-down for gasoline jockeys or checkout girls, but they hardly carry the same credentials as an ex-superintendent of prisons. There is little guarantee that Guss Harrison's purity will reach the point of purchase. A lot of gamblers will continue to have more faith in their favorite bookie than in a strange clerk at the Retail store.

On well. Don't worry about that. Worry about what you'll tell the newspaper reporters after you win $1 million and they want to know what you're going to do with it. How about something like this:

"I am going to use the money to move to another state where there is no legalized hypocrisy and the politicians don't run crap games to pay the bills. I don't want to hang around here to see which policeman becomes czar of the brothels when prostitution is legalized."

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

Uncle Charlie, as a section foreman in Newberry, was a link in the featherbedding chain which has shackled today's taxpayer to the financial dilemma of the iron horse. His unique contribution, bacon rinds and pork leftovers, made up in efficiency what it lacked in sophistication.

At the turn of the century the lumber company boasted several miles of track for hauling logs to the mill. The yard approach was a long incline and to guard against deterioration of the rails in this vital section, Charlie and his men greased them periodically with the aforementioned preservatives.

Belching smoke, steam, and cinders the locomotive rounded the curve with the loaded cars lurching and weaving dragon like in its wake. As the drive wheels began spinning on the slippery rails sparks spewed along the flanges like an industrial grinder.

With the closing of the throttle, the cab, was enveloped in a cloud of steam punctured by openings created by the adjectives hurled by the Irish engineer at the indifferent Finns viewing the scene in stoic silence. The monster retreated a mile and renewed the assault, goaded to success by the frantic din of the fireman's shovel. This unexpected hour-long delay enriched each man by 30 cents.

Uncle Charlie was not afraid to gamble on financial ventures of a purely speculative nature. In proper season he sold twigs and leaves to the motoring public for a just profit in view of the risks involved. He would display a cardboard box full of blueberries, with the largest berries on top, alongside the road to catch the greedy eye of a bargain hunting traveler.

After a proper amount of haggling Charlie would accept a lower price for his berries while pointing out the unfortunate lot of the honest working man. Charlie rightfully reassured that the hours of happiness on the homeward drive more than compensated for the fleeting disappointment the buyer experienced when viewing the artful display of greenery acting as a cushion in the lower half of the box.

Unfortunately the era and the locality in which he lived prevented Charlie's marketing talents from receiving their proper acclaim.

If instead of grubbing the unproductive soil of the U.P. 50 years ago for hay and potatoes, what if Uncle Charlie had been able to grow wheat instead?

Griffin Book Raises Question of Propriety

With tax dollars so hard to come by, it is right for a U.S. senator to use his staff to compile a 167-page book extolling the merits of — you guessed it — the senator himself.

Such a book arrived at the Courier office last week via special fourth class mail from Washington, D.C. The title is "Michigan's U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin — A Record of Distinguished Service and Leadership."

We have no way of knowing where the book was printed or who printed it, but it appears suspiciously to be a U.S. government publication. It is printed on heavy bond paper, stitch-bound, and there is no commercial publisher's imprint anywhere in evidence.

Furthermore, the great seal of the United States appears on the cover.

Now we have no quarrel with the staff of Sen. Griffin shouting their boss' praises to the heavens. He has been a conscientious and able representative.

But we do object to public servants — and Sen. Griffin's staff is paid by the American taxpayers — being pressed into the publication of a 167-page book obviously aimed at winning votes for the senator only a month before the general election.

The senator's staff might better be employed looking for ways to trim the federal budget.

12,200 Lives Lost In Fires Last Year

The 51st anniversary of Fire Prevention Week is being observed during the week of October 8-14, beginning the second half-century of this countrywide campaign. It is a fitting opportunity to reflect upon the increasingly important role of the fireman today.

Fire statistics are appalling. The National Fire Protection Association says that 12,200 persons died in fires last year — the sixth straight year that more than 12,000 have perished from fire. Among children 1-14 and adults 45-64, fire is the leading killer in home accidents. Insurance Services Office estimates that private property valued at more than $2.2 billion was lost to fire during 1971.

While these facts illustrate how fire hurts, both human and property losses would have been worse had it not been for the valiant efforts of fire departments across the nation.

The 1971 property loss exceeded $2 billion for the second straight year, but was down slightly from the record 1970 loss. This was the first year-to-year decrease since 1964.

Violence also has reared its ugly head against firemen. More than 300 were injured during civil disorders or in acts of individual violence during 1970.

Altogether, fire fighting has become one of the country's most dangerous jobs. The National Geographic Society says, "The National Commission of Fire Prevention and Control reports that 210 firemen were killed and 38,583 injured in the line of duty last year. According to the International Association of Fire Fighters, the rate of death in the line of duty among fire fighters last year rose to 115 per 100,000 men, compared to 35 line-of-duty deaths per 100,000 in 1964.

Dedicated firemen thus deserve our thanks during Fire Prevention Week and our appreciation and assistance throughout the year.

Indian Town Averages 425 Inches of Rain

South Dakotans and South Koreans, residents of the Eastern Seaboard and the Philippine Island of Luzon shared something in common this summer: Too much rain.

Floods triggered by an all-night downpour devastated Rapid City only a few days before Tropical Storm Agnes began a destructive march from Florida to New England.

Next a month-long typhoon dumped the equivalent of five years' annual rainfall on the northern Philippines. And now South Korea is rebuilding after the heaviest rains in memory left hundreds dead and more than 162,000 persons homeless.

It's Pouring Somewhere

An estimated 16,000,000 tons of water fell to earth every second of the year, the National Geographic Society says. Since rain aids farm crops and fills city reservoirs, it's praised as beneficial—except when too much falls too fast and too long in one spot.

It takes 27,154 gallons of rain to wet down an acre of ground with one inch of water, according to the United States Geological Survey.

This means a one-inch rainfall in Washington, D.C., amounts to 1,200,000 gallons, or for the city of New York, 5,200,000 gallons.

The wettest land on Earth may lie in certain mountain forests of Burma and Assam where annual rainfall totals 30 feet at some points.

In one three-month period, Cherrapunji were soaked with 241 inches of rain—including 150 inches or 12½ feet in five days. One year monsoons drenched the town with 806 inches of rain in 90 days.

Precipitation in the 48 contiguous states ranges from a fraction of an inch in parts of the Southwest to more than 35 inches in Louisiana. The national average is about 30 inches a year, or enough to cover the entire country with some 2½ feet of water.

Despite the belief that droplets of rain are teardrop-shaped, scientists have found they are more likely to resemble dumbbells, pancakes, telephones, hot dogs, ducks, and other unlikely objects. They change shape as they fall, oscillating from one form to another and back again about 16 times a second.

The "gentle pitter-patter" of rain is another misconception. Falling from great heights, drops can strike the earth with sufficient force to break loose particles of soil. The loosened dirt then moves downhill, causing "sheet erosion" in which entire fields slip away.

Rain comes in three varieties. "Landregen," from the German "land," or country-wide, and "regen," or rain, is the continuous, quiet type that may continue falling for days.

"Bomregen" is shower or squall rain, starting and ending as abruptly as though a faucet had been turned on and off. "Gewitter" is heavy, thunderstorm rain, the "goose-dropper" often accompanied by thunder and lightning.

"Landregen's" raindrops are the smallest, "gewitter's" the largest.

Lucas Listed As Outstanding Man

John Lucas, former local resident, is among three young men from Kodiak, Alaska, who have been nominated by the Kodiak Area Chamber of Commerce for inclusion in the 1972 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America".

He is eligible for inclusion in the publication, a nominee must be between the ages of 21 and 35 years and have distinguished himself by civic and professional achievements.

Lucas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lucas of North Point and a resident of Alaska for more than two years, worked on the city clean-up campaign as one of the Volunteers for Kodiak; is an active Jaycee and has been working on construction at the State Fair and Rodeo Grounds. In addition, he has assisted in the organization of the State Fair and getting it in operation as well as working on the construction phase.

Prior to moving to Kodiak, he lived at Chugach, Ark., where he served as borough assessor.

A native of Cleveland, Lucas came to Charlevoix with his parents as a junior high school student. He was graduated from the Charlevoix high school in 1968 and attended Northwestern Michigan College at Traverse City. Following his marriage to Judy Ingalls, daughter of Mrs. Henry Ingalls, they lived here briefly before going to Cleveland where he was associated with the General Motors Corp. Later they lived in Tucson, Ariz., where he was engaged in real estate.

Chief Robert Smith of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station said the station received a call shortly before 7 p.m. from the tug Loren Seacastle saying she had lost her tow, the barge Seacastle, abeam the Medusa Cement Plant.

The tug and barge, believed to be out of Sturgeon Bay or Green Bay, Wis., were south-bound when the tow line parted in winds gusting up to 70 knots in 10 to 15 foot seas.

The three men aboard the barge were identified as a Mr. Faulk, a Mr. Rowland and Steve Sterson, all of Wisconsin.

A Coast Guard helicopter dispatched from Traverse City to remove the men was ordered back to its home base.

"I guess they figured it would be a pretty hairy operation, riding in the chopper basket in that wind," Chief Smith commented.

The Coast Guard Station kept a watch on the barge throughout the night from shore.

The tug tied up in the Medusa slip overnight.

The barge Seacastle is the former cement carrier John L.A. Galster owned by the Penn-Dixie Cement Co. It was believed to be empty.

Minor damage was caused by the storm in the Charlevoix area, mostly power failures caused by falling tree limbs.

For a time in the middle of the night U.S. 31 at Oak-st. was blocked by a fallen limb.

Barge Runs Aground at Norwood

A 250-foot barge with three men aboard went aground between Fisherman's Island and Norwood after her tow line parted Monday night at the height of the worst blow of the season.

Chief Robert Smith of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station said the station received a call shortly before 7 p.m. from the tug Loren Seacastle saying she had lost her tow, the barge Seacastle, abeam the Medusa Cement Plant.

The tug and barge, believed to be out of Sturgeon Bay or Green Bay, Wis., were south-bound when the tow line parted in winds gusting up to 70 knots in 10 to 15 foot seas.

The three men aboard the barge were identified as a Mr. Faulk, a Mr. Rowland and Steve Sterson, all of Wisconsin.

Seacastle Loses Tow As Winds Whip Lake

At first the men asked via radio that they be removed by helicopter. However after the barge went aground about 9 p.m. they elected to ride out the storm.

A Coast Guard helicopter dispatched from Traverse City to remove the men was ordered back to its home base.

Soup Do Nuts Knee Boots

JIM GALLAGHER, skipper of the Irons Ferry, has added a pair of knee-high boots to his wardrobe. They come in mighty handy when Jim wades ashore from the auto ramp for a cup of coffee. This year's high water, has kept the ramp unusable for several weeks. In the East Jordan area, several docks are under water and their enterprising owners have hauled docks on top of docks to keep from getting their feet wet.

Rink in Park
THE CHAMBER OF Commerce is talking about several exciting winter innovations for East Park. They include a skating rink on the shuffleboard courts (the lights are already there), a Nativity scene in the bandshell, and speakers strategically located around the park to pipe carols to Christmas shoppers during the Yule season.

Thank You Note
BE SURE to check the letter from Mr. and Mrs. John Tjapkes of Ellsworth on the Editorial Page of this week's Courier. It will make you a little prouder to live in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

200 Condos
IN CASE you haven't noticed, there presently are about 200 condominium or apartment units either under construction or in the planning stage in Charlevoix.

Most Shops Open
WHAT HAS happened to Charlevoix's "summer" shops? Not too many years ago, shop after shop closed right after Labor Day. Today, most of them are open. The only businesses shut down to date are the theater, the Parkside Dining Room, the Clothes Horse, the Charlevoix Delicatessen, and Jerry Murdock's pop corn and candy store. By the way, a new fabrics shop - The Chelsea - will be moving into Jerry's shortly.

Working Wives
LIFE for the candidates' wives isn't all tea and crumpets. Mrs. Marge Griffin, who was in town last week stumping for her husband, Sen. Bob, says she has been on the go 15 hours a day since Labor Day. During that time she has been running up votes, answering questions, and being a mother to her husband, who must spend most of his time in Washington. Although Mrs. Griffin has spent many years in the East, it is refreshing to hear her pronounce "Washington" with an "R" in the first syllable - just like the rest of us here.

They Linger On
HAVE YOU ever seen so many "summer people" staying so late in the season? Parking spaces on Bridge-st., Park-ave., Clinton, Mason and Antrim are still at a premium most weekdays, let alone weekends.

MRS. WILLIAM MILLIKEN, wife of the governor, accompanied Mrs. Robert Griffin, wife of the senator, on a campaign swing through northern Michigan last week. Sen. Griffin will oppose Democrat Frank Kelley in the Nov. 7 general election. Welcoming the campaigners to the GOP headquarters (above) were Mrs. Jack Begrow, GOP County Chairman Robert Wise, Oscar Straud, James Stoneham, Alderman Sam Supernaw, Mrs. Milliken, Mrs. Griffin and Mayor Edward P. Hansen.

STATE Democratic Party Chairman James M. McNeely (left) and Charles A. "Tany" Duerr, candidate for the House of Representatives from the 103rd District, will hold a press conference at the Democratic headquarters on Bridge-st. at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 20. McNeely says he plans to campaign extensively for Duerr before the Nov. 7 election. Other press conferences are scheduled for Clark and Grayling the same day.

Eastern Firm Buys Freedman Artcraft

Freedman Artcraft Engineering Co., Charlevoix's largest single employer, has been sold to Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Inc., headquartered in Dedham, Mass. Announcement of the sale was made Monday in Charlevoix by Gordon Freedman, founder and president of the Charlevoix firm.

Freedman spent most of the day Monday meeting with small groups of employees to tell them about the sale. He said that company operations and employee benefits will remain the same under the new owner. Freedman will continue to serve as company president and Jack Grubba as vice president.

The company will continue to manufacture retail store cabinets as it has in the past, not only for Rust Craft but also for its other long-established customers.

In a statement announcing the sale, Freedman said: "Rust Craft, a leader in the field of communications, greeting cards and allied products, has been a long-time major Freedman Artcraft customer. The philosophies of management, personnel and customer relations of the two companies are very similar. The management, the name and the basic aims of Freedman Artcraft will remain unchanged."

"In joining with Rust Craft and its other successful subsidiaries, Freedman Artcraft will be able to further broaden its leadership in the free standing display fixture field," he added.

Freedman Artcraft's new role will be that of a "wholly owned and autonomous subsidiary" of Rust Craft.

Announcement of the acquisition will be made in Dedham by Marshall L. Berkman, president of Rust Craft, and Louis Berkman, chairman of the Rust Craft board of directors.

Marshall Berkman noted that "fixturing is increasingly important to the merchandising of greeting cards, gift wrapping, candles, stationery and other product lines manufactured and serviced by Rust Craft."

"The acquisition of Freedman Artcraft thereby makes Rust Craft more flexible and a total supplier to the retailers carrying Rust Craft products," he added.

Freedman Artcraft was started in Charlevoix June 1, 1946, and presently employs more than 180 workers. Products include a wide range of store fixtures for the display of not only greeting cards but also wrapping paper, stereo tapes, records and notions.

In addition to Freedman, Rust Craft is the parent organization of Barker Greeting Cards, Inc., of Cincinnati; M-K Candles, Syracuse, N.Y.; Pratt and Austin Stationery, Holyoke, Mass.; National Artcrafts, Inc., Detroit; and Associated American Artists, New York City.

The firm also owns six television stations, including WKNB in Saginaw and four AM-FM radio stations. Internationally, Rust Craft owns Rust Craft, Ltd., Toronto; Wishing Well Greeting Cards, Montreal; Rust Craft United Kingdom, Ltd., Dunsbury, England; and Rust Craft International, Monaco.

Licenses of Rust Craft greeting cards are located in Australia, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Italy, Japan, New Zealand and South Africa.

Rust Craft is listed with the American Stock Exchange. The sale was finalized Oct. 12.

Hospital Drive Over the Top

The summer-long drive to raise funds for coronary and intensive care units at Charlevoix Hospital has gone over the top. Gerald Staubin, president of the hospital's board of trustees, reported Monday that more than $200,000. Goal in the drive was $175,000 which was to be added to gifts and bequests totaling about the same amount from the John Stewart estate and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings. "The amount of money pledged was over $200,000, which makes the campaign a wonderful success," Staubin said. "Surpassing the goal will help overcome increasing construction costs and purchase some needed equipment."

Staubin relayed the board's appreciation to the many persons in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Ellsworth who volunteered as workers and "to the hundreds of individuals, businesses and organizations who shared so generously to make the coronary care unit and other hospital improvements become a reality."

Staubin said the coronary care unit presently is about 75 percent completed. He added that the hospital administration hopes to have it in operation in early December.

A public tour of the new unit is being planned so that everyone has an opportunity to "see what their money has provided for them if it should be needed," Staubin said.

The fund-raising drive was launched in May and went over the $200,000 mark Oct. 15. During most of the summer, Floyd McCarthy, a professional fund raiser working for Ward Jenks of California was in town to assist with the solicitation.

How You Can Identify Big Game Fish on Sight

How do you know whether that bigunker you caught off the Charlevoix pierheads this morning is a coho, chinook, steelhead or lake trout?

According to the Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix, each species has characteristics which should make identification fairly easy:

COHO
Identification: Tail spots are concentrated on the top half of the tail. The interior of the mouth is usually gray or black, but the gums are whitish. The anal fin usually has 12 to 15 rays (spines). Also, while on the line, coho often roll sideways, many times entangling themselves in the tackle.

HABITS: In spring and summer, coho can be found in open waters near concentrations of alewives or smelt—usually within 10 miles of shore in the upper 20 to 40 feet. In August and September, they concentrate in schools near mouths of their parent streams. Sometime in September they begin ascending the spawning streams, in waves.

CHINOOK
Identification: Best identifying characteristic is teeth set in black gums. The base of the tail flares like the handle of a canoe paddle, offering the angler a grip sufficient to lift the fish. Like the coho, the interior of the mouth will be gray or black. Tail spots are usually restricted to the top half of the tail, but may also appear on the lower half. The anal fin usually has 15 to 17 rays. Though noted for extreme vigor on the line, chinook do not jump and roll as much as coho.

HABITS: Open-water fishing is best in spring and summer, as with coho. Chinook, however, are fished somewhat deeper and closer to the bottom. Migration to parent streams begins in late summer, with heavy concentrations at stream mouths. Stream fishing peaks sometime in September, at the onset of spawning runs.

STEELHEAD
Identification: The interior of the mouth is white, unlike either coho or chinook. Also, the entire tail area is spotted. Cheek plates and sometimes a line along the side are a rusty pink. Normally, the anal fin has less than 12 rays.

HABITS: Steelhead spawn in the spring, as early as March, but they begin entering the spawning streams as early as the preceding September. Special early and late seasons are held to take advantage of these runs. Stream fishing is best in spring and summer.

LAKE TROUT
Identification: Color pattern is mostly gray above and white below, with creamy white mottling on the back grading to spots on the side—no red or pink. The tail is distinctly forked.

HABITS: Exclusively a lake fish, pre-eminently a deep-water and cold-water fish. In spring and summer, steelhead can be found in big water—usually within a mile of shore at depths of less than 50 feet.
